CITY RESTS ON OLD TENET

Public Safety Supreme Law, Says Council in Mercer Case.

DEFENSE FOR RAZING HOTEL

S. D. Mercer Company Will Bring Claim for Forty Thousand Dollars Damage for Loss of Cambridge.

"The safety of the public is the supreme law of the land."

On this ancient legal principle, which has become the cornerstone of the laws of many countries, will rest the city council in its defense of the action about to be brought against it for damages by the S. D. Mercer company for the demolition of the company's old Cambridge hotel at Thirtieth street and Capitol avenue. The council will contend that the removal of the old building was necessary for the safety of the public and that the owner of property is not deprived of his constitutional rights when that property is a nuisance and it is ordered abated.

Before the S. D. Mercer company perfects its appeal to the courts it will present to the council a formal claim for $40,000 damages for the razing of its hotel building. Until this claim is actually presented and the same has been brought to his attention, Assistant City Attorney Rine declines to say what he will advise, but he does not hesitate to say that he believes the company has not a case that would stand the test in the courts.

Failed to Appeal Case.

The assistant city attorney says that the council, sitting as the first tribunal, took testimony in the condemnation proceedings against the Cambridge hotel property.

"The owners were given a chance to present their side of the case and they did so," he says. "When the council decided that the building should be razed, the owners should have appealed to the courts, which right is given them. This they failed to do and it is now too late for an appeal to be taken."

"The city charter provides that the council can direct that all and any building within the fire limits, when the same shall have been damaged by fire, decay or otherwise, to the extent of 50 per cent of the value of a similar new building above the foundation, shall be torn down or removed. In the hearing against the Cambridge hotel the preponderance of evidence was that the building had decayed to the extent of 50 per cent of the cost of a similar structure and therefore the council, sitting as a tribunal, ordered its removal."

The Mercer company alleged that the constitutional provision that a man can not be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law was violated by the council in its condemnation of the Cambridge hotel.
