GARFIELD ADMIRES THE WEST

Secretary of Interior Greatly Impressed with Work of Reclaiming Semi-Arid Land.

"Secretary Garfield was wonderfully impressed with the progress the west has been making in reclaiming the semi-arid lands," said E. F. Simpson, secretary of the National Reclamation company and passenger agent of the Northwestern, who has just returned from a trip with the secretary through the irrigated sections tributary to the Northwestern river.

The secretary drove over the irrigated section of the Big Horn Basin with P. S. Burtis, passenger agent of the Burlington, then went to the Black Hills and Belle Fourche projects. He then inspected the new North Platte irrigation schemes and Sunday was at Casper, Wyo.

From Casper the party started for the Pathfinder dam, where the secretary saw the storage for the North Platte scheme and from the Pathfinder dam it is the intention to drive across Wyoming to the Union Pacific river.

"The trip over the Belle Fourche country was made in carriages, with Senator Gamble of South Dakota and Beth Bullock pointing out the places of interest," said Mr. Miller.

HOTEL MEN LAG FOR OMAHA

Delegates Who Go to Deadwood Convention Will Boost for Gate City.

To make everyone comfortable the Omahans have engaged special cars for the trip to Deadwood August 4 to attend the meeting to be held there August 4, 5 and 6.

The United States circuit court of appeals has re-certified the Simpson Hallowell case back to the United States supreme court on a statement of law as required by the supreme court.

The government held to the theory that while the Indian was yet an allottee of public lands of the government in Nebraska, he was amenable only to the Nebraska state laws for violation of what prohibitory laws were in vogue in the state.

The circuit court of appeals certified the case up to the supreme court upon both points of fact and law. The supreme court remanded the case again on the ground that it could pass only upon questions of law and not of fact.

ENOCH ARDEN CASE AVERTED

Guileless Lover Wanted License to Wed Woman Whose Husband Was Only Missing.

Charles E. Puray, marriage license clerk, has averted another Enoch Arden calamity. A man, entering his office Monday and asked, with emphasis, for a license. His name was George Simpson, he said.

"What Enoch Arden?" asked the clerk. "Eva Simpson?" "Same as yours?" "Oh, no, it's Eva Johnson now, but it's going to be Eva Simpson."

"Has she ever been married before?" "Yes, I think so." "Divorced?" "No, not that I know of." "Well, what are you going to do?" asked Mr. Puray.

"What Enoch Arden? Why, her husband has been gone for four years and she thinks he's never coming back. That wouldn't be Enoch Arden?"

"When he realized the danger that he had just escaped, he left the office in a hurry to avoid the clutches of the law."

U. P. WILL RESIST RULING

Railroad Will Fight to Last Court Decision on Elevation.

ISSUE BROAD IN APPLICATION Not Only Involves Right to Pay Allowance to Elevators, but Affects Relation Between Railways and Grain Centers.

The Union Pacific will contest the recent decision in the grain elevator case in which the right to pay elevation charges was denied. The decision involved the right of the Union Pacific to pay the Peavy Elevator company 1/2 of 1 cent for each 100 pounds of grain delivered by the Union Pacific at the Missouri river.

The case in question has a broader significance than the mere question of the right to pay an elevation allowance. It also affects the relations between the railroads and the grain centers, as well as the rate making power of the Interstate Commerce commission.

When the courts first said the Union Pacific had a right to pay an elevation allowance at the Missouri river, the right being based on the special benefit to the road in getting a speedy return of its empty cars, the grain men of Chicago and St. Louis at once set about to get a similar concession. St. Louis demanded a reduction in the through rates from the Missouri river and points west thereof on grain to St. Louis and points further east.

Already Gave an Allowance. The railroads had already given an allowance of 1/2 of 1 cent at St. Louis on grain to points south of the Ohio river. To this the Chicago dealers also objected.

The question revolves around the point as to whether a railroad company might elevate grain through its own elevators free of charge. If it has that right, it could also hire that service done and pay for it. The Interstate Commerce commission has ruled that a railroad company might not pay an elevation allowance on grain passing through an elevator owned and controlled by the owner of the grain, when such grain is held more than ten days, and that a railroad company shall not pay the owner of grain an allowance on grain passing through an elevator when such grain is barred by the provision of the first ruling.

L. S. REED RETURNS WELL MAN

He and Mrs. Reed Back from Europe—American Workman Ahead of European.

"It's the old story, but was surely impressed upon me this time that the more a person sees of the foreign countries the better he likes this country of ours," said Lewis S. Reed, who, with Mrs. Reed, has returned from a trip of a year and a half abroad in the hope of benefiting Mr. Reed's health.

"The people of this country should surely be well satisfied with their lot and especially the laboring classes, for they are a better fed and a better looking class of people than I was able to discover anywhere we went. Any discontent in the laboring people of the United States might have been surely unfounded. I might go into detail to explain wherein they are better off, but the difference is so marked there is no need of comparison."

"We spent most of our time in southern France, visiting leisurely Italy and Germany, seeking the climate best suited for a sick man. The people over there don't seem to be able to realize the magnitude of this great country of ours. When I would tell them I lived at Omaha in the middle of the United States and that we were 1,500 miles from the ocean in either direction they did not seem to be able to comprehend it."

Mr. Reed has brought back a large collection of photographic views of points of interest in the old world, which he intends to present to the Omaha Public Library, that they may be put where the children may see them.

FRIED EGGS AND ICE CREAM

This Constitutes Breakfast for Blushing Bride and Groom at Restaurant.

It was very evident that they were on their wedding trip and he was blushing as confusedly as she when they entered the cafe to celebrate with their wedding breakfast.

"We want a wedding breakfast for two," he told the waitress. "What'll it be?" asked that dignitary. "I'll take some ice cream," said she, and blushed again for no particular reason.

"Umm-mm. I'll have two fried eggs," said the groom with dignity. "That's all," said the groom. He traded one of his eggs for half of her ice cream and they were satisfied.
