

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Ninety-Three Per Cent of Taxes in This City Have Already Been Paid.

FIVE PER CENT MORE THIS MONTH

Treasurer Anticipates Not Over Two Per Cent Will Go Into the Advertised Delinquent List—Cheaper Are Lights Wanted.

Saturday the deputy city treasurer made the statement that he had already collected 93 per cent of last year's levy. Two months still remain before the new levy becomes due. In that time he expects to bring the collections up to nearly 98 per cent. This indicates a most prosperous condition of the people of South Omaha. The date on which the treasurer expects to make up the delinquent list will be about September 5. Parties not paying before that date will find their property has been advertised under the state law for taxes. The treasurer asked that this fact be announced, as the taxes which are delinquent have in most cases simply been overlooked. "The owners of property often neglect the payment of taxes until the last minute," says the deputy, "not because they cannot pay, but because they have not been reminded of the necessity."

The law anticipates that 10 per cent of the tax will nominally fall to be collected. In South Omaha only 7 per cent remains to be collected. Other indications of good times is the fact that all idle men have found work if they want it. The packing house is short-handed with the increasing live stock receipts.

Big Run of Cattle Expected. During the months of September and October the range cattle will be here in large numbers, and the Union Stock yards officials expect to close up the decrease in cattle, which was noticeable last winter. This cattle decrease is in contrast to the hogs, which have increased over all known records. Sheep will catch up in one week of good runs. The commission men are beginning to feel jubilant that the feeder season is getting well started, and that with increased receipts, prices of all livestock are soaring.

Hogs were up again yesterday; $6.70 was paid for many choice lots. The bulk was up to $6.55. Sheep and cattle were up. With this splendid condition of the markets the call of "hard times" falls on ears far too easy to listen.

Berge Visits City. George M. Berge was in South Omaha yesterday trying to harmonize the warring elements of the South Omaha democratic camp. He visited the offices of the city clerk, the South Omaha livestock commission and several other points. He says he has been misrepresented by parties favoring his opponents at the primaries. He said: "I hoped that the question of county option, or the enforcement of the liquor laws, was a paramount issue in this campaign. I stand much in the same position as Governor Sheldon on the question. I shall endeavor to enforce all laws in a just and reasonable manner. Any attempt to present to overthrow present laws will I think, force many radical measures. I should like to see the election in state politics be governed by the principles involved in the national platform."

Mr. Berge accused his opponents with playing on the county option question, and trimming to the boys. He thought he had made his position sufficiently clear, but if forced into a campaign on the issue he said he would beat no retreat from its principles in the matter.

City Wants Cheaper Lights. Mayor Frank Koutsky announced yesterday morning he expected to open negotiations with the Omaha Electric Light and Power company with the object of reducing the cost of the public lights for South Omaha. At present the city pays on 151 lights at the rate of $97.50 per light, or an annual cost of $14,722.50. The charter provides an expenditure of $15,000, and there has been an overlap in the light fund. This has been made up by boosting the fund from time to time. It is the announced policy to keep the expenditures within the charter limitations this year.

The Omaha Electric Light and Power company's contract in South Omaha expires in October, 1909. At present this company furnishes light in Omaha at the rate of $7.50 per arc light. The mayor is hoping to get the company to put South Omaha on the same basis. The proposition as outlined was to assure the company of a renewal of the franchise for five years provided that from October of this year South Omaha secure lights at $7.50. A Nash is expected to be at the council meeting Monday night to discuss the proposition, and to state the position of his company. It is hinted by the mayor that such an agreement is possible. He will help out the exchequer greatly as the cost of the lights at $7.50 will be $11,325. This will permit the city to install twenty new lights in places where most needed. If this contract is secured, the mayor assures the public that his recent veto of the location of new lights will be withdrawn.

City Nears Limit of Debt. A point not to be lost sight of by the various organizations which already have begun to make suggestions as to charter revision in South Omaha is that the city is approaching the limit in the matter of bonded indebtedness. The city clerk recently issued his annual statement of the bonded indebtedness, to which $96,500 was added during the year just closed. The present bonded debt amounts to $1,293,738. Of this amount $1,322,988 is the general bonded debt and $31,045 is the special bonded debt. This amount does not include the $2,000 bonded during the present month and for which the city will receive the cash within two or three days. The city is allowed to issue $30,000 annually for paving of lateral streets.

