

MISS HAGAR DEAD IN BED

Assistant Secretary of Associated Charities Dies at Night.

HEART DISEASE IS THE CAUSE

Key to Her Bed Room is Found Underneath, but Friends Attach No Significance to This Incident.

Miss Virginia Hagar, assistant secretary in the office of the Associated Charities, died from heart failure during the night of Thursday, her lifeless body being found in her room in the Madison hotel, 232 Chicago street, Friday morning.

Miss Hagar had not been well for several days. Thursday she was feeling better and in the evening, accompanied by Mr. Morris, who also resides at the Madison hotel, she went for a walk and street car ride. They returned about 9:30. Miss Hagar retired and Mrs. Baker, who occupied the adjoining room, helped her to bed. She also promised to come to her if she needed anything during the night. Upon leaving the room she locked the door and put the key underneath, where it could be reached either from the inside or outside.

The fact of the key being carefully placed under the door was thought by some to be significant, but Miss Hagar's friends discountenance this idea. They say she placed the key there so that Mrs. Baker might get into the room during the remainder of the night should Miss Hagar's condition call for further assistance.

Friday morning Mr. Morris knocked on Miss Hagar's door. Receiving no response, the door was unlocked and the young woman found dead.

Miss Hagar was about 33 years of age and was a sister of Miss Emily Louise Hagar, permanent secretary of the Associated Charities. Miss Emily attended the national convention of charity workers in Richmond, Va., a month ago and during her absence Miss Virginia did the work in the office. Miss Emily was expected in Omaha Friday from Topeka, Kan., where she has been visiting enroute from Richmond.

S. P. Morris, superintendent of the Associated Charities took the body last night to Topeka, the former home of the deceased, where funeral services will be held Sunday.

AS TO THOSE SCHOOL LOTS

Board Member Says, No Seven Thousand Dollars Was Ever Paid for Two.

"If the writer of this anonymous letter has reference to the lands we bought for the new Omaha View school, I will answer that we bought what is known as the Dr. J. C. Whinnery site because it is prominent, not in a hole, and is an admirable location for a large school building."

P. W. Kuhns, member of the Board of Education committee on buildings and property, makes this reply to an anonymous communication received by The Bee, asking "Why did the school board pay $7,000 for two lots when you or anyone else could have bought the same lots, or lots next to them, at $300 each?" The writer, who lost his nerve when it came to sign his letter, does not specify what lots, but Member Kuhns believes he has reference to the Whinnery purchase, as that is the only piece of realty the board has acquired recently.

In reply to the insinuating inquiry, Mr. Kuhns points out that twelve lots and two were bought for $7,300, and that, while possibly one or two isolated lots can be bought for $300, a higher price must be paid when a large block is secured intact. The Whinnery tract fronts 250 feet on Blinney street and 266 feet on Thirtieth street, is high, is improved and is thickly studded with old trees. It is the purpose of the board to erect on it a school building costing from $90,000 to $105,000, and, as Mr. Kuhns says, "we would not think of putting a fine building like that in a hole."

OMAHA'S BISHOP YOUNG MAN

Dr. Nuelson is a Native of Switzerland and the Son of a Missionary.

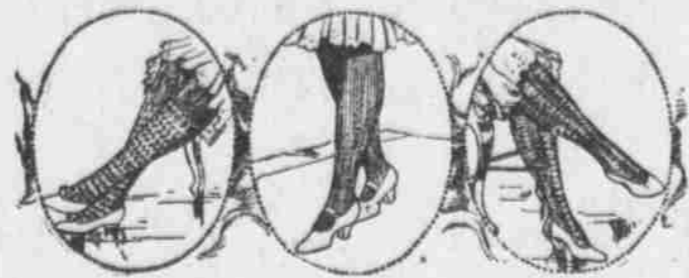

Rev. Dr. John L. Nuelson, the newly-elected Methodist bishop who will reside in Omaha, is 41 years of age. He was born in Switzerland, where his father was a missionary. He has been a comparatively unknown man among the English-speaking Methodists. At the conference he was unknown by at least two-thirds of the delegates, but he was strongly supported by the Germans, and to this his election is due. He is widely known as a powerful orator. He has been for some years a professor in the German college in Beres, G.

A house probably will be bought in Omaha for the residence of the bishop, though it is possible that for the present a home will be only rented. Bishop Nuelson is expected in the city within the next three or four weeks.
