the Fifteenth judicial district, which will be composed of but thirty-five delegates. The representation has been figured by Mr. Wadsworth that one delegate to every 50 votes cast for Claude R. Porter, democratic candidate for governor, at the general election in 1906. On this basis the nine counties composing the district are entitled to the following representation in the convention: Audubon, two; Cass, three; Fremont, four; Harrison, five; Mills, three; Montgomery, two; Page, four; Pottawattamie, eight; Shelby, four.

Up to date there has been little talk as who is likely to be the democratic candidate and it is not likely there will be any rush for the nomination. The democratic nomination in the Fifteenth judicial district is more or less an empty honor, as the district is strongly republican. The names of Emmet Tinley and John P. Organ of this city have been mentioned, but it is not known whether either of them would accept the nomination.

COURT ORDER IS TOO SLOW Contractor Finishes Work Before Cons stable Can Serve the Injunction on Him,

Justice of the Peace George Plambeck of Millard is a rival of "Shudge" Altstadt in an effort to maintain the dignity of the justice court. He did not, like Little Bismarck, reverse the supreme court, but he went almost as far. He issued an injunction against the county board to prevent it from proceeding with some grading it was doing in Millard. The injunction was the outcome of a local fight. One faction wanted the grading to be done on one papers on the contractor. While the court was waiting for the officer to get back to own, the contractor got busy and did the work. When the constable showed up, there was nothing to enjoin, as the street had already been graded.

HOODOO NUMBER IS WORKING

Earnie Wilson Escapes from Chain Gang Only to Encounter Man with Razor.

What can one expect when a man lives at such a number? Think of it-313 North Thirteenth street

Earnie Wilson, colored, escaped from tha

etty chain gang yesterday afternoon and bent his steps toward his home at the bove mentioned number. Arriving there he found-so he says-Carl Figher in his home where there was no one elsg-present except Mrs. Wilson.

Words were exchanged, p rotechnical words quite in keeping with the season, But Mr. Fisher had a razor and he drew his weapon. Thereupon Mr. Wilson fled, running wildly up the street calling for elp. At Thirteenth and Chicago streets Fisher caught up with him and swung his razor, apparently reaching for Wilson's broat. He slushed him across the left arm above the elbow, making an ugly wound in which Dr. H. P. Benjamin took several stitches.