New Amusement Park Planned. It is reported that C. D. Leviton proposes to convert his farm, situated on the Burlington railroad south of Q street about a mile, into an amusement park. It has the advantage of a fine grove and other features. It is said the railroad will erect a station at this park and run a local motor car for the accommodation of visitors. If the final arrangements for this and the interest of the public in the enterprises warrants, the Albany Amusement company of New York has agreed to assume the risk and put in the amusement features ready for another season.

Notice to High School Pupils. Principal Wheeler of the high school announces that all members of the junior and senior classes can call at the principal's office Monday or Tuesday to register for the coming year. The ledger books will also be distributed on these days. Pupils should attend to this matter promptly as there will be no opportunity to do so again until Saturday.

The freshman class at the high school promises to be a large one this year. So far 125 pupils have expressed their intention of attending. It is expected there will be a large enrollment of pupils from Barry county, since the free high school law enables them to attend at the expense of their home district. Many of these pupils come in to avail themselves of the normal course, which has been recently placed in the high school, in order to enable prospective teachers to meet the requirements of the new law regarding teachers' certificates. The manual training course, which will be offered for the first time this fall, is also proving to be very popular with the boys.

Funeral of Michael Flaherty. The funeral of Michael Flaherty took place Saturday morning under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Catholic orders. It was very largely attended. The Hibernians marched in line in front of the list. The women's auxiliary met the cortege at the church. The hearse was preceded by four little flower girls, Genevieve Rafferty, Lucile Rafferty, Cleo Smith and Isabel Flaherty. The pallbearers were James Sheehan, Thomas Kane, Joseph Byrne, Morgan Heafey, Pat O'Donnell and Patrick Star. The sermon and high mass were said by Father James Ahern of St. Agnes' church and interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The churches of the city will hold a union meeting this evening at the Baptist church. The object is a discussion of the "reasonable" temperance question by R. L. Wheeler. All the denominations are invited to attend.

The members of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows are called to meet at their hall at 128 1/2 this afternoon to attend the funeral of A. L. Gautreaux at Bellevue. The interment will be at Fort Crook cemetery as the deceased was ex-soldier. He held his membership in the Odd Fellows in Kansas.

Mrs. Herman Grother, 240 N. 24th St., was seriously injured by falling from a street car last Tuesday afternoon. The extent of the injury was not learned until nearly two days passed. She has had the attendance of two physicians daily and is still in a precarious condition.

A farewell party was given in honor of Edward Glass at the home of Frank Glass Friday evening. Edward Glass leaves for New York City September 1, to accept a position as government inspector of meats.

It is reported that the J. L. Westward Box and Broom company, an eastern concern, is about to erect a factory at Thirty-ninth and Q streets.

Ed. Eisworth, a boy of 15, driving a daily wagon yesterday morning at Thirty-sixth and Q streets, in crossing the street was involved in an accident through the fright of his horse at a red lantern, there located. RECORD OF E. B. QUACKENBUSH What He Did for the Terminal Tax Bill During Last Session of Legislature.

During the last legislative session, at the request of Mr. W. G. Ure, for the Omaha Real Estate exchange, together with Mr. Victor Rosewater and Mr. Ure, the writer attended all sessions at which the terminal tax bill was under consideration.

As is well known, the terminal tax bill was in grave danger during its entire course. While it was passed on final roll call with a margin of five votes, on the preceding crucial ballots it passed by the narrow margin of but two votes.

Mr. E. B. Quackenbush, an attorney of Auburn, Neb., now a candidate for the democratic nomination for attorney general, was then a member of the legislature. The friends of the terminal tax bill appealed for aid to Mr. Quackenbush, as one of the most influential members of the house. After careful consideration, Mr. Quackenbush gave the bill his earnest support, and in so doing carried with him several of his eminent colleagues, thereby contributing the balance of power necessary to carry the bill to its passage.

There is absolutely no question but that every voter in Omaha, South Omaha and, in fact, in every city and town in the state, owes to Mr. Quackenbush consideration for his efforts in behalf of the terminal taxation bill.

Mr. Quackenbush is a man of the highest integrity and of exceptional legal ability. He would honor the attorney generalship, and has certainly merited the democratic nomination. Sincerely, J. A. C. KENNEDY.

TWELFTH WARDERS UP AND BUSY Republicans Held a Large and Enthusiastic Meeting.

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Twelfth Ward Republican club was held Saturday evening at Twenty-fourth and Ames avenue, the various candidates for nominations on the republican ticket being present in force.

