Confidence, in the Denver team is not lacking in their managerial sanctum, as that august personage, the manager, has signed articles to play the Carlisle Indians a post-season game in Denver on December 5. By means of this game the Creighton followers expect to get a line on Nebraska, lowa, Kansas and Missouri, as well as a number of eastern teams, and accordingly, expect to see the local lads give a good account of themselves in the Denver match.

ert Reynolds, president of the Citizens' Taft club. Secretary Root, in his speech, first took up the alleged dissension in Ohio, the Foraker matter being the first, the negro question the second and the liquor question, a purely local issue, the third. He urged that if these dissensions existed as reported they should be laid aside for the duty of American citizenship. These three elements were as but drops of water in the greater issues which made up the campaign.

The climax of the speech was a review of the public career of Judge Taft. He declared that Taft was better prepared than any other man to succeed to the presidency and to carry out the policy of McKinley and Roosevelt. As an executor and as an administrator he declared hat Tuft was without a peer. Sarcasm was hurled at the Bryan th
