journed until Thursday. The first session RUBE HAS A FRIEND IN MACK

Some Interesting Sidelights on Sale of the Southpaw. Connie Mack admits he hated to part with Rube Waddell and avows that if ever the big fellow needs a friend he'll find him in the long, lean manager of the Athletics. Connie also practically admits he let Rube go in the interest of harmony among the other members of the team, with whom glube was unpopular. He declines to name the exact price paid for the man who has brought more money into the boxeffice at Philadelphia than any other player, but it is guessed at between $5,000 and $10,000. The odds ought to be in favor of the smaller figure.

When McAleer closed the deal in Philadelphia he said to Mack:

"Well, Connie, I consider I am taking a great load off your mind."

"Yes." responded Connie, "but you'd better get out of town quickly, for Rube'li have a Send me a hundred message on the wire the instent he hears the news."

With all the Reuben has done to add to the wose of his manager, he leaves a good friend behind him in Mr. Mack.

"Honestly, I hate to see him go," was the admission the lean leader made. "He's done enough things to drive me to distraction, but along with lots that was bad there was plenty that was good, too.

"When Rube was behaving he would do anything for me, work as often as I asked him and throw off his arm in the effort to win. He landed as the pennant of 1902, and his work in the early half of 1905 put as in such a commanding position that Plank was able to bring home that flag.

"I don't think Rube is all in. I wouldn't be surprised to see him do fine work. Certainly I hope so, and I shall always be grateful for the help he gave our club. I hope that the big fellow will never need aid from me, but if that day commes, I promise that he won't ask in vain."

This tribute, expressed with genuine feeling, has plenty to warrant it.

When Wandell camp to the Athletics in the middle of 1802 he Yound the local American league team on the rocks. It is violating no confidence to tell this. The ruling of the court that took away Bernhard. Fraser, Duggleby, Laide and Filek had hopelessly broken up Mack's team. It was bumping along in the accound division, lowing money, and apparently having little prospect of getting out of the bel.

Then the manager made one of those strokes for which he is famous.

He had known Wandell for several years. The big fellow had made his debut he cut loose the first of a long series of marvelous exhibitions of pitching.

This marks a distinct record in the series of wrestless at the Auditorium, because the men in the preliminaries will be little less attractive than those in the main event. They are both heavyweights, tipping the beams in the neighborhood of Zie pounds, and are both top-liners. Klank is the markager and backer of War Eagle and is theyoughly known to the fans of this city, where he made his home for so long. Nielson is of Chicago and one of the cracks there. He is slightly heavier than Klank. They are expected to put up the best preliminary ever yet seen at the Auditorium. Burns got in town Thursday morning and is in fine form. AMATEUR RACING RECOGNIZED National Trotting Association Makes Important Change in Rules.

Important Change in Rules.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Official recognition was given to the international charter of the National Trotting association when at today's session here of the association's biennial congress the Canadian provinces were made a concrete part of the association's excellence of third vice president was created, and Alexander MacLaten of Buckingham, Queboc, was chosen for the new office.

Of even more importance to the large sumbers of American horsemen was the association's action in opening the doors to amateur racing under the association's rules. It was provided by means of an amendment to rule forty-front, carried with only three dissonting votes, that records cannot be made or bars incurred in contests on the tracks of members for premitures other than money, when no entrance fee is collected from competing berse. This rule applies, according to today's action, even if admission is charged and privileges and to the tracks of members for premitures other than money, when no entrance fee is collected from competing berse. This rule applies, according to today's action, even if admission is charged and privileges under the rule are extended only to organizations which are members of the National Trotting association.

The adoption of this amendment will have the effect of extending the privileges and to the numerous ameteur borse trotting associations. Heretofore the association has been devated to regular racing organizations.

LINCOLN DAY IN NEW YORK

Governor Hughes Makes Addresses at Three Dinners. NEW YORK, Feb. 11-With Governor Hughes as their chief guest of honor, three republican organizations in the greater ning by dinners of more than ordinary interest, by reason not only of the governtance attached to this stage of the preliminary political skirmish to any political utterances by him or in his behalf. Governor Hughes began his round of speeches by attending the twenty-second annual Lincoin dinner of the Republican club of the city of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria, to which he was enthusiastically welcomed, and at which his brief address was listened to with interest and interrupted by frequent bursts of applause. A spirited fense of President Roosevelt by John May: pard Harlan of Chicago was another feature of this dinner, at which also considerable attention was attracted by the felicitous eulogy of Abraham Lincoln by a democratic congressman from Texas-Representative Morris Sheppard.

Augustus Willson of Kentucky also spoke briefly. Leaving Manhattan borough, Governor Hughes went to Brooklyn, where he was the guest of and addressed two organizafions, the Lincoln club and the Union League club. At both functions his appearance was greeted by enthusiastic demonstrations. When the toastmaster, President Charles E. Young of the Republican club, turned from his preliminary remarks to introduce Governor Hughes, he was interrupted before he reached the first syllable of the executive's name. Twice three cheers and a "tiger" were given before the assemblage quieted sufficiently to allow the governor to begin his address, which he did by exressing his pleasure at welcoming to the state the governor of Kentucky and apolizing because the exigencies of the gubernatorial office had not given him the opportunity to prepare an address. Mentionin the breasts of patriotic Americans by the national holidays, he noted in particular the reverence which all feel for the father of his country, George Washington, "But," he added, "there is one man who presents to the American people above all others in his many-sided greatness the An unusually large number of seats has been sold to women, whose interest in wrestling has reached the point of fanaticular. "Rarely has the doctrine of the relation of the nation to the states, and of government to the individual been more lucidly expounded than he expounded it in those sentences which probably are familiar to you all. He said, 'The nation must control whatever concerns the nation. The states or any political community must control whatever exclusively concerns them.
