Brandeis' Charming Millinery

Ranging in Price From $10 to $25

Our models from Paris shows us that the great, large hats of ages, like old pictures in old frames, are the up-to-date hats for this spring. These hats, which so closely similate those of old paintings, fit down over the head. The low, long, sweeping lines of the brim are usually relieved by a slight roll towards the side. Both the crowns and the trimmings are high in the extreme styles. The tendency of all trimmings is toward the massive effects. Ostrich feathers, large clusters of flowers, and velvet trimmings are used in this assortment. We show many exquisite new styles Saturday, each, from—

TEN THOUSAND LOVE SORE

Young Wife Sues Husband's Parents for Estranging Him.

ALIENATION OF AFFECTION SUIT

Contemplated Divorce Proceedings Until She Found She Still Loves Him and Then Switched to Damages.

Olive Dodendorf LaPage, whose runaway marriage, when 16 years of age, to Harry LaPage, then 17, was of a sensational character, having been accomplished over the opposition of the parents of her sweetheart, the objections of her own family and in spite of the police, who on several occasion blocked the plans of the couple, has brought suit in the district court for $10,000 against Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaPage, 1502 Burdette street, her husband's parents.

She alleges in her petition that her parents-in-law have alienated her husband's affections.

Mrs. LaPage intended to sue her husband for divorce, because she claimed he had been won away from her by his parents, but when she confessed to her attorney, John O. Yeiser, that she still loved her husband and it was only a case of older people interfering, the divorce suit was changed to a suit for damges. The girl was married to Harry LaPage in Wahoo in April, 1906, after having eluded the police, who were looking for her, by walking to South Omaha to board a train. Upon their return to Omaha it was published that Mrs. LaPage said she would never forgive her son or accept his wife in her home, though no effort was made to annul the marriage. The two lived together until last February and they have one child.

What the Girl Says.

In her petition the girl says:

The family relations between plaintiff and her husband up to February, 1908, were happy, loving and tender and nothing existed to estrange them, the birth of said child serving to add strength to said ties of marriage; that defendants have ever since the husband of plaintiff was 18 years of age, unitedly and individually, maliciously aggravated and injured plaintiff by depriving her of the comfort, fellowship, love, protection and support of her husband; that defendants have wrongfully and unjustly instigated and persuaded the said Harry LaPage, unlawfully and without excuse and against the will and consent of the plaintiff, to depart, absent and separate himself from the said plaintiff and her infant aforesaid and have wrongfully and maliciously caused the said Harry LaPage to lose his respect, love and affection for the plaintiff and have wrongfully and maliciously, by design and persistent meddling, gossip and slander, intended to and succeeded in alienating the affection of said Harry LaPage from his wife, the plaintiff herein; that plaintiff has suffered and sustained damages by reason of said acts in the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), no part of which has been paid.

At the Theaters

"The Lion and the Mouse" at the Boyd.

Cast of characters:

Eudoxia	Dorotha Crane
Rev. Pontifex Deetle	Harris L. Forbes
Jane Deetle	Lillian Buckingham
Mrs. Rossmore	Eleanor Sheldon
Miss Nesbitt	Nellie Robinson
Judge Rossmore	George O. Morris
Ex-Judge Stott	Seymour Stratton
Expressman	William Borden
Shirley Rossmore	Dorothy Donnelly
Jefferson Ryder	James Cooley
Hon. Fitzroy Bagley	Richard Lambert
Jorkins	H. L. Forbes
Senator Roberts	Frederick Malcolm
Kate Roberts	Elsa Payne
Mrs. John Burkett Ryder	Ada Levick
John Burkett Ryder	Paul Everton
Maid	Lillian Buckingham

