FAME OF AK-SAR-BEN SPREADS

Unique Work of Quivera's King Hailed in Distant Parts.

RAY STATE PAPER PRAISES IT

Hyde Park Journal Recites Incidents in the Entertainment of General Carrington on His Recent Western Trip.

The fame of Ak-Sar-Ben knows no bounds, as is shown by the following from the Hyde Park Journal of Hyde Park, Mass., under date of August 1:

The press announcement that W. J. Bryan was a guest of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben at Omaha, Neb., had no other political significance than that whenever a distinguished citizen visits in his own state.

The order itself, as reported at its military fetes, June 22, drew numbers 34 members of the most influential business men of the city and its annual parades and entertainments each autumn are eagerly to be appreciated by the most brilliant antecedents of the New Orleans Mardi Gras.

The Omaha papers of June 29 note in full the special mention of our fellow citizen General Henry H. Carrington, U. S. A., returned when he alighted from the train at the Huntington station enroute Sheridan, Wyo., to attend, as special guest of that city, a memorial celebration in honor of the surviving veterans of his command, when in conflict with Red Cloud's Sioux warriors, thousands of miles, he spent that country for settlement.

Besides the veterans themselves, few in number, there were as participants a general number, notably Samuel Gibson, S. P. Pease and J. C. Larned, these were as participants in the military exercises of the department of the Missouri, city officials, Gould Lincoln and H. J. Penfold, representative of the governors of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, to receive him as guest.

At a military banquet immediately held at the Omaha club under their auspices ex-Senator and General Manderson was toastmaster, and General Carrington was the guest of honor.

General Carrington was introduced by the announcement of having received his first commission in the civil war at his hands in Ohio and that "no other man has ever held a commission in the west to civilization."

In response General Carrington gave in detail his account of being ordered from the army of the Cumberland in 1862 to take command of the east district of Nebraska, and that on the march from Fort Leavenworth to the old Fort Kearney, opposite Grand Island, there was not a white man in the country.

Quotation from The Bee.
The Omaha Bee said: "General Carrington's 26 years of light on his shoulders. He gave a vigorous speech, humorous, humorous and then patriotic and closed with a reference to a pledge exacted of himself and schoolmates at Fort Leavenworth in 1862 by a visitor, who afterward proved to be John (Osawatimbe) Brown, that when they should meet in the future they would do so as free men and as equals."

General Carrington was cheered to the echo when he added, "John Brown's body lies in the march on, and Nebraska, among the earliest to stand at the side of the movement that meant liberty for all the world and meant eventually universal peace."

General Carrington was given a special salute by the mayor of Grand Forks, N. D., Thomas and his address was a high tribute to the progress and enterprise of Nebraska and to the magnificent spirit of hospitality and comradeship of the Ak-Sar-Ben."

Mr. Dietz placed the button of the order upon the coat lapel of the general as a fully introduced knight, and General Manderson, turning as he gave the closing address, announced his first commission in the civil war in 1862, the soil of Nebraska, then sterile, sent more crops to the world than the value of all the gold mined in the United States in a single year.

TURKISH VEIL IN AMERICA
Mohammedan Women Drop It and Fair Ones of This Country Adopt It.

"The laying aside of the veil by Turkish women will no doubt work great revolution in the Orient," said a prominent visitor to the orient last winter. "Every Mohammedan woman wears a veil on the street and in public places. The veil of the poorer women is black and made of coarse cloth. The veil worn by the women of high class is of fine silk gauze and usually white."

Mr. Brandeis, while in the orient, bought a doll which in its dress is an exact model of the Mohammedan women. The veil is fastened just about on a line with the eyebrows. It is of such material that the wearer can see out, though her features are completely concealed from observation. The back of the head and the neck are concealed by a heavier cloth fastened on top of the head and around the waist. A blanket-like robe fastened around the body somewhat above the waist and reaching to the ground completes the costume. Necklaces, bracelets and all sorts of bangles and jewelry are much affected by the Turkish women.

"In all the time I was in the east I never saw a Mohammedan woman without her veil," says Mr. Brandeis. "The Turks are extremely jealous of their womenfolk and I cannot see that the action of the women in dispensing with their veils could result in anything but wholesale murder and suicide. According to the dispatches they have thrown away their veils and are going about with smiling faces."

While the Turkish beauties, whose charms have been hidden so jealously for centuries from any eyes but their husband's, are throwing aside their veils members of the fair sex in enlightened America are taking up the discarded countenance concealers. Those of the feminine world who keep an eye constantly to the kaleidoscope of fashion know that the "double veil" is now the correct thing. It is sweeping down upon the world of women with a force said to be seven times more terrible than that of the merry widow hat, which today is and tomorrow is cut down and withered. Indeed, the merry widow bonnet has already withered; it has become a back number almost before a clear could be named after it. It will not be so with the double veil, say the fashion oracles.

