Does Well, Taking It Endy. Omaha, 6; Pueblo, 3. George Graham wrenched his knee Saturday afternoon in the Pueblo game and probably will be out of the game for several months, if not for the balance of the season. He was sprinting to cover first on Clark's bunt in the second inning when he noticed no one was getting the ball. He stopped short and wrenched his knee. That it was most painful was apparent to all, for he writched in agony on the ground. After the game Graham said that while his knee was not thrown out of joint it pained him much more than it did when he hurt it the first time. King took Graham's place and got through without further injury to his finger. He has it done up in liquid court plaster and it is mending

Hall Pitches for the First Time

Since His Recent Accident and

Inst. Omaha won a game full of errors and catastrophes and dumb plays and little hitting. The errors were something terrible to behold, and the only consolation the Omaha fans got out of it was that Omaha won by the score of 6 to 3 and that most of the errors were made by the opposition. Pueblo players acted just like they were dased. Even the veteran Hogriever, who has been on fourteen championship teams, fell all over himself on Gonding's bunt in the second inning. They don't have grass in Pueblo and Hoggie slipped on the grass,

Hits Not Needed by Omaha.

Omaha made three runs in the first inning and three in the second, with one hit to each inning, but hits were not needed as long as the Pueblo Indians fell all over themselves, threw the ball away and could not hit Hall. Hall has been on the shelf for about three weeks nursing a lame arm and made his first appearance Saturday. While not in his best form he allowed but four hits, hit one and passed three.

The Rourke family did nothing in the rur getting line after those first two innings, but Pueblo started to get one at a time until it looked as though they might prove real contenders. The heavy batsmen could not deliver the goods, however, and the stuff was off.

Before he was hurt Graham was in the game with his usual vim and vigor and pulled off a double play unassisted in the first inning. Hoggie had walked, when

Smith hit a liner which looked good enough to Hoggie that he kept going. Graham was on the job, however, and not only nafled the hit, but tagged Hoggle. He also scored and ! a' run before he left, reaching first on an
