

TAFT MAKES PLEDGE

Purpose Will Be to Clinch Work Begun by Roosevelt.

EARNST ENFORCEMENT OF LAW

Mere Passage of Statutes Will Not Bring About Reform.

BRYAN'S CLAIM 'DIOUCLED'

Nebraskan Neither Heir, or Father of Roosevelt Policies.

ADDRESS MADE IN SANDUSKY

Large Audience Cheers Utterances of Speaker—Former Governor Herrick and General Kiefer Also Speak.

SANDUSKY, O., Sept. 8.—In a speech in the local theater here today, William Howard Taft not only ridiculed Mr. Bryan's claim to be the heir, or the father, of the Roosevelt policies, but delivered himself of an emphatic pledge, after analyzing the most important of these policies, saying "that if elected he proposed to devote all the ability that is in me to the constructive work of suggesting to congress the means by which the Roosevelt policies shall be cinched."

Candidate Given Ovation. Surrounded by the mass of the local theater by the Erie county committee and distinguished republicans, Mr. Taft delivered his first political speech of the day to a full-seated house having a capacity of 1,300. Mr. Taft got an ovation when he came upon the stage.

Representative Kiefer, the first speaker, in his address took a parting shot at Bryan by declaring, "Yes, the people rule everywhere except in those states of this union where democracy is completely dominant." It was the boast, he added, of Representative Clayton of Alabama, who presented Bryan's name to the democratic convention, "that in Alabama all of the blacks and 70 per cent of the whites had been disfranchised."

General H. C. Corbin followed with a short exhortation in favor of political energy, after which former Governor Myron T. Herrick spoke against a government guarantee of bank deposits. Mr. Herrick said that Bryan's plan for bank deposit guarantees was an economic fallacy, as illogical as the silver scheme of 1896; that it was simply a plan to tax the great body of bank depositors to make good the bad management or dishonesty of certain bankers.

Confidence and Investments. Mr. Taft, in beginning his speech, referred to the panic of last year. Confidence, he said, was a plant of slow growth. The people of the country, farmer, laborer, capitalist, were all in the same boat. The investment of money, the confidence necessary for the return of prosperity, and confidence was necessary.

"And I want to say to the men and women of this country—for I want to interest the women on these questions—that the election of Mr. Bryan would be a menace to the confidence which is necessary to the confidence on which prosperity rests."

This statement was warmly applauded. Mr. Taft said that he wanted to talk about Mr. Bryan's claim, "that he is not only the heir to the policies of Theodore Roosevelt, but that he is also the parent of these policies." (Laughter.) "Let us then see," continued Mr. Taft, "what the Roosevelt policies are, and what has been done by Mr. Roosevelt in carrying them out and what has been the attitude of the democratic party towards that action."

The evil of rebates was then described and the remedy—the rate bill and the provision against rebates—discussed. The trust question was then taken up.

"Mr. Bryan says the trusts control the republican party, consequently their control can not be expected by them. What is the history of the democratic party? When it was in power it admitted corruption, it agreed to the Sherman anti-trust law, and Theodore Roosevelt was enforcing it."

Not Denying Blue Sky. Mr. Taft here illustrated this enforcement by concrete cases, saying: "I like to get down to facts, for I am not an orator. I can not swell the ceremonial wings; I have got to deal with real cases."

The Addison Pipe case was then explained to show how, under the anti-trust law, monopoly had been located and remedied, the remedy being to prevent the stifling of competition.

"We do not," said Mr. Taft, "want to prevent large aggregations of capital for legitimate business. They produce a large wage fund and we do not want to drive them out of business if they keep within the law."

"Now, is to a further remedy, what we need is the increase of the machinery of government for the supervision of these companies which have the temptation to violate the law, and that can be done by the facilities at Washington to carry on speedy prosecutions, so that when a charge is brought it can be determined speedily and the law interpreted and enforced."

LAND CASES AT FALL TERM

Chicago Ranch Suit Will Be First Trial in the Federal Court.

Assistant Attorney General Rush is busily engaged in preparing for the trial of the several holdover land fraud cases, which will be among the first trials at the September term of the federal courts. It is the intention of the Department of Justice to get these land cases out of the way as soon as possible, and the present indications are they will all be cleared off the docket during the term of court beginning in Omaha September 28.

The first of the cases to be tried will be that known as the Chicago ranch case, in which Lawrence E. King, Patrick J. King and F. S. Baird of Chicago are the principal defendants, the indictment against them being conspiracy to defraud the government out of large tracts of land in Sheridan county. The plan was to organize a great cattle ranch and farming colony upon there through the acquisition of 25,000 or 30,000 acres of land. A number of parties in different parts of Illinois were induced to participate in the colonization scheme and make filing, turning them over subsequently to the Chicago Ranch corporation, of which the Kings were the head.

Patrick J. King, known as "Folley" King of Chicago, and Baird were placed under heavy bonds after their indictment here in Omaha, but Lawrence E. King managed to elude arrest until apprehended near Goldfield, Nev., several weeks ago, where he gave bail in $100,000 for his appearance in Omaha at this term of court. One of the attorneys in the case for the defendants is former Senator "Billy" Mason of Illinois.

