Danger in Wire Clotheslines—Waldemar Michaelson, city electrician, calls attention to the danger of attaching wire clothes lines from tall trees to the house and advises the changing of all wires so placed now that the season of electrical storms has arrived. The electrician says it is not a theory but a fact that electricity will follow the wire from the tree to the house, and he says houses have been exploded or set on fire in this manner in Omaha. Rope clotheslines are the best, he says, but wire lines can be used if they are strung from tree to tree or from a tree to a post, but they should never be attached to the house.

REVIVING IRISH INDUSTRY Father O'Flannagan Urges Purchase of Irish Goods as One Way to Aid Ireland. Father M. O'Flannagan of Roscommon county, Ireland, delivered an address Thursday evening on the subject of the "Industrial Revival of Ireland" before a fairly large audience in Creighton Institute hall in spite of the storm that sprang up about the time the meeting was to assemble. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Irish-American club of Omaha, T. J. Mahoney presiding. The burden of Father O'Flannagan's address was the stimulus which has been noted in Ireland during the last several years toward manufacturing those products for which the land was famous in past years and which had been crushed out of existence by, he stated, British commercialism, backed up by parliamentary legislation unfriendly to Irish trade. He urged that friends of Ireland in America contribute to the industrial revival of Ireland by calling for Irish made goods and thereby creating a demand for them and thus induce American merchants to procure them for sale. Samples of Irish made products were now on exhibition in Brandels' store and were being shown under the direction of a number of young women representing the Irish manufacturers. These products consist of Irish lace and linens and he asked that friends of Ireland visit the store and examine these products, not necessarily to buy, but to get acquainted with them.

Fine Feathers

A bird in the hat is worth eight or ten in the bush. Is it? In a period of fifteen years prior to 1903, bird life in this country was reduced fifty per cent. But now we are giving them more of a chance; refuges have been established where the birds can breed in safety; wardens have been appointed whom the Federal Government pays the princely sum of One Dollar per month, their real wages being paid by organizations.

Read this article, "Harbors for Wild Birds," by René Bache, in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, and learn how we are being saved from the disgrace of a birdless, song-silenced country. "Vaiti, the Queen," by Beatrice Grimshaw, tells how Vaiti was stranded on a lonely island, and how it turned out to be not quite so lonely as she thought, and, indeed, not so lonely as she might wish.

This week's issue of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST is now on sale. At the News-stands, 5 cents, $1.50 the year by mail. THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY PHILADELPHIA Our Boys Are Everywhere Copies will be delivered to any address by Eric Nelson, 1613 Capitol Avenue, Omaha