Speeches were made by A. W. Jefferson, Charles L. Saunders and Thomas W. Blackburn, candidates for congress; T. A. Hester, James C. Kinler and Henry G. Meyer, for county attorney; W. G. Ure and George Rice, for county commissioner; Dr. Grant W. Williams and Charles Hansen, for the Board of Education; J. E. Williams, for the State Railway commission; Willis C. Crosby and A. J. Jackson, for county coroner; J. T. Daugherty, A. R. Harvey, C. E. Fields, Gerard J. Smith, Dr. Harry A. Foster and M. Logans, for the state legislature.

During the meeting someone suggested to raise a fund to liquidate the indebtedness of the club and put some money in the treasury, and within a few minutes this was accomplished by voluntary subscriptions.

President John T. Dillon presided and appointed the following executive committee: Robert Houghton, Fourth precinct, chairman; Bert C. Miner, First precinct; Ed Robinson, Second precinct; B. S. Anderson, Third precinct, and James C. Lindsey, at large. Plans for conducting the coming campaign in the Twelfth ward will be formulated by this committee, which sees bright prospects ahead for the whole republican ticket that will be nominated next Tuesday.

At the Theaters

"Christopher Jr." at the Burwood.

Burwood Stock company, under the direction of Mr. Frank Bacon, in "Christopher Jr.," a comedy in four acts by Madeline Louette Fyvie. Opening performance of the season. The cast: Christopher Colt, an East Indian Merchant... Mrs. Colt, his wife... Clara Sibyl Beyers... Christopher Colt, Jr., their son... Nellie Colt, their daughter... Pearl Sterns... William Schrod... Job, valet to Christopher, Jr... Francis Major Headway, a retired soldier... Dora Headway, his wife... Lorna Elliott... Theatrical club... Jane Jeffery... Mr. Gibb, just Mrs. Gibb's husband... Frank Barton... Burt Ballaby, a young lawyer... Mr. Simpson, manager of the Burwood... Mr. Lane Connor... John Todd.

For the fourth time the Burwood theater has been opened by a stock company that will be resident during the winter season. In the audience last evening were many who were present on the last evening in 1906, when the doors of this house were first swung apart to admit its guests, and who have attended each time since, and these were most emphatic in their announcement that the present is the most promising of all. The theater was crowded and it was more like a family gathering, perhaps, than a formal theater party. Old friends recognized old friends, and the exchange of compliments was cordial and persistent.

While each member of the company was given a "reception" on entering, and the strangers were made to feel that they were among friendly people, it was for Miss Elliott that the real demonstration was reserved. Her appearance was the occasion of a long continued clapping of hands, while she bowed and smiled, and bowed and smiled again, the enthusiasm of her welcome gaining down to the footlights and waved her acknowledgment. Clad in one of the very latest of Parisian creations, a sheath gown of soft gray material, with a hat to match, her bright face glowing with the excitement of the occasion, she made a picture that brought her man's attention in the course of the comment. Omaha folks had not forgotten her, and she was made to feel it. Mr. Grew stepped out of his role long enough to give a brief word of appreciation for the welcome extended him, and the others took their greetings with apparent satisfaction. And when the first act was ended Miss Elliott was fairly buried in flowers, and at the close of the second act she got more flowers, and so on through the evening. No woman ever had more occasion to be proud of her hold on the popular heart in Omaha. At the close of the third act Mr. Todd stepped to the footlights and made a speech of appreciation for his entrance occasioned. Altogether, it was a most enjoyable evening for audience and actors alike, and the season is fairly started under the best of conditions.

The play was given with excellent precision, when one thinks of how much occurred to distract the attention of the audience. Mr. Grew, the leading man, shows evidence of ability which will produce many a good performance during the season. He carries himself well, has a good voice, and speaks his lines well, especially the more serious ones. Mr. Connor, also a new comer, is quick and vivacious, and will be popular in the juvenile roles. John Todd is a year and some months older than when he trod the boards of the Burwood last, but he doesn't look it. His added experience has simply made him a better actor, and his friends realize this. Mr. Bacon is a comedian of the truest type, and in his silent comedy is an excellent opposite for his voluble wife. The other men are all well remembered, and all are popular.

Miss Elliott enters on her new engagement with the same earnest determination that marked her closing performance at the theater in November, 1906. Many were there last night who remember her, and remembered the compelling force and life with which she endowed that woman. Dora Headway is a widely different type of woman, but Miss Elliott takes her up just as seriously, and seemingly enjoys the lighter scenes of the comedy as much as she did the more serious ones of the tragedy. She has a dainty, deftness of touch, certain of her results, holding herself well in hand, but missing no point that will give light on the action of the comedy in hand, and altogether satisfying her audience. Last night she was affected by some degree by the enthusiasm of her welcome, and not enough to destroy her poise. Her popularity was well attested, and is well deserved.