Other important cases will be those against Charles T. Stewart of Council Bluffs, on the charge of unlawful closing of public lands; James H. Edinger, for alleged forgery in applications to enter public lands and transmitting such forged papers to the land office; G. H. T. Babcock, John Agnew, H. C. and Bert Furman, for alleged conspiracy to defraud Babcock United States commissioner at the time.

BARTON HAS STRONG LEAD

Indications Are He is Safely Landed for Nominations for Auditor.

Complete returns from eighty-four counties, including Lancaster, show that Aiden, republican candidate for auditor, has 11,865 votes, and Barton 11,970, which is apparently a sufficient lead to make up any large increase in the vote which Aiden may secure.

The complete returns from the state on governor show: Dahlman 10,200; Shallenberger 12,285; Berg 9,998. This gives Shallenberger a majority of 2,085 over Dahlman.

ANOTHER CREAMERY DEPOT

Exclusive Station for Dairy Products is to Be Built by the Burlington.

The Burlington road is building a creamery station east of the Burlington station in Omaha for the exclusive use of the creamery men doing business in and out of this city.

HARRIMAN BOATS TO ANCON

Report Speculates Has Sold Lines to Railroad Magnate for This Purpose.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 8.—Following a visit made yesterday by John D. Spreckles to the offices of E. H. Harriman, it is reported this morning that the Orient Steamship company, represented by Mr. Spreckles, has arranged to sell to the Pacific Mail Steamship company, connected with the Harriman enterprises, the steamers Ventura, Sierra and Sonoma, which were taken off the run to Honolulu and Australia several months ago, and which have since been idle. It is said to be the intention of Mr. Harriman to institute with these vessels an express service to Ancon, and it is pointed out that this arrangement will enable coast bidders to compete in the matter of supplies for the Panama canal.

HOUSEKEEPER BRINGS SUIT

Demands Pay for Twenty-Five Years from Estate of Her Stepfather.

Asserting her services at general housework were worth $2 a week for the last twenty-five years, Miss Rosalie D. Von Lockum, 3024 North Nineteenth street, has filed a claim for $1,000 against the estate of her stepfather, Peter Von Lockum. The claim covers the period from January 1, 1883, to January 1, 1908. At $2 a week, this amounts to $1,000, but Miss Von Lockum allows $1 a week for clothing and other incidentals, amounting in all to $1,500, making her net claim $2,500. The estate of Mr. Von Lockum is now being settled in county court.

MLLE. LA BLANCHE MAY DIE

Woman Who Entertained Ak-Sar-Ben Crowds Fatally Hurt in Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 8.—Mlle. Marie La Blanche, one of the performers at the Toronto exhibition, was probably fatally injured last night. Her act was to slide down a wire stretched from a high pole in the grounds, hanging by her teeth. Last night she had hardly started when the pole began to lean over, causing the wire to sag and throwing her to the ground. Her spine was broken.

FIRE RECORD.

Longworth Burns Alike. CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 8.—Congressman Nicholas Longworth's two-story brick stable at his Grandin Road home was completely destroyed by fire early today, causing a loss estimated at $30,000. With the stable were burned five carriages, but the horses and servants, who slept in the stable, got out safely. Mr. and Mrs. Longworth had just returned from a party when the fire was discovered.

BULLET MISSES ROOSEVELT

President Has Narrow Escape While Riding Near His Home.

BELIEF IT WAS HUNTER'S ACT

Little Likelihood It Was Deed of Attempted Assassination—Insane Man Is Arrested at Oyster Bay.

OSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Sensational reports that an attempt had been made to shoot President Roosevelt apparently have their origin in the fact that the hunting season has opened on Long Island and there is considerable shooting daily in the outlying districts. Close investigation fails to show that there has been any overt act direct against the president. It is his custom to ride out every day, covering various routes in the countryside and it is not unusual for him to encounter parties of hunters. Also, there is a shooting club which engages in target practice not far from Sagamore Hill.

Mr. Loeb, secretary to the president, said today it was not believed for a moment that anyone had tried to do harm to Mr. Roosevelt. No attention whatever was being paid to the matter officially, he said. A searching investigation, however, is being made today to determine the circumstances giving rise to the report that the shot was fired from ambush upon President Roosevelt. Every foot of ground in the vicinity where the incident came from has been made to be gone over and the closest quest is being prosecuted to ascertain whether or not any person to whom suspicion might attach was seen in the vicinity of Oyster Bay about the time the shot is said to have been fired.

According to the story in circulation here a shot was fired from a clump of bushes near the roadside while the president and a friend were returning from a horseback ride last Saturday. The report of the shot came from close at hand, it is said, and after the first shock of surprise, which caused the president to urge his horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they galloped away to Sagamore Hill. No information at all regarding the incident came from the president's home or the executive offices here, but it appears from the story as lately told that Camille Weidenfeld, a New York banker, was driving with Mrs. Weidenfeld in the vicinity and was a witness to the occurrence. The Weidenfelds were in a public carriage and the driver also is said to have heard the report of the shot and to have witnessed the excited actions of the president and his companion which immediately followed. The man who has yet been found who shot the man who is said to have fired the shot, the president's horse forward, Mr. Roosevelt turned abruptly about and prepared to dismount and rush on foot into the thicket. He was dissuaded by his friend, however, and together they gallo