BERLIN, June 4 .- The Diet elections were held throughout Prussia today. The most noteworthy result up to midnight is the election of five socialist members, of which four were victorious in Berlin and the suburbs and the fifth in one of the Hanover districts. This is the first time that the socialists ever elected a member to the

Diet. The socialists made the campaign wholly against the radicals as the most likely party from which it would be possible to gain seats. At the beginning of the campaign the radicals stated the main plank in their platform to be the introduction of manhood suffrage throughout Prussia, but they carried on a very languid fight. As usual only a small proportion of the voters went to the polls, the great mass of the people remaining indifferent, as they have despaired of bringing about a change
