NEWS OF THE BUSY HOME BUILDERS

STYLE OF THE OMAHA HOME

Distinctive Quality of the Architecture a Noteworthy Feature.

FLATS DESERVE BETTER NAME

Beauties Found Here that Do Not Exist Elsewhere and Advantages that Come from Originality.

Omaha is acquiring an individuality of her own in the home building far her people. Every city in the world has its own distinctive idiosyncrasy of architecture, though all conform more or less to the style of the nation in which they are a part.

As Omaha is made up of people from many countries and other cities of the world and her population has come from New England and other eastern localities of the United States, so her architecture, taken as a whole, is a composite of all that is best in the architecture of the homes of these various countries and the other parts of this country. The experiences of home builders elsewhere have been put into operation in Omaha with such improvements as experience has taught would be of use.

The flat found here is an example. In Philadelphia and other cities of the east the flat is generally a hideous thing, set even with the sidewalk line, rising to a height of from three to six stories and having no pretense to being architecturally beautiful or to having any other object than making the most rooms in a certain very cramped space of expensive city land. In Omaha the flat is a thing of beauty as well as being a substantial building, conveniently located to the business part of the city. It generally has a front yard where there are trees and grass and vines and flower beds. It has a comparatively spacious back yard. It seldom rises to a height of more than two stories. And its crowning glory—it has a porch, a wide, deep, comfortable porch at the front, to say nothing of a back porch, in fact such a building ought not to be burdened with the opprobrious name of flat.

This is typical of Omaha's distinctive style of home architecture. It is on broad lines embodying comfort first, spaciousness, plenty of fresh air and a touch of nature which is necessary to a free and freedom-loving people. Omaha homes are set in big yards with ample yard space and shrubbery. The eaves of the houses are broad, the windows are large and numerous. The houses, in short, make only such a compromise with nature as is demanded by the vicissitudes of wind and weather. They are built to give as much of the breath of Mother Nature to the occupants as is possible.

TIMELY REAL ESTATE TALK

Building Activity Uncommonly Brisk for Season of Year.

DEALERS ALL FEEL THE UPLIFT

Sales Recorded and Contracts Made Show the Prospects for Busy Season to Be Best in Years.

"I have been over Omaha during the week on short drives and I have never seen as many new homes being built and as much remodeling at this time of the year during all the time I have been in business in Omaha."

This was the remark of A. P. Tukey, one of the "old-time" real estate dealers, after he had completed his rounds of the city Thursday and Friday. "The new homes in the west part of the city are well under way. I believe that it is the best season we have ever had for the growth of the district west of Thirty-third street. Everyone who can get a lot seems to be anxious to get started early and get up a building. The residences in the west part of the city are, for the most part, good sized homes and will cost a great deal of money. It is really encouraging to see so many homes being erected in the west part of the city under the same condition affairs. The building there promises to exceed the number of homes erected last year, which I understand was one of the best years for the improvement of the North Side."

Hastings & Heyden have just issued a booklet showing pictures of thirty homes erected in Kountze Place last year, and saying that the number will be exceeded during the coming season, as a part of the tract between Sherman avenue and Twenty-fourth street and Plinkney streets has been platted and will be offered for sale. East of Sherman avenue, in what is known as Sulphur Springs addition, a score of new houses are being erected and every day the agents for the tract "sell a lot or two for immediate improvement."

While the east is still complaining of stationary conditions in the real estate world, and the VanNorden Magazine, an authority on financial subjects, says: "Few buyers are bold enough to purchase real estate under existing conditions." The buyers in Omaha are more than at the same time last year. The New York authority continues: "The income from manufacturing properties is uncertain because their products are not now in demand and enforced idleness has been or is likely to be the result. In the wholesale and jobbing districts reductions in rents or vacancies are likely to occur, because sales of merchandise to responsible buyers are difficult and collections are almost impossible in many cases. The retail and shopping districts are subject to the same conditions. Residence are not in demand because the people are suffering from or being threatened with reductions in income. Tenement property is unsalable because rents are falling and the unemployed—a constantly increasing army—cannot pay even the reduced rents."

Such a picture from the east stands out in marked contrast to the sales reported by W. L. Selby, the Boyce Reed company, George & Co., D. V. Sholes, Hastings & Heyden, F. C. Best, Payne & Bostwick and others. Friday Hastings & Heyden reported the following sales, which were made in one day, six of the sales being in the north part of the city:

Lot on Lothrop, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, to F. C. Day, consideration $950, for a new home to be erected at once.

Lot on Plinkney street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, to Arthur L. Lees for $700.

Northeast corner of Twenty-fourth and Plinkney streets, to Boyce Reed company, George & Co., D. V. Sholes, Hastings & Heyden, F. C. Best, Payne & Bostwick and others, Friday Hastings & Heyden reported the following sales, which were made in one day, six of the sales being in the north part of the city:

Lot on Emmet street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, to William Bodeman for $900. Mr. Bodeman will build a bungalow at once.

Two lots in Central Park addition, to E. S. Rush for $300, and a lot in Sheridan place, to John Wistler for $250. Homes will be built on both the lots sold.

G. C. Wright bought a lot on Plinkney street, between Sherman avenue and Eighteenth streets, for $950 and will erect a new home. While H. P. Noyes bought a lot on Lothrop street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, on which he will build a home, the consideration for the lot being $950.

C. P. Leary bought the home at 149 North Fourth street from the same firm for $4,150.

While such a list was being put through by one firm others have not been sleeping. Mr. Selby closed a deal Friday whereby A. C. Foster secured the "Four brick houses formerly owned by John P. Flindley at Thirty-fifth and Harney streets for $18,000, making something like $100,000 worth of city property which Mr. Selby has sold since January 1, 1908.

-Helping the blacksmith-

Electric blowers make work in the blacksmith shop a pleasure instead of drudgery. Besides this, they save nine-tenths of the time used by the old method. The electric blower is designed to operate on any lighting circuit and will furnish a blast while the workmen is doing something else. In an ordinary shop, the cost would not exceed over one cent per hour.

"The Morning Tub."
A few years ago a sister of mine called in to see an old woman who lived in a little cottage in Lincolnshire, and in course of conversation happened to mention that she had a cold sponge-down every morning.
"Law, miss!" said the old woman, "and does your mother know?"
"Yes, certainly," and she quite approves.
"Well," said the old woman, "a washes mi face ivery day, an' a washes mi neck one a week, but a've niver bin washed all over since I was a baby."
"This good woman lived to the ripe old age of 82.—London News.
