a Staff Correspondent.) WASHING ON. May 4-(Special Tele-senste hus ordered printed a brief prepared by Senator Novels Brown in support of his amendment to the federal statutes, designed to prohibit the enjoining of an assessment or the collection of state taxes and has referred it to a sun-committee consisting of Fulton of Oregon, Nelson of Minnesota and Clarke of Arkansas. By his amendment, which he introduced early in the session, Senator Brown sought to have the same rule applied to state, county, municipal and district taxes as has been applied to fedcral taxes under the federal statutes.

In concluding his brief, Senator Brown said: "The assessment and collection of federal taxes under the present law cannot be enjoined in the federal courts. There is no reason why the same rule should not govern in federal courts as to the assessment and collection of state taxes. Congress has the power, which is established by both legislative and judicial precedent, to withhold the injunction remedy whereever it may determine the public good requires. Equity and good conscience, as weil as public good, suggests that'the rule be uniform as to all taxes. No reason has or can be given for a rule which forbids an injunction as to federal taxes and allows it as to other taxes. It will be remembered that adequate remedies at law are provided in all states and territories for wrongs existing on account of illegal and invalid assessments.

Senator Brown argued that the "summary collection of taxes is necessary to the life of the government, state as well as federal; boards of equalization and assessmen act judicially and their judgments should not be subject to collateral attack in courts of equity; it is within the power of congreas to fix the jurisdiction of federal district and circuit courts."

WASHINGTON, May 4.- The cases of the nesota and Bakota Cattle company against news print paper industries, upon which the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway company, involving claims for losses on cattle during the floods in Kansas in 1908, were decided by the supreme court of the United States today in favor of the railroad. The claim of the Empire company was based upon the loss of 778 cattle shipped from Texas and that of the Minnesota company on the loss of 1,635 head shipped from New Mexico, both shipments being to South Dakota. The overflow of the railroad tracks along the Kaw river made a diversion of the cattle necessary and it was claimed that their loss was due to neglect. Both cases originated in the United States district court for the state of Kansas. where the finding was favorable to the railroad company. The court of appeals for the Eighth circuit affirmed that verdict and it was sustained by today's decision. The opinion was announced by Justice White,