Miss Jeffrey is simply bully as Mrs. Gibb, and made a great personal hit when she checked the homey for a speech from Mr. Bacon in the role of Mr. Gibb. Her change is so excellent," she said to the audience, and in the laughter that followed this pattingly the situation was saved.

Miss Beyers is a handsome woman, with evident capacity. She is hidden in a minor role this week, but will be heard from before the season is over. Miss Sterns, the genius of the company, is a pretty girl, with a quick, snappy way, and ought to establish herself very firmly during the season.

And last of all, Herr Director Hoffman has his orchestra in hand as usual, and his music is as it has been ever since Emil first sat in the director's chair. The night of the theater opened of the best. If last night is to be taken as an indication, Manager Johnson is to be congratulated in advance on a successful season. It was a record maker as an opening.

Reception at the Orpheum. Bright and clean from the front post of the canopy to the rear wall of the stage, the Orpheum theater was thrown open to the public Saturday night and the public was on hand to inspect the popular playhouse over which W. E. Byrne will preside as manager this winter. Martin Beck, general manager of the Orpheum circuit, instructed Mr. Byrne to go over the theater from top to bottom and make every needed improvement during the summer regardless of expense. Mr. Beck does not object to this authority, and he is probably that within a few years a large number of farmers will be adopting this method to eliminate the losses resulting from the ravages of this dreaded disease. Several animals were very sick as a result of the immunizing, but a number showed no resembling that and did not lose a single feed in consequence. How-

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA. Summer Activity of the Farm and Animal Husbandry Departments.

Professor H. R. Smith of the Department of Animal Husbandry returned from the east August 18 and has since been occupying himself with the regular correspondence of the department and matters pertaining to the management of the university herds.

While in the east he spent one week at Ithaca, N. Y., where a conference of animal nutrition investigators was held. As a result of this meeting it was voted that an American association of animal nutrition investigators was desirable, and a committee of five was appointed to formulate plans for organization and to outline plans for the work that is deserving attention in this field of investigation. The committee named consists of Dr. Armbury of Pennsylvania, Director Jordan of New York, Director Waters of Missouri, Dean Skinner of Indiana, and Prof. Smith of Nebraska. It is assumed that the general opinion that such an organization would bring about more concerted action among the various states, and that greater progress in feeding experiments throughout the country at large would follow. The importance of extensive work along these lines cannot be overestimated.

While attending the conference of experimental station workers at Ithaca, N. Y., Prof. Smith attended the lectures of Dr. Zuntz of Berlin University, Germany, who is one of the world's most noted investigators along the line of food as sources of energy and heat. While at Ithaca, he also took occasion to make the acquaintance of several candidates for the position of assistant professor of animal husbandry in the university. It was finally decided to recommend Mr. C. W. Fugatey as professor. Magdalen's successor. Mr. Fugatey graduated in the University of Nebraska a few years ago and has been operating a large farm in Iowa. He has been unusually successful in conducting short courses and farmers' institute work in Nebraska, and his knowledge of animal husbandry subjects will unquestionably make him a valuable man in the department.

A recent acquisition to the department is a trio of mule-foot pigs, shipped from Indiana. This new breed resembles in many ways ordinary Poland-Chinas with the exception that the foot consists of one solid hoove resembling that of a mule, and it is said to be immune from cholera and from observations already made at our station this claim seems to be justified.

Dr. Peters of the Department of Animal Pathology has recently completed the immunization of the entire swine herd belonging to this department. The work was done by the new government process, and the results would seem to indicate that it is a success. The entire herd is now immune from future attacks of the disease and but seven losses resulted from the effects of the process. There were of pigs, most of Poland-Chinas. The reports from other parts are equally favorable, and it is probable that within a few years a large number of farmers will be adopting this method to eliminate the losses resulting from the ravages of this dreaded disease. Several animals were very sick as a result of the immunizing, but a number showed no resembling that and did not lose a single feed in consequence. However, there is likely to be a considerable shrinkage of weight during the process. The Nebraska Corn commission will have a booth at the state fair grounds and have on exhibition samples of corn and other things intended to furnish instruction to farmers who contemplate making up an exhibit to be shown at the National Corn exposition, which will be held at Omaha next December. A bulletin of the corn commission has been compiled and will be distributed during the fair. The bulletin contains many fine cuts and descriptions which will be very helpful to all students of corn production and particularly those who wish information to help them to make up fine exhibits for the exposition.

