The prisoners, who are laborers formerly employed on a railroad, were placed in a cell at the city jail for safe keeping. The deputy sheriff left with the men early Friday morning.

Woman of Resort are Fined—A fine of $5 and costs was imposed on Marie Hill of 1015 Douglas street in police court Friday morning. Two women inmates of her resort were given $10 fines. This is the place that was raided recently by the police on suspicion of the women harboring young girls. However, the charge preferred against them Friday was only that of keeping and being inmates of a disorderly house.

Term in Pen for Losing Temper—Because he couldn't keep his temper after losing a crap game, John E. Reynolds, a South Omaha negro, will have to spend a year and a half in the penitentiary. Reynolds was shooting craps with Charles Roberts, another negro. Roberts won and this angered Reynolds so he followed him out on the street and slashed him. Reynolds pleaded guilty before Judge Sears Friday morning.

Federal Courts at Lincoln—The fall term of the federal courts will begin at Lincoln next Monday, with Judge T. C. Munger on the bench. The grand jury will be empaneled Tuesday. United States District Attorney Goss will supervise the grand jury proceedings there, which will have cognizance of only such cases as originate in the South Platte or Lincoln district. It is possible that the trial term of the court will go over until after the election.

Florence Annoyed by Thieves—Petty robberies have been annoying the people of Florence for several days, and an effort is being made to trap the perpetrators. Wednesday night a thief entered the chicken house of P. M. King, in the heart of the city, and stole a number of valuable fowls. The same night fifteen bushels of potatoes were stolen from Charles Green, who lives across the street from King. It is believed the same gang committed both robberies.

Old Freight Bill Chestnut Works—By the time-worn plea of having a freight bill to pay and nothing but a check for $150 that could not be cashed at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, two men who were thought to be experienced confidence experts wheedled $15 out of Oscar Boyer of Perry, Ia., while the men were waiting at Union station. The check given Boyer as security for his cash was worthless, being a poor piece of work on a blank of the Fourth National bank of Wichita, Kan.

Verdict for $150, Bond for $10,000—The jury in the case of Wilbur Hall against the Chicago & Northwestern brought in a verdict Friday morning for $150 in favor of Hall after being out about twenty-four hours. Mr. Hall sued for $10,000. The suit was for personal injuries received by Hall while in the employ of the railroad company with the bridge gang. He was struck on the head by a derrick crane that had got beyond control whereby both his hearing and eyesight were permanently injured. The accident happened in March, 1908. The trial had been on since last Monday.

City Hall Compliments Omaha—Copies of the League of American Municipalities, delivered in Omaha Friday, praise this city in the highest terms in a lengthy account of the recent convention held in Omaha. The parades given by the Ak-Sar-Ben governors come in for the largest share of attention, while the trips given the delegates in the McKean motor cars and the bill the street car company and the drill by the Second cavalry at Fort Omaha are also spoken of appreciatively. "We are glad we came," the publication quotes the delegates as having said.

Little Johnnie Graves Travel—Little Johnnie Murray, six years of age, has a mania for running away from home. Friday morning he was picked up by Patrolman J. B. Wilson and taken to the police station, where he was booked as an incorrigible and taken in charge by Probation Officer Bernstein. It is said that Johnnie takes a notion every so often that the great unknown world lying around him ought to be explored, so he starts out to become learned in the craft of his elders and generally is met by a sturdy bluecoat before he goes far enough to get into trouble. The police station often receives telephone messages from the child's parents inquiring if he has been found.

ALMA MAN MUST PAY UP Shallenberger Held by Supreme Court as Responsible for Note He Signed. A. C. Shallenberger, democratic candidate for governor, arrived in Omaha Friday morning. Simultaneously there arrived the news that the supreme court of Nebraska has just ruled that Mr. Shallenberger must pay an obligation which he tried to escape on a technicality.

The judgment of the lower court is reversed and the case remanded. The Home Savings bank of Fremont was the appellant who won in the supreme court. The bank had brought an action upon a written guaranty of a note for $300.65, made in 1902 by W. P. Summers, Shelly & Rogers being the payees.

Mr. Shallenberger guaranteed the payment of the note, which was secured by a chattel mortgage. In July, 1905, Mr. Shallenberger sent a draft by mail to the bank to pay the note. The note was returned to him, the bank first erasing the endorsement of Shelly & Rogers, together with the mortgage. Mr. Shallenberger stopped payment on the draft, alleging that the bank failed to protect the chattel mortgage securing the note, which had been lost through its neglect. The supreme court holds that the erasure of the endorsement did not injure the defendant.

Mr. Shallenberger arrived at 10 a. m., deposited his grip at the Paxton and in a few minutes left for Springfield, where he made an address this afternoon. He is expected back at 5 o'clock.

BANQUET FOR CREDIT MEN Officers of National Association Guests of the Local Members. Enthusiastic compliments to Omaha were paid in profusion by the dozen officers and directors of the National Association of Credit Men, all of whom made addresses at the banquet tendered them last night at the Omaha club by the Omaha Credit Men's association.