"The Lion and the Mouse" is a good means of entertainment, but the best thing about the play is that what it represents is not true. Mr. Klein has committed an egregious error in not changing the time of his little drama so that it will not read "the present." For certainly even his Mr. John Readymoney Ryder wouldn't assume the enormous risk of saying that such a situation could be fitted into these days of political virtue and commercial rectitude. And so, after being held down to a spectacular exhibition of the distressing anomaly of a private individual bossing a public government for four long acts, it is refreshing to wake up and find this nightmare of turpitude is but the merest phantom, capable at best of but typifying the exact conditions which the very government this tyrant is pictured as domineering is the same one that for the last few years has been strenuously engaged in wiping off the political and industrial map the sort of power he represents. At that the play is interesting and doubtless elbows realism at several angles. It is likewise well acted. This man, John Readymoney Ryder, manifestly is a hydraheaded being. Undoubtedly he and his brethren who are able to drive kingdoms of finance are yet unable to rule their own households, and it is not unlikely that the very reason is that enunciated by Shirley Rossmore when she declares to Mr. Ryder that he is unable to govern his own domestic affairs only because he is unable to govern himself. In its most thrilling feature, a feature that can not but entertain if it does not impress, the play presents an aspect of public life which could never long subsist in a country where the atmosphere of freedom is breathed by its citizens. One private citizen, a billionaire, tyrannical, merciless and in his inordinate ambition for power, sits in his office in New York, calls United States senators and sends them on his errands as mere puppets; frames and secures the passage of what measures he wants in congress; inspires and procures the publication of what editorials and news matter he wishes—all for the one purpose of promoting his indefensible interests, and these individuals, public servants, high and low, run at his beck and call like good, obedient sycophants. No, Mr. Klein should change that word "present" to give the least possibility of actuality to his play. Yet the play interests and entertains as it did before when given at the Boyd. The love thread is nicely woven through the fabric. It was greeted by a fair sized house last night and the audience gave most critical attention. The company is good. Miss Dorothy Donnelly, James Colley, Frederick Malcolm and Paul Everton all fill their parts with strength. Edward Lambert as Bagley was a comedian who added a bright spot to the performance. He certainly outlines the character of our British cousins of his rank with fascinating precision. The piece will be given tonight and tomorrow night, with a matinee Saturday.

"His Terrible Secret," at the Krug.

With its scenes laid in Africa and with a weird and somewhat unreal leading character, Charles E. Blaney's production of the drama, "His Terrible Secret, or the Man Monkey," with William H. Turner in the leading role, opened a three-night engagement at the Krug theater Thursday to a well-filled house. It is the same old story of the papers, the villain and the heroine who is saved by the hero, but it is presented in this production with a good cast and a novel hero, who is presumed to be half monkey and half man. The stage settings are realistic and a number of startling mechanical effects are introduced. A few specialties are introduced during the course of the play. "His Terrible Secret" closes Saturday night, with the usual matinee on that day.

WHY WOMEN SUFFER.

Women have so much to go through in life that it is a pity there is so much needless suffering from backache, headache, dizziness, languor and other common aches and ills of kidney complaint.

Doan's Kidney Pills have brought new life and strength to thousands of women afflicted in this way.

Women are prone to kidney trouble. They have so much indoor work to do, so much lifting, bending and stooping, they are bound by custom to tight, heavy clothing. They get little outdoor exercise, and any little cold may bring on a kidney weakness.

Don't worry if you feel tired and dragged out—if you have backache and bearing-down pain, headache, dizzy spells, faintness and lack of ambition. Don't think it's some trouble peculiar to the sex. Men suffer in the same way when they have kidney trouble.

Ask yourself this question: "Are my kidneys well?" The condition of the kidney secretions may give you an answer. If there is a brick-dust sediment, or a stringy settling in the urine; if passages are too frequent and copious, or scanty and painful, it is time to begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Delay may run you into Bright's disease or diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a special medicine for the kidneys, and do not affect the bowels or any other organs. There is not a particle of poison in them—just the pure roots and herbs that nature intended for curing the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of kidney trouble. Read the testimony of a woman in your own city, perhaps a neighbor:

OMAHA TESTIMONY

Mrs. J. Beilstein, 3004 Elm St., Omaha, Neb., says: "The time which has elapsed since I first used Doan's Kidney Pills has not diminished my good opinion of them in the least and I continue to recommend them whenever an opportunity presents itself. Kidney complaint had annoyed me for a long time and I was often in misery from the sharp pains through my back. If I stooped or lifted, my suffering was always more intense and consequently it was hard for me to perform my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills banished all these troubles so effectively that they have never returned. Mr. Beilstein also used them and the results in his case were just as satisfactory."
