NEW TACK AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

of Self-Government to Be Introduced After Spring Vacation.

When the high school students return to work after the present week of vacation, a form of self-government beginning with a "High School Improvement league," will be introduced by the faculty. Principal Waterhouse has been studying conditions for some time with this end in view, and recently announced to a conference of representative students that he thought such a step might now be taken with the expectation of success.

The improvement league that will soon be organized among the students proposes to follow the example of the city council, the Commercial club and Omaha's various improvement clubs, and will have for its purpose the beautifying of the high school building and grounds. Last week the proposition was brought before the student body in a circular from the principal, and the pupils were given an opportunity to apply for membership in the league. Nearly 1,000 did so, and agreed to take an active part in keeping the building and campus free from distiguring waste and debris.

In the organization of the new league a nominating convention, primaries, formal elections and a class room representative system will be features. In this way the club will not only become a potent influence for the school's general appearance, but a valuable drill in the exercise of civic rights and duties will be given the students who join it. If expectations are realized and the student body puts this project through, further powers in the government and discipline of the school will be given the pupils, with complete self-government the ultimate aim and result.
