FRACTICAL AID TO CLUB WORK

Mrs. Mary I. Wood, Bureau Manager, Makes Report of Its Scope-Clubs Begin to Appreciate Its Value.

There is probably no more valuable department in the organization of the General Federation of Women's Clubs than the bureau of information, although club women generally are only beginning to appreciate its value. The following discussion by a prominent club woman recently is worthy the consideration of all:

"It is time for club women to realize that the duplication of work is a serious waste of strength and ability. Librarians have told me that year after year busy women spend hours in searching out material for papers that are read before their clubs, and then filed away out of reach of other women who go over the same ground. 'With a central bureau or committee of practical kind such fundamental information as to laws, experiments and printed opinions of educators would have been comparatively simple matter to remember one. Thousands of women have testified to this. Since the establishment of the bureau less than two years ago more than ten clubwomen alone, while many others have been received from businss men, editors, lecturers, societies, associations, and many others. The fact is significant enough to Tuesday at the Field club in shonor of prove beyond argument the wisdom of establishing the bureau. But the real tes has been its practical usefulness. The correspondence speaks also for this phase of the question, since it is obvious that unless the bureau had met the needs of the applicents no such number of women would have sought its help. Ten thousand letters mean ten thousand needs, and through the courtesy of experts, teachers, professors, publishers, editors, as well as the individual aid of the officers and committee members of the General Federation and many other organizations, the bureau has been able to give the needed asistance.

of the bureau the mare convinced we have become that there is yet much ground un touched, which the bureau should cover We have only begun in a small way to show what may be accomplished. It should and must be a tower of strength to the General Federation, whose servant it is, It should serve the officers and chairmen of the state federations, clubs, and individ ual members the place where help may be sought. It should encourage the weary, hearten up the sick, and revive the dying club. It is from the active, alert, progressive club that we get our inspiration and strength. It is to the club needing suggestions, direction and encouragement that we give aid. The officers and chairmen of committees are in a sense experts and by their superior intelligence the plans are laid out and the policies determined upon. But these officers have too great a burden of club work to have to deal with the great mass of details which devolves upon the execution of these plans. These expert leaders should be saved as much of the routine as possible in order that the entire federation may have the benefit of the?" best thought and service."
