Bank Clearings for January

Bank clearings for the month of January reflect again a large decrease in the volume of setzioments through the banks, total exchanges for the month, as reported by R. G. DUN & Co., for all cities in the United States amounting to $11,327,205,528, a loss of 24.6 per cent. compared with a year ago and 30.7 per cent compared with January, 1906. There is a slight improvement over December, indicating somewhat freer payments through the banks than in the closing month of last year. The decrease continues large at New York City and at most eastern centers. There is also a considerable loss at the South and at Pacific coast points. In the Central West the loss is small, denoting a marked improvement over December, while in the Far West there is a gain which is quite large compared with January, 1906. The extent to which payments through the banks were curtailed by the extraordinary movements of last fall is shown by the average daily figures for the past three months, in which the volume of such payments is usually at the highest point of the year. These figures were in excess of $556,000,000 daily in both preceding years, and in January, 1996, they were $625,-276.003. In January this year they are $435,662,000 dally, but in December only $376,161,000 daily. Bank exchanges by sections for the month of January are compared below for three years ; also average daily figures for January and the three preceding months :
