THE BEE TALKS WITH DENVER

Gets Our Jim and Mayor Speer on New Long Distance Wire.

DAHLMAN BUSIEST OF ALL MEN

Takes About Ten or Twelve Hours to Get Him, So Rapidly Does He Flit from Place to Place.

If you want to know for yourself how busy and important a man James C. Dahlman is just call up Denver by long distance telephone and try to land him.

The Bee put in a call for the mayor Tuesday afternoon, primarily as a means of testing the new service between Omaha and Denver by the American Telephone and Telegraph company and messengers were put on the trail. Within two hours or so Mrs. Dahlman sent word over the 'phone that the mayor was not at the hotel, but had been in counsel with other democratic leaders all day. Efforts were persisted in until shortly after noon Wednesday, when as a member of The Bee staff in the editorial rooms was in conversation with Mayor Speer of Denver, a voice broke in at the Colorado end of the line, saying:

"Hold on, here's Mayor Dahlman."

Sure enough it was he. Had he casually dropped in on Mayor Speer or had he simply touched that one high spot on his endless swing around the circuit of caucuses? No matter, it was Our Jim.

Too Busy to Talk Much.

"Mighty glad to talk with The Bee, only can't talk much; too many things to do," he said, chopping off his words as if he were short on breath.

"No, nothing in report me for vice president; wouldn't have job. Prefer secretary interior. Can't tell who be vice president yet. Everything lovely. Guess you know that, though, from your dispatches."

"Our dispatches say you are the big noise out there. How about it?"

"Well, say, you can tell 'em Jims haven't been crowded out by Jacks as yet."

"Did that snow of yesterday have any real significance or direct bearing on the convention?"

"You haven't heard of any snow at Fairview, have you?"

And then the mayor fled. Said he must hurry to see some of "the boys."

Speer Says Jim Is Big Hit.

"Put it down from me that Mayor Jim is all right He is the whole show out here in Denver and so busy that he doesn't know whether he is coming or going most of the time."

This was the greeting of Robert W. Speer, mayor of Denver and chairman of the reception committee for the democratic national convention.

"I would not trade places with Mayor Jim for the reason that I like Denver too well and would not leave the city for any city in the nation, but if Dahlman would consent to live in Denver I might be induced to abdicate in his favor. To tell the truth, however, I have seen but little of Dahlman since he came to Denver, he has been so everlastingly busy."

The American Telephone and Telegraph company has never had Denver on its direct line before Tuesday. There has always been a gap between Chicago and Denver and that gap was filled by connecting up yesterday. It goes by way of Kansas city and is about 700 miles from Omaha to Denver. It makes an epoch in the development of telephonic service of the country and is regarded as a great advantage to commercial interests. This service lets the company not only into Denver, but into Colorado Springs, Pueblo and other Colorado points.

The rates from Omaha to Denver are $4.25 for the first three minutes and $1.75 a minute for time over three minutes. To the other Colorado points the original rate is $4.

SECOND PLACE EAST OR SOUTH

Vice President May Come from New York or Kentucky, Says Hitchcock.

The democratic convention in Denver did not possess attraction sufficient to hold Congressman Hitchcock, who returned Wednesday morning tired and glad to get away, he says. The congressman had charge of the allotting of press seats and having finished his work, returned home. He says he gave out tickets for 375 desk seats to the newspaper men and about 300 seats without desks.

"The convention is all Bryan's and he will unquestionably be nominated on the first ballot," said Mr. Hitchcock. "I was so busy that I did not have time to talk with many of the delegates and know absolutely nothing about the feeling of Tammany or the McCarren or Coler factions.

"Of course the vice presidency is still in a problematical state largely, but I feel sure that the nomination will go to the east or south. Judge Gray of Delaware can have it if he wants it, otherwise it will probably go to New York or Kentucky. Ollie James of Kentucky is a strong candidate for the place, while New York has Lieutenant Governor Chanler, former Congressman Towne and City Comptroller Henry A. Metz. Connecticut also has a strong candidate in the person of a wealthy manufacturer.

"I saw but little of Mayor Dahlman in Denver. He was busy all the time I was there, and I was corralled in my room in the hotel by the newspaper men from morning till night and I did not have the opportunity to see anyone."

OMAHA AUTO PARTY STUCK

Car is Disabled, but Experience is Not Widely Aired When Men Reach Home.

Though they have not said a great deal about their recent auto trip W. H. Bucholz and Ward Burgess of the Omaha National bank had one, as this clipping from the Fremont Herald of Monday indicates:

A big six-cylinder Franklin tourist car is up under the bank on Elm creek, disabled and stripped. At least it was there at the last report. Its occupants, W. H. Bucholz and Ward Burgess of the Omaha National bank, with a banking friend from New York, an Omaha grain man and the driver, all boarded the good, old-fashioned railroad train for Omaha at Fremont, leaving the car until it could be rescued. The party had been out on a tour, visiting David City and Wahoo, and on the way from the latter place to Fremont the car found its grief in the Elm creek cut.

HAY COOKERS VERSUS GAS

Alfalfa Burners Are Making a Hit with the Women.

CLABAUGH ADMITS IT IS SO

Yet the Omaha Gas Company Has Not Decided to Go Out of Business on This Account.

While the gas company has been dealt a telling blow by the women of Omaha doing their summer cooking with hay, the ice companies have begun to feel the decrease in demand for ice because the woman have a system of keeping meats with fern leaves.

"Hay cookers" are increasing in number at an alarming rate in Omaha, according to G. W. Clabaugh, general manager of the Omaha Gas company, and while the women use a little gas to give the food a start, they then place the pots, kettles and baking pans in a box around which they have packed hay such as is fed to stock and worn on hats. Those who are using the cookers declare them to be "simply grand" and "Cook With Hay" has become about as common talk in the street cars as "Cook With Gas."

Mrs. Florence Carter, 1908 North Twenty-eighth street, has a cooking machine made of pine boards, hay and excelsior. She thus describes her method of cooking:

"This hot weather—when it is hot—cooking with a range is simply absurd; gas stoves are a boon to womankind and make it a little better, electricity will do only for the poor-rich, while any one can be comfortable if they cook with hay as a summer kitchen is not even needed.

"For instance, I wanted to cook a chicken on the Fourth of July. When it was cool, during the early hours of the morning, I started chicken to baking in my gas stove oven. Just about the time it was warmed through, I shut the chicken up in the hay-press cooker. Then I could go about my work and not have to watch it, go out for lunch or shopping, help the children shoot firecrockers or anything else, knowing that the trusty hay cooker would bake the chicken perfectly in time for dinner. I boil rice or any other breakfast food which has to be cooked and can cook anything from veal, eingemachtes to Malard a la Richelieu.

"No, you cannot make Nesselrode pudding or freeze ice cream in a hay press."

The blow to the ice man promises to be about as telling. In delivering ice several employes of the ice companies have found the boxes full of fern leaves and meat under them keeping without paying 50 cents per pound for frozen Missouri water. The scheme is said to have been planned in cold blood by a prominent Omaha woman, who recently visited England. This is what she is said to have told W. R. Wood of the People's Ice company:

"In England fresh meats, butter and fruits are kept in fern leaves better than they could be kept in ice. On the Isle of Man fresh herrings are packed in ferns and arrive on the market in as fresh condition as when they were shipped. This led me to believe that fern leaves would keep beefsteak—and they do."

Mr. Wood is making a study of fern leaves and may put in a fern orchard in the event the demand merits the expenditure. He says there is salt in the fern leaves and no such a thing as larvae or maggots will eat a beefsteak with fern leaves wrapped around it.