At the up-to-date shops of Omaha, where the latest "creations" and "bonbons" are displayed before the longing eyes of the dear creatures the double veil is already on view. Of course, it is true that the double veil is designed for automobile wear. A demonstration made by an accommodating young woman in one of the stores showed her, when the veil was adjusted, a most charming creature. First you put on a big broad brimmed hat, of course, girls, this is just between us, then you place the veil over the top, draw it in loose, but graceful folds down and zigzag across the face so that the folds just rest against the bridge of the nose. Now the triangular opening formed by the brim of the hat and the folds of the veil discloses a charming breadth of brow and two tantalizing eyes, leaving the other features in that mystery which abounds in charms.

One of these veils measures eight and a half feet in length by three feet in width. They generally come in two shades such as brown and tan, black and white, blue and green or brown and white.

Where did the double veil originate? If it is a Frenchman of whom you ask this question, it is his cue to purse his lips, shrug his shoulders, throw out his hands and smile. Who can tell the course of a woman's whims? What she wants she will have—is it not so? Yes.

The veil is useful as well as beautiful. It keeps dust and gasoline smoke out of mouth and nose and pores. And if the

IMMENSE SUPPLIES FOR ARMY

Forage Bids Are Called For by Chief Quartermaster of Missouri Department.

Major D. E. McCarthy, chief quartermaster Department of the Missouri, has issued a call for proposals for the semi-annual supplies of forage for the use of the United States army for the Department of the Missouri, bids for which will be opened at the office of the chief quartermaster in Omaha on August 12. The proposals contemplate 25,719,000 pounds of oats; 2,835,000 pounds of bran; 23,340,000 pounds of baled hay; 450,000 pounds of loose hay and 7,362,000 pounds of straw or hay for bedding.

The supplies are for the several posts of the department, and include Forts Crook, Omaha, Robinson and Fort Union. The quartermaster's depot in Nebraska; Forts D. A. Russell, Washakie and Mackenzie, Wyoming; Leavenworth and Riley in Kansas; Des Moines in Iowa and Meade in South Dakota.

The proposals call for the delivery of the supplies not later than October 1, 1908, and the cutting of hay on the military reservation of Fort Riley for that post under certain conditions. Bids must also provide for delivery in government storehouses and bins or other places on the military reservations as may be designated by the officers in charge at the several posts.

Major James H. Erwin of the adjutant general's department, Washington, D. C., has been assigned to duty as assistant adjutant general of the Department of the Missouri. His arrival at army headquarters in Omaha is expected daily.

Lieutenant G. R. Allen, formerly of the Sixteenth infantry, but now of the Sixth field artillery, is a visitor at army headquarters on leave of absence. Lieutenant Allen was formerly connected with the Department of the Missouri headquarters as an aide-de-camp.

Eight applicants for position in the medical reserve corps of the regular army are taking the examination at the army building, Omaha. Eleven applicants had expected to take the examination, but two of them failed to present themselves and their names were dropped from the list.

Of the applicants seven are from Nebraska, two from South Dakota and two from Iowa. Such of the applicants as pass the preliminary examination here will be assigned to the medical reserve corps and will be sent to the Army Medical School at Washington for further study for eight months. Those attaining honor in their examinations will be commissioned as first lieutenants in the army medical corps and assigned to duty at once.

Captain T. B. Hacker, purchasing and chief commissary United States army, has been directed to inspect a lot of 100,000 pounds of corn beef for the use of the navy. It will be shipped from South Omaha as soon as the inspection is completed to San Francisco.

NAVY LOOKS GOOD ON PAPER
Pictures in Nice Book Too Alluring for Young Men to Resist.

Two young men, little more than boys, stood on the postoffice steps poring over a book. They wore overalls and brogans. They looked as though they had lately tired of farm work. The book over which they were poring seemed to be of surpassing interest. Still it had no lurid cover and therefore was not a chronicle of the adventures of Deadwood Dick or Nick Carter. A little eavesdropping solved the problem. The absorbing book was a beautiful and optimistic brochure entitled "The Making of a Man-o-Warman."

It contained lovely illustrations and still more lovely word-pictures of the perpetual holiday which falls to the lot of him who enlists in the navy. One of the boys read: "There is a fascination about being one of the crew of a ship of the United States navy, the navy that carries the Stars and Stripes, the navy that produced a John Paul Jones, a Lawrence, a Decatur, a Perry, a Farragut, a Porter and a Dewey; the navy that gave birth to such expressions as 'I have only begun to fight,' 'Don't give up the ship,' 'We have met the enemy and they are ours,' expressions that will live in the minds of men forever."

