

IRISH KILT AGAIN

Action of Medieval Official Brings About Peculiar Revival. BAR ON OLD CELTIC COSTUME. Black Rod Declares it is Not Proper Dress. POVERTY WIDESPREAD IN DUBLIN. One-Half of Population Die in Public Institutions.

GROWTH OF NEW ORANGEMEN

Independent Modern Organization is as Strong as Older Order—Nationalist Magistrates Are in Majority. DUBLIN, August 1.—(Special.)—Black Rod, the official of the House of Lords, of whose existence most people are unaware, and who recently declared that the ancient Celtic kilt was not a proper dress for visitors to the British upper house, has given a great impetus to the revival of the ancient Irish costume in everyday wear.

IRISH KILT TAKES STEADFAST

The Irish dress of course is the ancient Celtic kilt. It differs very little from the Scottish kilt, except that instead of glittering with all the colors of the rainbow and a great many that the rainbow never knew, it is uniformly of a saffron hue. It is topped by a small jacket of black material with buttons of old Celtic design bearing a representation of the Irish harp. The shawl, or plaid, is fastened at the shoulder by the Tara brooch. Mr. Hazelton replied that although the Irish dress had been prohibited by English penal laws in the sixteenth century he did not know that these laws were still effective, and drew attention to the fact that officers in British regiments in their uniforms, which of course include the kilt, are frequent visitors to the House of Lords. "Black Rod" has not replied, but if an apology is not forthcoming, Mr. Hazelton intends to raise the question in Parliament.

Half of Deaths in Institutions.

Some very disquieting facts are disclosed in the annual report on the health of Dublin, which has just been published. According to the health statistics 5,943 of the 2,447 deaths, which took place in the Irish metropolis during the year, occurred in workhouses, hospitals, lunatic asylums, prisons or other public institutions. This is 47.7 per cent and it compares very unfavorably with the 18 per cent, who die in such institutions in the great English towns. Nearly one-third of the total population of Dublin are returned as laborers, hawkers, or porters in other words, as belonging to the most poverty-stricken classes in the community—and the death rate among this class last year was 21.9 per thousand, as compared with 23.1 for the entire city. The death of proper housing accommodation, as disclosed by the report, is amazing. For 55,583 families there are only 22,081 houses. It must be remembered that all the houses in Dublin were originally built for only one family. The effect of over crowding is shown by the fact that one-tenth of all the deaths in Dublin last year were caused by phthisis.

Big Strike is Averted.

Lord MacDonnell, who until a few weeks ago was Sir Antony MacDonnell, has signified his retirement from the post of under secretary by another act of peace-making. He has succeeded in averting a great strike of the Dublin dockers, which would have paralyzed the trade of the port. "Sir Antony," as he will always be called in Ireland, has made a great record as a peacemaker since he joined the Irish administration in 1896. The Sinn Feiners have to depend on a few weekly papers now for their publicity, and they complain that they are rigidly boycotted in the way of news by the nationalist papers, while the Unionist papers only ridicule them or distort their doings. The capital for the paper has been subscribed in small sums by the supporters of the movement.

Sinn Fein Newspapers.

Arrangements have been practically completed for the publication in Dublin early next year of a Sinn Fein daily newspaper, of which Mr. Arthur Griffith, one of the founders of the Sinn Fein movement, will be the editor-in-chief. The Sinn Feiners have to depend on a few weekly papers now for their publicity, and they complain that they are rigidly boycotted in the way of news by the nationalist papers, while the Unionist papers only ridicule them or distort their doings. The capital for the paper has been subscribed in small sums by the supporters of the movement.

MESSAGES OF CONGRATULATION

Republican Candidate Receives Many Letters and Telegrams Commending His Address of Acceptance.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. 1.—"Speaking generally, I believe the greatest question now before the American public is the improvement of the administration of justice, civil and criminal, both in the matter of its prompt dispatch and the cheapening of its use."

DELAY IS GREAT EVIL

"There seems to be no absolute remedy. The only thing you can do is to render the administration of justice as prompt as possible. The evil is in the delay more than anything else. One of the demagogic arguments—and it is a demagogic argument, and I have heard it so often in the legislature, when the proposition is made to have only one appeal in cases involving less than $500, is, will you deny to the poor man the right to obtain the judgment of the supreme court of the United States? There was never a more spacious argument. The wealthy man can afford to wait for years for that $500 and can afford to carry the case on, but the poor man cannot do it. That $500, he needs, and needs it at once. It is better that the case should be decided against him than that he should lose five or six years and finally win, after he has paid out the amount in attorneys' fees."

MESSAGES OF CONGRATULATION

Mr. Taft's message of acceptance was received by the Virginia Bar association, which also was addressed by President Meredith and former Senator William Lindsay of Kentucky and New York. The meeting will begin Monday and Mr. Taft expects to attend several of its sessions.
