

are several states in this union where the majority of the people are now Catholics? I should reprobate in the severest terms the Catholics who in those states for in any other state) who refused to vote for the most fit man to be elected to the office of a Protestant, and my condemnation would be exactly as severe for Protestants who, under reversed circumstances, refused to vote for a Catholic. In public life, I am happy to say that I have known many men who were elected and constantly re-elected to office in districts where the great majority of their constituents were of a different religious belief.

"I know Catholics who have for many years represented constituencies mainly Catholic, and among the congressmen who I know particularly well was one man of Jewish faith who represented a district in which there were hardly any Jews at all. All of these men, by their very existence in political life, refute the slander you have uttered against your fellow-Americans.

All Faith in Cabinet. "I believe that this republic will endure for many centuries. If so, there will doubtless be among the presidents, Protestants and Catholics and very probably some time Jews. I have consistently voted while president to act in relation to my fellow citizens of Catholic faith as I hope that any future president who happens to be a Catholic will act toward his fellow Americans of Protestant faith. Had I followed any other course I should have felt that I was unfit to represent the American people.

"My cabinet at the present moment, here sit side by side Catholic and Protestant, Christian and Jew, each man chosen, because in my belief, he is peculiarly fit to exercise on behalf of all our people the duties of his office to which I have appointed him. In no case does the man's religious belief in any way influence his discharge of his duties, save as it makes him more eager to act justly and uprightly in his relations to all men. The same principles that have obtained in appointing the men of my cabinet, the highest officials under me, the officials to whom is entrusted the work of carrying out all the important policies of my administration are the principles upon which all good Americans should act in choosing the men to fill any office of the highest trust to the lowest in the land. Yours truly,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

WHISKER SEASON NOW ON

Facial Trimming that Mark Chicago's Emphasis as a Winter Resort.

This is "whisker week," the season of the year when the barber "blocks out" a hirsute adornment to protect his face from the rigors of a Chicago winter. It is the saddest week in the year for the "tonorial artists," as thousands of patrons who shave every other day will not need a barber's attention oftener than once or twice a month from now until next April.

It means a loss of $20,000 to the barbers of Chicago. There are 80,000 men, it is estimated, who have taken out a membership card in the Facial Whisker Club and these would have spent $1 each which they will save by means of shaving whisks.

"Whisker week" is no joke in the barber business," said "Black" Karp, shop owner. "It puts an awful strain on the receipts for about six months."

"What is known among barbers as 'whisker week' begins about the middle of October. Nearly one-fourth of my customers let some kind of whiskers sprout this week and a great many others will follow suit before the end of the month."

"Old John J. Coughlin has one of the first in my chair this evening to observe the annual custom of 'whisker week.' He told me to block out boot straps for him. "Don't you know what 'boot straps' are? You've seen those little whiskers straight down from the ear, haven't you? Well, those are the 'boot straps' brand. Alderman Coughlin will look swell in them. His face is just the shape for this adornment."

"As in past seasons, the Van Dyke will be much the vogue. This is one of the smartest whiskers that a man can hang on his face. It is much affected by professional men, especially doctors.

"Strange things about the Van Dyke is that every 'boon' man in the country who can raise whiskers is sure to have the pointed beard. It gives the wearer a distinguished appearance.

"Several of my patrons have blocked out mutton chops. This style of facial adornment is called 'fire escapes' by uncouth persons. For my part, I prefer the 'fire escapes' to the 'lace curtains' effect that you see on some men's faces. There isn't one barber in fifty who knows how to hang the 'lace curtains' properly, and they make the wearer look like a monkey.

"The 'sea weed' and 'alfalfa' are two other styles that will be worn much this winter. There are that set of whiskers, and I don't think there is anything prettier or more becoming to any man.

"Of course we still have the 'Galway,' that grow wild under the chin and around the neck. This style is worn mostly by old men. It is very popular with foreigners.

"The impetuous child that little bunch of spines on the chin rapidly going out of style."—Chicago Post.

MAN JOBS FOR GRUENTHER

Man Who Elected Shallenberger May Have His Pick of Plums.

GREAT DEMAND FOR PLACES In Meantime Republicans Are Wondering How Democrats Can Reduce Taxes and Keep Up Institutions.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Nov. 8.—(Special.)—Chris Gruenther, who landed a C. Shallenberger for governor, has been picked for state oil inspector, for private secretary and for several other places. Before leaving for his home in Platte county Gruenther was asked what he wanted and he replied that he had no ambition to hold an office in the state government but had received his reward in the vote given his chief. However, it is believed around here that Gruenther can land any place he desires at the hands of the new governor.

