Secretary Whitten of the Lincoln Cominercial club said he could not state whether the organization would take any part in fighting the increase on lumber or not Mr. Whitten offered these remarks on the situation:

"If Omaha decides to fight Lincoln may soin with Omaha and the other Nebraska cities which are interested. Of course, the question of discrimination between competitve points would not he a factor in this matter. If it hurts one, it will burt all, and it certainly looks as though the consumer would be hit, if no one clsa is. "I am not ready to believe that the railroads purpose to start in on any such campaign, as I have not been given to aderstand it is their policy to equalize nt this time by advancing rates. It would seem to me that the fact of the present rate of $5 cents having been in effect to Omaha a great many years in itself shows the rate to be compensatory. Railroad men claim that a growing volume of traffic enables them to make lower rates, and certainly they will not contend that the lumber traffic has fallen off."

An item of much importance was the fact that among several bond proposals which the clerk was ordered to advertise, by which the city proposes to sell bonds to the amount of $150,000, a cut of $20,000 was made in the authorized $50,000 sewer bond issue. The amount of money required to complete the sewer system has been a matter of dispute ever since the deficit was known to exist. At one time this was a bitterly contended question.
