OFFICERS RAID KRUG PARK

Stock of Liquors of Amusement Company Seized by the Sheriff.

AMOUNT INVOLVED NOT LARGE

Raid is Outgrowth of Contest in Benson Council Against Granting License and is Engineered by Remonstrators.

On a search warrant sworn out by Elmer E. Thomas for J. F. Davis, a resident freholder of the city of Benson, Sheriff Bralley and two deputies late Thursday afternoon seized upon the entire visible liquor supply at Krug park. The sale of liquor was stopped just when the crowds in the park were the largest and pleasure seekers had to resort to red lemonade and pop.

W. W. Cole, manager of the park and of the Western Amusement company, licensee, was arrested and a warrant issued for "John Doe, real name unknown." Cole appeared in court and gave bonds for himself and John Doe in the sum of $50 each to appear in court Wednesday, July 1, to answer to the charge of selling intoxicating liquor without a license.

The small supply of beer in the retail house connected with the office building in the park was all that was seized by the sheriff, as that was all he found. Mr. Bralley said he did not know how much there was in the seizure, but Fred Krug said he was positive it would not exceed $40 in value. From the retail house the sheriff stroled to the wholesale establishment on the grounds and was casting a wistful eye on it when Mr. Krug came.

"Don't touch that, Mr. Sheriff. I will hold you liable on your bond," said Mr. Krug. "That storage house and contents belong to the Fred Krug Brewing company, not the Western Amusement company, and your warrant is to search the premises and property of the Western Amusement company, W. W. Cole, manager."

The sheriff acknowledged the fact and made his return on the warrant before night.

Question of Validity of License.
The action of Davis is a continuation of the fight made by some of the residents of Benson against the selling of liquor at the park. Davis was one of the remonstrators who objected to a license when it was granted by the Benson city council in a midnight session June 2. At that time the dissenters gave notice of an appeal from the council's action. The council, however, did not revoke the license and the sale of liquor has continued by virtue of the vote issuing it. Though it is asserted that the clerk did not actually issue a license to Mr. Cole, Cole says, however, that he has all along believed that he was acting within the law and that he had a legal right to sell liquor in the park.

"I don't have to run this park. I can shut it up tomorrow if I want to and be ahead of the game," said Mr. Krug. "It has cost me $10,000 this year due to the bad weather, but the first big day of the year the few dissenters come in with their writ of prohibition."

Insult to the Pienickers.
"I consider the serving of the search warrant at Krug park just at the height of our festivities as a direct insult to the grocers and butchers and we most certainly resent it," said Harry Fischer, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association. "We were not violating the law, those grocers or butchers who drank beer did not know that it was sold illegally, if such was the case, and there was no call whatever, as far as I see, for the serving of the writ during our annual picnic."

"A reformer is a reformer all the time, not on the days when the Omaha grocers and butchers have their picnic. If liquor was sold illegally at the park on the day of the picnic it was sold illegally for several weeks. Why could not Thomas have got his work at some other time. There was no need of rushing in there just when a picnic was being held. With a great many of our people the one day in the year they do not work is the day of the picnic. They go to the picnic to have a good time, some of them to drink a little beer, some of them to get with the intention of taking a drink and then just in the middle of the fun this outrage is perpetrated."

"Why, when I got back down town people asked me what was the trouble at, Krug park. If the grocers and butchers got in a fight among themselves, I asked them what they meant and they said that they saw the officers going to the park and thought that anarchy had broken out. So you see how it goes. The grocers and butchers get a black eye when we didn't do anything at all."

"We will continue to sell liquor at Krug park as long as they continue to sell it there without a license," said Thomas Friday. "In case three or four seizures do not break up the sale of it we will get an injunction to prevent their selling it."

RAIN HOODOO DISAPPEARS

Grocers and Butchers Have a Great Time at Their Annual Picnic.

EIGHT THOUSAND VISIT PARK

Musical Program an Interesting One and Highly Appreciated—Picnic the Most Successful One Held by Association.

Grocers and butchers and their clerks, together with their mothers, wives and sweethearts, locked the doors of their places of business yesterday and held an all day picnic at Krug park with ideal weather, the old rain hoodoo going to the rear. Over 5,000 admissions were sold during the day and evening and the resort was crowded with throngs of happy pleasure seekers.