Joseph A. Rosen, chief of the agricultural bureau of the governmental servico of Ekaterinostav, Russia, recently spent a few days at the station studying agricultural conditions of Nebraska, and while here made arrangements for having shipped to him samples of all the best types of the different grains grown at the station.

Mr. Beni Madhav Chatterjee of Calcutta, India, who has been attending the Cornell agricultural college the last year, visited the experiment station August 23. He expects to return to his native land some time this year, but will first devote a month or two to visiting the various experiment stations and other places of interest to agriculture in America. Mr. Chatterjee is a very large and imposing building in an experiment station in India, similar to such institutions in this country, and will take up some of the most important subjects in agriculture in his own land. His reference to the agricultural importance of India may be noted when we consider his statement, "that India, while being but one-third the area of the United States, is obliged to support 300,000,000 people. Much of the area is semi-arid, requiring irrigation and dry farming methods."

This university is planning to send out lady speakers and judges to about forty boys' and girls' county contests this fall. All of these contests will be held before the National Corn Exposition in Omaha. The dates of the contests are practically fixed and will be published in the near future. In addition to the regular farmers' institute and boys' and girls' contests, the department is planning to conduct two farmers' institute schools or short courses. One of these schools was held at Pawnee City last year, during the week of February 10-15. Quite a number of committees were anxious to substitute the short course for the regular institute, but the authorities at the university decided to hold only one or two of these schools this year. Arrangements have already been made to hold one at Broken Bow, the other at Hebron. It was especially gratifying to see three boys who had attended the School of Agriculture sign the guarantee pledging $10 each to the support of the short course at Broken Bow.

Educational Notes. Philadelphia is barring married women from the schools, and from this time will permit only those to take part in the educational work of the expedition sent out by George H. YOUR HOME will be healthier when you keep bottled Schlitz. The barley is food—the hops are a tonic. And the drinking of liquids flushes the system of waste.

Every doctor knows that most people drink too little. On this account, their systems become clogged with waste.

There lies the main good of watering places. They induce the drinking of water.

That is one reason why the drinking of beer is good for you. It leads you to drink more liquid than you would drink without it. And that liquid is both a food and a tonic.

The sturdiest peoples of the earth drink the most of it. But be sure that the beer is aged, so it will not cause biliousness. And be sure it is pure.

Schlitz beer is all healthfulness.

Ask for the Brewery Bottling. Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz. To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

An institution where work, through work and constant work, is the keynote is the Western Normal college at Shenandoah, Va. It is a large, well equipped and well believed in beginning early and utilizing all the minutes. The expenses of a normal or business education at Shenandoah are about the minimum. The tuition is not high and the cost of living is very low.

The Southwestern Gould scholarship in the School of Applied Art and Science at the New York University is now vacant and is open to all college and high school students in the southwest. It carries with it $20 a year for four years, and is well worth seeking. Application with testimonials and certificates, must be made to the chairman of New York university before September 10.

According to President Albert S. Hill of Lebanon university, Ohio, the influence of that institution since it was founded fifty-two years ago, has resulted in 10,000 weddings. This is a large educational success, and Dr. Hill, who has strong faith in the system, says: "We believe that five women who graduate from our university are worth the tuition, which is quite a flourishing one, has been conducted for its more than half a century and is still going on as vigorously as when it was founded by Alfred Holbrook.

The report of the treasurer of Harvard University shows that the investment funds of the institution amount to $18,975,911, and the annual income $945,176, an average of 4.9 per cent, which should be considered very high. The total sum of $1,800,000 is represented by advances to various departments and the cumulative of years from a multitude of small contributions. It is a fine record of individual seeking to make a name for himself.

MAN ATTACKS YOUNG GIRL Screams Brings Another to Her Rescue and Assailant is Driven Off.

Residents in the neighborhood of Twenty-second and Grant streets were aroused by the screams of a woman late last night, and investigation proved that an unidentified man had attempted to assault Minnie Waxenberg, a 15-year-old girl who lives at 213 Grant street.

Miss Waxenberg, who is rather large for her age, says that she was approached by a man soon after alighting from a street car on Twenty-fourth street, and that he grabbed her by the arm and threw her down in a dark alley. Her screams prevented him offering any further violence, and her assailant was almost captured by a man who appeared on the scene. The girl was so frightened, however, that she grasped her rescuer by the arm and implored him to take her home, thus preventing him from securing the insurer.
