

WOOL MEN TO VIEW SITES

President Gooding Heads Delegation Visiting Omaha Thursday.

COME TO RECEIVE PROPOSALS

With Decision of This Committee Nests the Location of the National Wool Market Omaha Wants.

Headed by President F. W. Gooding of the American Wool Growers' association, a committee of five will visit Omaha Thursday to look at sites and receive the proposition of the Omaha Wool and Storage company and the Commercial club for locating the warehouse of the association in Omaha.

With the decision of the committee rests the location of the big warehouse. It is generally believed that the contest has narrowed down to Omaha and Chicago.

The building of an association warehouse means a revolution in the method of the wool barons in storing and selling and first making storage possible. It was Omaha business men who built the first warehouse and Omaha bankers who offered to make advances on the clips from the ranges of the west, thus providing the growers with the ready money which they got from the speculators and sell at a sacrifice in order to get the money.

It was Omaha which started the revolution in the method of buying and selling and first making storage possible. It was Omaha business men who built the first warehouse and Omaha bankers who offered to make advances on the clips from the ranges of the west, thus providing the growers with the ready money which they got from the speculators and sell at a sacrifice in order to get the money.

One Year Proves Test. The one year's experience convinced the American Wool Growers' association that the Omaha method of storage was sound and it was proposed to erect a large storage house which would hold an amount of wool equal to the entire clips of Wyoming, Montana, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, South Dakota, Nebraska and Utah—100,000,000 pounds.

Then Chicago "got in" and began bidding for the association warehouse. The Chicagoans even offered to make loans on the wool at less than the market rates for "money," something which no sound business man believes Chicago banks will do.

Now it is up to a committee of the association to choose between the offer of Chicago and the conservative proposition which the bankers and business men of Omaha will offer. Chicago wants the association to guarantee that 100,000,000 pounds of wool will be stored in Omaha, nothing about the capacity nor asks any fixed size, Chicago makes an offer of "cheap money," while Omaha believing that there is no money in Chicago cheaper than in Omaha, offers "all the money necessary at market rates and usual terms for collateral loans. Chicago offers an acre of "cheap money" while Omaha offers to sell the present plant of the Omaha Wool and Storage company and transfer the leases to abundant terminal property on the tracks of the Great Western road within a stone's throw of the business section of Omaha, and where there will be no switching charges.

Omaha Nearer Market. Finally the Chicago bidders want the wool men of Wyoming to travel half way across the continent to attend the sales of their wools when manufacturers come west to Chicago to buy; while Omaha offers a point five hundred miles nearer the ranges, where the wool growers market their sheep at the terminals of the western roads which bring the wool direct to Omaha, and save the growers the expense of time and traveling clear to Chicago to attend the wool auctions. In the words of President Delfelder of the Wyoming Wool Growers association "Omaha offers just what the wool growers want, a near market" while Chicago takes them one step too far. They might just as well go to Philadelphia or Boston to sell their wool if they go to Chicago and the proposition to store wools there defeats the whole idea of giving the growers an advantage in the method of selling their wools.

The Commercial Club has appointed a special committee to meet the committee of the wool growers association when it comes to the city, and the entire day will be spent looking at sites and discussing the advantages of Omaha as the natural wool market for the sheep barons of the west.

HOW TO FIGHT CONSUMPTION

Omaha Folks to Have Practical Exhibit of Means for Combating Spread of Disease.

The exhibit of the National Association for Prevention of Spread of Tuberculosis will be opened in Omaha on Monday, October 13, at Edward Creighton institute on South Eighteenth street. This exhibit consists of lantern slides and working models of suggested rooms, ventilating apparatus and the like. It is intended to give the people in a practical and concrete form information that is valuable in connection with the prevention of the spread of the dread disease.

In connection with the exhibit a program will be arranged for each evening, when speakers will discuss the work of the association and give additional suggestions, supplementing those of the exhibit. Further announcements will soon be made. The committee of fifty having the matter in charge is actively at work.

LOTS OF FISH FOR CUT-OFF

Five Thousand Bass and Crappies Brought Up by O'Brien.

UNCLE SAM WILL DONATE SOME State Commissioner is Greeted at Depot by Rod and Gun Club Men, Who Escort Him to the Lake.

W. J. O'Brien, superintendent of the state fisheries at South Bend, arrived in Omaha Monday morning with a carload of fish which he placed in Cut-Off lake. The consignment this year was one of the best Mr. O'Brien has brought to Omaha for some time, as the fish were all large and of sufficient size to care for themselves. Most of them were six months or over and had been reared in the big ponds at the state fisheries with other fish, so they were accustomed to looking after their own protection.

The consignment consisted of 5,000 fish—2,500 bass and 2,500 crappies. Mr. O'Brien was met at the Burlington station by the officers of the Omaha Rod and Gun club with a special car of the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway company. The twenty-five large pans of fish were taken by the trolley car to the grounds of the Omaha Rod and Gun club, where the fish were placed in the lake. Some of the bass were six inches long and were beautiful.

Mr. O'Brien thinks he will have another load of fish this fall for Omaha. When the ponds are gone over there may be some more fish at the fisheries than can be spared, and he also expects to get some larger fish at Gibson's lake, in Iowa. The fish commissioner will leave Tuesday night for the northwestern part of the state with a carload of fish for those waters. He will take the car from Omaha to Gretna, where it will be filled with fish and taken to Valentine, with stops along the way.

Word has also been received that the United States government intends to place a large number of crappies in Cut-Off lake this fall. Application was made two years ago for these fish and now comes the word they are about ready for delivery. Both the state fish commissioner and the United States government are pleased with the efforts of the Omaha Rod and Gun club to protect the fish in the lake. The club hires a man to patrol the lake, to confiscate all nets and to arrest all sellers. So persistent have been the efforts of the club that it is thought all netting has been stopped.

HUNDREDS BY FIRST PAPERS New Voters Along the Naturalization Route Plock Into the Court House.

Over 600 new voters have been added to the lists in Douglas county by the naturalization process during the last two weeks. The law provides voters taking out their first papers within thirty days of an election cannot vote at that election and the time during which prospective voters at the fall election could take out their papers expired Saturday. All day and until late at night foreigners seeking their papers crowded the office of the district clerk, 142 taking out their papers during the day.