No special program of races and sports was prepared by the association management for the amusement of the picnicers as in other years, and they were left free to do as they pleased. The children rode on the merry-go-round and the circle swing, the young people took a ride on the roller coaster and through the "mill," the older people visited wonderland and amused themselves as children in the palace of crazy mirrors, and all witnessed the free acts, ate ice cream from cones and drank red lemonade. It was one grand good time from early in the forenoon until the last car left at night and every picnicer had a good time.

Finn's Greater Omaha band played all afternoon and evening and the vociferous applause given to the proclamation number, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," to the last, "The Star Spangled Banner," showed that it was appreciated. Ten numbers were given by the band in each concert, but those receiving the heartiest applause were the songs by the band's soloist, Miss Lydia Pallansch. Miss Pallansch has a remarkable voice and could be heard above all the din of the crowd and with the band accompaniment.

How Dry I Am.
Most of the picnicers took along their dinners, but the crowd was so great that the little picnic groups could get off in secreted groups by themselves. In the height of the festivities the arm of the law fell with a heavy thud and the sale of the beer and other drinks was shut off with one fell swoop, much to the chagrin of some of those who were having a little better time in their way than others, but the shadow of gloom did not last long. A bunch of "good fellows" got together and sang "How Dry I Am" and settled themselves to eat ice cream and drink pop and everything moved off as before and the picnic came to a close in a blaze of glory.

H. Fischer, secretary of the Grocers and Butchers' association, was enthusiastic over the picnic and declared that the attendance was the largest they had ever had.

"This is the fourteenth annual picnic of our association, but we have broken all records," said Secretary Fischer. "Eight thousand admissions is 'going some.' I want to tell you, and it proves that it is best to patronize home industry. Heretofore it has generally been our custom to go to some outside point, but we decided this year that we had just as good places for a picnic right at home and so held it here. It is an unqualified success, so much so that we have decided to hold another in the fall."

NOVEL SUIT COMES TO CLOSE

Wife Pays Premium on Policy, with Husband, Supposed Dead, Still Living.

The suit of Mrs. Cora E. Rumery against the Equitable Life Assurance society, which attracted considerable attention because Mrs. Rumery's husband was found alive a few months after a jury had decreed him legally dead, has been dismissed on stipulations filed in district court Friday. Mrs. Rumery was awarded $2,500 on her husband's life insurance policy because he had been missing more than seven years. After the verdict was received she failed to pay the annual premium last January and the policy lapsed. The finding of

RED TAPE DELAYS THE FLAG

Treasury Department Must Wire Instructions Before Ensign Can Be at Half Mast.

Replying to numerous inquiries as to why the flags on the big federal buildings were not at half mast Wednesday as a token of respect to the memory of former President Cleveland, Colonel Barrows, custodian of the building said:

"Under treasury department rules we cannot half mast the flag for any person, no matter how distinguished, or upon any occasion without instructions from the department and these are always wired from Washington. There is but one exception to this rule. The regulation regarding flags reads:

"The national ensign will be displayed at half mast on Memorial Day, May 30, on all public buildings under the control of the treasury department, and at such times and on such buildings as may from time to time be directed by executive order.

The wisdom of the regulation becomes apparent when we remember that endless complications would ensue if half mastings of the flags and draping the buildings were left to the discretion of the custodians in charge of the 469 odd federal buildings in this country. The department properly reserves the right to name the occasion upon which these tributes of respect shall be paid. The wire received by me Wednesday night was as follows:

Washington, D. C., June 24, 1908. Custodian court house and Postoffice, Omaha, Neb. In accordance with the proclamation of the president of the United States you are directed to display the flag at half mast for a period of thirty days, as a mark of respect to the memory of the late Grover Cleveland, former president of the United States. Heekman, Winthrop, assistant secretary of the treasury.

A similar telegraph order was received Thursday morning from the War department directing that the flags on the army building at Omaha be displayed at half staff for a period of thirty days.

GAS CHEATED IN DEADLY WORK

Victim Found Just in Time to Make Resuscitation Possible.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Friday morning patrolman Wenj found Jacob Mares, for many years proprietor of a barber shop and cigar store at 151 South Thirteenth street, lying unconscious on the counter in his store, fully dressed. An investigation disclosed the fact that four gas burners of a gas stove were turned on full force. He was hurriedly removed to the Omaha General hospital and attended by Police Surgeon Harris, who resuscitated Mares after several hours.

It is thought that Mares intended to commit suicide, owing to his being heavily in debt. He will recover.

for a city of its size. Until the RALSTON project was launched, no interest or set of interests had put up any money or were making a united effort to secure manufacturing enterprises.
