

The Honorable Abraham Bandala, Governor State of Tabasco, Mexico, Recommends Peruna Because It Has Proven To Be An Efficient Remedy for Catarrhal Diseases.

The Honorable Governor writes to us from San Juan Bautista, Mexico.

San Juan Bautista, Mexico. The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio. Gentlemen: It gives me pleasure to say that the persons who have used Peruna for catarrhal affections have found it an efficacious cure, and one worthy of recommendation.

Other distinguished Mexicans have given similar opinions regarding Peruna. Prominent among these men of universal reputation is Doctor Agustin Rivera, who writes as follows: Mexico City, Mexico. The Peruna Medicine Co. Gentlemen: In view of the magnificent results that I have obtained from the use of your excellent remedy "Peruna" in several obstinate cases of nasal catarrh,

Goethe, Faust and the Eighteenth Century. OMAHA, Sept. 11.—To the Editor of The Bee: Rev. Bishop Quayle will pardon me if I take issue with him on his views of Goethe and Faust in his recent lecture at the Methodist Episcopal church a few days ago. It is an awful charge to make, as he did, that the eighteenth century was "inhuman and immoral, and that Goethe was its true son."

"The Blood is the Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgment are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought happens to have its origin in the impurity of the blood.

THIRD KILLING THIS MONTH

Bartender Shoots Stranger Who Flashes Gun in His Saloon.

DEAD MAN NOT IDENTIFIED

Pawnbroker Says the Revolver He Had Resembles One that Was Stolen from His Show-case.

F. W. Burns, bartender in W. A. Atkins' saloon, 110 Farnam street, who shot and killed a stranger in the saloon at 10:30 Friday night, is held at the police station pending his preliminary hearing. His statement that he shot the man because he flashed a revolver in his face is generally accredited by the police. The victim has not yet been identified.

This was the third tragedy since September 1, the other two being the death of Fred T. Bustin and the murder by Van Goodell of Miss Edna Kennett. A clue which might lead to the identity of the man was presented to the police by the soldier's cap which was worn by the stranger when he entered Atkins' saloon. The cap is the property of T. G. Riley, a private of Company H, Sixteenth infantry, stationed at Fort Crook, who was picked up in a helplessly drunken condition by Detectives Mitchell and Sullivan shortly after 6 o'clock Friday night after he had fallen down a stairway at the northwest corner of Fifteenth and Capitol avenues. When sent to the police station Riley was wearing a high-crowned soft hat which answers the description of the hat worn by the man who attempted to hold up Levy's saloon and others. Riley cannot recollect anything that occurred during the latter part of Friday afternoon, but the dead man and the soldier were evidently in each other's company. Riley was taken to the coroner's office, but could not identify the man who was killed by Burns.

Man Who Was at Levy's

The body of the dead man was identified as that of the man who had entered A. Levy's saloon at Eleventh and Capitol avenue shortly before the affair in Atkins' saloon. Levy, who made the identification, stated to the authorities that the dead man had been in his saloon, but he did not positively, even showing the handle of a revolver sticking from a hip pocket. Levy secured his revolver and held it in his hand, whereupon the other had walked out of his saloon without making any remark. He evidently went immediately to the Atkins' saloon.

From a description furnished the police Friday by Jake Landroch, a saloonkeeper at 124 South Twentieth street, who was confronted by a would-be holdup artist in his saloon Thursday evening about 11:30 o'clock, it seems possible that the man shot by Bartender Burns last night is the same man who attempted to hold up Landroch.

So far the body has not been identified at the Davis undertaking parlors, where an inquest will be held Monday afternoon. The police are inclined to believe that Burns shot in self-defense. Although a bartender in a saloon where the result of a class of trade is encountered, railroad laborers, Burns does not drink intoxicants. He could add but little to his story told immediately after the shooting, with the exception of his ordering the stranger to put away the gun that he flashed. The latter, however, replied that he had pulled it to use it, and use it he would, whereupon Burns secured his revolver from the work-board under the bar and during the scuffle that ensued Burns' revolver was discharged.

Two Men Arrested

When the killing occurred the patrol wagon was out on another call and arrived at Atkins' saloon a few minutes after, the bartender and E. F. Holbrook, the porter, being the only persons in the place with the dying man. The latter was as white as a sheet and only gasped for breath, saying nothing. Burns and Holbrook were arrested, the former on the murder charge, by Patrolmen Dillon and Bitter, and the latter as state's witness, by Detectives Ferris and Dunn.

"What's the matter?" asked Patrol Conductor Dillon when he arrived on the floor, before seeing the dying man on the floor. In answer Burns pointed to his victim and said: "He came in here and flashed a gun, so I shot him as I thought he was going to hold us up." At the police station, where the man was taken in the patrol wagon, Dr. Harris and Flizgibbon examined the wound and said that an internal hemorrhage caused by the cutting of the abdominal aorta would bring death in a few minutes, and the man died at 11 o'clock, about thirty minutes after he was shot.

Assistant Coroner Hulse took charge of the body, removing it to the Davis undertaking parlors on South Sixteenth street.

In an interview Burns, the man who did the shooting, said that there were no men aside from himself and the supposed robber in the saloon at the time the shot was fired, but that a crowd soon gathered after hearing the report of the gun.

"Ex-Officer Steve O'Donnell had just left the place before I shot the man," said Burns. "The fellow, who did not appear to be drunk, entered through the front door and had reached for his hip pocket when I saw his gun when I grabbed the pocket. I fired one when I kept under the bar and fired one bullet into his stomach. He sank to the floor, gasping for breath, and calling George Dwyer from a nearby saloon I attempted to revive the man. I had shot, applying ice and bandage to the wound. A crowd gathered and I sent for the police, who arrived in what seemed to be a wonderfully short time."

No Such Number

The poorly written inscription, "C. F. Lawrence, 128 Harney street," was discovered on a badly defaced book cover taken from the body at the police station before the coroner took charge of it. However, no person of that name and initials is listed in the city directory, and that location is the present home of the Marks saddlery firm.

Great Light Seen in the East

Many People Are Cautious, but No Conclusive Explanation Offered as Yet. A strange, diffused light, like an aurora, hung in the southeast Friday night in the early part of the evening in the first few hours of darkness, and it has not yet been discovered what was responsible for it. Father Rigge, astronomer at Creighton university, did not see the light and knew of no disturbances indicated by his observations of atmospheric conditions.

HARRIMAN REACHES HOME

Pulls Into Arden with His Special Train on the Time He Set.

Word was received in Omaha Saturday morning that the Harriman special had arrived at Mr. Harriman's country home, "Arden," at 8:30 Saturday morning on a scheduled time. Mr. Harriman started from San Francisco with the idea of reaching Arden Saturday morning in time for an engagement he had made. In order to permit him to stop for three hours in Omaha as the guest of honor at an informal luncheon and reception at the Field club, given by the business men and bankers, the Harriman special was turned across Wyoming and Nebraska at the rate of about sixty miles an hour. Climbing the Rocky mountains from the other side, two engines were used and the climb was made at the rate of thirty-seven and one-half miles an hour.