President C. W. Russell of the local association presided long enough to introduce First Vice President McAdow of Chicago and to turn over the further conduct of the evening to him. The most elaborate addresses were made by National Secretary Charles E. Meek of New York and Lee M. Hutchins of Grand Rapids. The former dwelt upon the work of the association and the latter concluded the speech-making in an effectively humorous vein. The visitors who were heard besides those named were Second Vice President W. A. Given, Pittsburgh; Directors J. L. McWhorter Nashville; T. P. Robbins, Cleveland; Oscar Loeffler, Milwaukee; F. K. Salisbury, Minneapolis; J. W. Sangler, Seattle. The visitors go today at noon to Des Moines.

JIM WILL CLOSE TOWN TIGHT Mayor Says by Rigid Enforcement of Blue Law He Will Make It Obnoxious. "When it is finally decided that there will be no rehearing and I have been officially notified of the upholding of the blue laws of this state by the supreme court, then I will order this town closed up tighter than a drum on Sunday. There will be no monkey work about it. The town will be closed and closed so blooming tight that the legislature will simply have to repeal this obnoxious law."

This is the unwavering decision of Mayor Dahlman, who returned Thursday evening from a three day's stamp of the state on behalf of the democratic ticket, including Candidate Shallenberger, whom he denounced prior to the primaries as being a "trimmer" and a "tool of the corporations," together with a few other carefully selected encomiums. The mayor says he had some fine meetings in Dodge county and naturally announces that Bryan will carry Nebraska.

Crowded House Present at the Republican Rally Thursday Night.

SEVERAL EFFECTIVE SPEECHES Local Men Lead Off and C. O. Peterson of Chicago Follows with Effective Argument Against Democratic Position.

A fine audience, every seat full, greeted the republican candidates, C. O. Peterson of Chicago and T. W. Blackburn, last night at Ritchie's hall. The Taft club was out in force. The audience was eager and attentive. There was plenty of opportunity for applause, for the candidates were at their best, all confident, cheerful, with a good point to hammer home and a great cause to plead. One after the other, P. J. Trainor, the chairman of the meeting, introduced them and they said what they had to say plainly and clearly. G. H. Brewer, Joe Koutsky, W. P. Adkins, William G. Ives, Thomas Hollister and others made their addresses brief and forceful, before Thomas Blackburn spoke in introducing Mr. Peterson. Mr. Blackburn led off with praise of Governor Sheldon, declaring him to be a man of eminently worthy attributes, who had made good all his pledges, put a dozen splendid laws on the statute books, who had been sparing of issuing pardons to criminals, who had favored and enforced strict honesty in office, who knew all about the conduct of affairs in state institutions, whose administration had given the terminal tax, the child labor law, the direct primary, as well as reducing the state debt over $50,000. He was a man who had been perfectly fair to Omaha and South Omaha. Opposed to him was a man who was a straddler, with one foot on the populist's platform demanding county option and the other on the democratic demanding home rule. He was declared to be talking the democratic end in Omaha and the populist end in the west. "These two ideas are utterly opposed," said Mr. Blackburn. "We are going to elect Sheldon in Nebraska and I can't for the life of me see why Douglas county, nominally republican, should scratch the ticket anywhere from the top to the bottom. There never were finer candidates, all nominated by the direct primary, honest, capable men, headed by a national candidate who represents so ably all that is best in the best party that ever held sway in the best government that ever graced the earth."

Peterson is Effective. Mr. Bryan got all that was coming to him at the hands of C. O. Peterson of Chicago. Peterson opened the splendid oratory of Bryan, his physical magnetism, his personal morality and his religion, even his zeal as a political leader, but he tore his prophecies and his logic to shreds and scattered them to the four winds.

In all the good qualities of Bryan he maintained he had them fully matched in the personality of Taft, a man of equal mental poise, physical morality, religious conviction and far greater experience as a diplomat, a judge, a statesman and political reasoner.

"When I speak I never try to please a democrat," said Mr. Peterson. "I couldn't do that; they are not made that way. Still, I like to talk to the democrats, because they need it so much. For God's sake, who named you, Mr. Bryan, Mr. Roosevelt named a man who was capable of carrying out his famous and popular policies, to which you claimed heirship so long, but you named yourself. Didn't you? Now, didn't you? Which is the most despicable and dangerous, the man who assumes the empire to himself or he who chooses his friend to succeed him amid popular clamor for a third term? The people longed for another term and bewailed the pre-eminence of the party; but Roosevelt said no. 'No, I'll not break it.' Who, then, had a greater right to advise—mind, I say advise—that Mr. Taft be chosen to carry out the work he had begun on so many vital lines?"

"Bryan as president, with a republican congress, might do no harm, like the loose tiger with his claws and teeth out, but what is the use of scaring the people so with such a dangerous looking cat?"

"Don't you republicans, any of you, forget to vote. The democrats will be there. Don't be afraid on that point. The minority party always polls a full vote. Here is a choice of direction in our national affairs too important to be ignored."

Meeting of Polish Voters. The Polish people of South Omaha were out in numbers last night at Rex hall to hear the local candidates talk on the issues. The candidates vibrated between Rex hall and the big meeting of the Taft club at Ritchie's hall. The closest attention was given to the speakers, although at Rex hall some boys outside occasionally set up a discordant howl. W. W. Slatough assisted the candidates and some speeches were made in the Polish language by local talent.