According to the book life in Uncle Sam's navy is far better than the delights of owning a private yacht and, of course, less expensive. It is Uncle Sam's one desire to show to the rising generation of men the sights of the world. Among the pleasures which Jack gets, according to the book, are fencing and boxing, music by the ship's band, dancing, minstrel shows, foot ball, base ball, rowing races, use of the ship's boats at the various points of interest visited in foreign lands, sport with rod and rifle, not to mention such simple pleasures as checkers, chess, cards and reading in the ship's library.

"I presume, of course, in the navy? The two young men at any rate did. They stopped reading in the book, gazed into each other's eyes as though they had discovered a hidden treasure. Then they turned and hurried into the federal building."

CAMPAIGN OF PICTURE CARDS

Bryan Has Himself Photographed to Appeal to Everybody.

IN OVERALLS FOR THE WORKMEN

Silk Tite to Catch the Aristocrat and the Good Fellow and Sanction-mongers Are Daily Remembered.

How many votes will a souvenir postal card get for presidential candidates? The coming campaign will feel the effect of a new force in politics. It is the postal card. Omaha is the center for these cards in the west and Omaha artists practically control the "Bryan cards." Though they have cards labeled "Our Next President" for both candidates.

But an enterprising photographer saved the day for Mr. Taft by securing a photograph of him when he visited Omaha last spring and there are about as many Taft cards on the market as Bryan cards. It is safe to say there will be more mailed from Omaha. This campaign with the pictorial postal card is on. Mail sacks of them are going out of Omaha and the wholesalers have orders for something like 600,000 cards. They will be sent by one friend to another, reminding that friend of the preference of others in the matter of presidential candidates.

Appeal to Every Class.
Bryan will be shown leaning on his plow on these cards and they will be sent to the farmer friends of those in the city. For the studious a card will be sent showing Mr. Bryan in his library, while the poultry dealers and fanciers will be reminded that Bryan is their friend by a postal card showing the famous picture showing "Bryan and his son studying poultry culture at Fairview."

Then for the aristocratic element there will be the picture of Mr. Bryan in a high hat, riding in an automobile. Others provided for this purpose show the home of the democratic candidate at Fairview and the famous Guffey memorial window. There are Bryan postal cards on the market for all classes. If the sender wants to entice a real good-to-doer friend to vote for the Nebraska picture postal card of the candidate and a few excerpts from "Thou Shalt Not Steal" is sent. On the other hand, if the friend wants to have a candidate who is a jolly good fellow there are postal cards showing Mr. Bryan shaking hands with Boss Murphy and standing on the end of a Pullman car with Mayor "Jim" Dahman of Omaha.

All the Taft postal cards are much the same. With the same "Judge" or "Banto" Taft, without any frills, memorial windows, automobiles, chicken yards or double-shoed plows as a background.

NURSE TELLS OF BABY'S SUFFERING

Raw with Eczema from Birth—Fearful Itching Lasted for Months—Treatment Futile—Walked the Floor with Him Night and Day—Wasted Away and Got Little Rest.

PERMANENTLY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"The first time I went out as a nurse was when a baby boy was born. He was perfectly raw all over with humor. The doctor gave us some ointment to use, but he got no better. The baby seemed to be suffering terribly, and at times I had to walk the floor with him night and day, sending for my husband to carry him when I could not. His poor little head became covered with crusts and the doctor decided it was eczema. The fearful itching went on for months, and the little fellow was wasted to a skeleton and could get almost no rest. At last I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, bathing him with Cuticura Soap, using just as little water as possible; then I applied the Cuticura Ointment, and gave him small doses of Cuticura Tablets. This relieved him almost at once and in a comparatively short time the baby was quite well. Now, thirteen years after, he is a fine boy, and the high school and he has never had any return of the disease. I have since known of a number of cases of eczema which have been cured by Cuticura, but none, perhaps, as severe as this one. I have always recommended Cuticura most highly for skin troubles, and shall continue to do so. Mrs. Elizabeth Howie, Nurse, 70 Grove St., Chelsea, Mass., Nov. 15, '07."

DISFIGURING Humors, Eczemas, and Itchings Cured by Cuticura.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalded head, all demand a remedy of extraordinary virtue to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills are such standards proven by testimonials of remarkable cures which all else has failed.

Cuticura Soap (6c) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (10c) to Soothe the Itching, and Cuticura Tablets (25c) to Purify the Blood. Cuticura is sold by all druggists. Write for Free Book, "How to Cure Eczema, Itching, and Skin Diseases." Dept. 1000, Boston, Mass., on this Disease.
