The Chicago Great Western Rallway company, by its attorney, filed with the commission affidavits showing the number of persons and vehicles that had used Wood oury avenue in crossing the tracks of the railway company upon certain specified days. Thereupon the board requested the city and the railroad company to furnish further plans, specifications and estimates of the expense, and at the request further plans, specifications and estimates of the expense, and at the request of the rallway company the hearing was adjourned to some day to be fixed in the future. No further plans, specifications or estimates have ever been submitted to the board.

The final disposition of the case has been postponed from time to time at the request of the rallway company. Nothing further has been done for many months and no satisfactory reason exists why a final determination of the matter should not be made. After carefully considering all the testimony offered and taking into account the conditions surrounding this crossing, it has been determined by the board that at this time the petition of the dity of Council Bluffs for a viaduct should be denied. The commissioners are of the opinion, however, that on or before the 1st day of November. 1908, this crossing should be protected by an electric signal bell, to be automatically rung upon the approach of engines or trains in either direction, a reasonable time before the engine or train reaches said crossing, and that this electric signaling device should be of the most approved pattern and maintained in first-class condition at all times, and it is hereby so ordered.

Ruling Not Unexpected.

Buling Not Unexpected. While an adverse ruling was not unexpected by the residents in the vicinity of Woodbury avenue, the decision of the railroad commissioners is nevertheless a disappointment. Former Councilman Robert B

Wallace, who took a leading part in the effort to compel the Great Western to build a subway under its tracks at the Woodbury avenue crossing, when informed of the ruling of the railroad commissioners, said: "We always suspected that the delay in deciding the case was due to the influence of the rallroad company, but whenever this belief was expressed we were met with a denial that the railroad company was in any way responsible for the delay. and were invariably told that the commission was working on the case. It is refreshing to read in the decision that the order of the board had been postponed at the request of the railroad company." Mr. Wallace expressed the opinion that an electric bell device would probably prove wholly unsatisfactory. The weather is right, the dust is settled and the bugs are all gone. Now have your house painted. The conditions are just right; the paint will dry good and leave it in fine condition to withstand the weather. Let us figure on the job. We will treat you right. H. Borwick, Hearst's Party Late.

No petitions as independent candidates were filed by anyone for the Hearst independence party with the secretary of state today. Tomorrow is the last day on which such petitions can be filed. Because the party has never had an organization in Iowa heretofore, its candidates must be placed on the ballot by petition. A few days ago representatives of that party called upon Secretary of State Hayward and informed him a list of candidates for national and state officers would be filed. They have not been filed as yet.