Two democrats were here from Nebraska the day Shallenberger was here and, though both said they were not after jobs, each is said to have had his fingers crossed at the time. And then there is Colonel John O. Maher. He has lots of friends who believe he would make a good job. Then there is Will Maupin, who, it is said, would like to be labor commissioner. Maupin, however, may have to show his credentials that he voted for Shallenberger before he will be taken into the inner circle.

But there is only one thing certain about the appointments now. There will be an army of men who will want places and the new governor has not enough places for them all.

In the meantime the republicans are wondering how the democrats will lower taxes and keep up the state institutions up to their present splendid condition.

Keifer is Not Discouraged. Chairman Keifer of the republican state committee is still in Lincoln, but he will not call the state committee together for some time yet.

"I expect to go home within a day or two," he said, "and I see no reason just at this time to have a meeting of the state committee."

"The party should continue right along and be ready for the fight two years from now," he said, "but I don't think the party will reverse themselves two years from now."

Mr. Keifer went down in the landslide and expressed his satisfaction that if the ticket had to go he was pleased to go with it.

Secretary of State Busy

The office of the secretary of state has been the busiest place in the state house since the election. A dozen or more, personally interested in the outcome of the contest, republicans and democrats, are constantly on hand to scan every official return. All kinds of estimates made in the course of ways have been made and frequently every man on the ticket had been elected except the governor. But until all the returns are in it will not be possible to definitely settle the fight for railway commissioner, secretary of state and land commissioner.

New Governor for City

Now that the election is over and it is known the proposition for a city government by commission has carried, there is considerable talk about the coming government. To make the change the city will have to secure the enactment of a law by the legislature.

When the election for the selection of commissioners is called it will be an individual affair and not a party concern, for it is intended to make the city government non-partisan as far as possible. The commercial club has taken a great interest in the proposition and some of the best business men in the city are anxious to give the commission plan a trial.

Here Eye Epidemic Gone

The sore eyes and skin disease at the Hayward school among the pupils has almost disappeared. The school board when the matter was reported to it, employed a professional nurse and the little children who were affected were treated in an impetigo hospital in the basement of the school building. The nurse visited the homes of the children and gave instructions to parents how to treat the little ones and the result has been very satisfactory.

MASONIC TEMPLE AT MCCOOK

Congressman Norris Speaks at Cornerstone Laying.

MCCOOK, Neb., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—The cornerstone of the McCook Masonic temple was laid Saturday afternoon by Congressman Norris, assisted by the local Masonic bodies, under the most imposing and impressive circumstances and particulars. The grand officers present were: William A. De Ford, grand master; Omaha; Francis E. Wolfe, grand secretary; Omaha; John B. Dinwiddie, grand treasurer; Sutton; Henry Gibbons, grand junior warden; Kearney; Samuel D. Dutcher, grand chaplain; Omaha; Thomas M. Davis, grand junior deacon; Robert E. French, grand custodian; Kearney. One hundred visiting Masons from the different lodges in this section of Nebraska—Indianola, Danbury, Bartley, Oxford, Cambridge—and others participated in the ceremonies, which have never been equaled in solemnity and magnitude in this section of the state.

Congressman G. W. Norris of the Fifth district delivered an eloquent oration after the formal ceremonies of the cornerstones laying were completed, along the lines of fraternity, an effort which called forth the boundless approval of his audience, which is conservatively placed at 4,000 people.

In the evening the members of the grand lodge and all visiting Masons were entertained at supper by the McCook lodge. A memorable feature of this event was the toast responded to by members of the grand lodge present, as well as by members of the local bodies. A wave of good feeling and fraternity in the highest prevailed and closed an event memorable to McCook Masons and which will be recorded in the annals of the city of McCook with greatest pleasure and pride.

TRAGEDY NEAR ALLIANCE

ALLIANCE, Neb., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—A shooting that has every indication of serious results occurred at 4 o'clock this morning at Branner's ranch, eight miles west of here, when Charles Branner shot his sister, Lizzie, whom he mistook for Frank Augustine, her companion, to whose attentions he objected. Augustine accompanied Miss Branner to the skating rink here in Alliance last night and was followed by the brother. During their return trip Miss Branner put on Augustine's fur coat and the brother mistook her for Augustine and fired the remaining charge into the fleeing Augustine, but only slightly injured him. Sixty-four No. 4 shot were taken from the back of Miss Branner in the hospital here today and her condition is reported to be not too serious. She is expected to live through the night. Both men are in jail.

FATAL AFFRAY NEAR LEXINGTON

Dave Fisher Killed by Emery Mathews in Fight at Dance.

LEXINGTON, Nov. 8.—(Special Telegram.)—Last night a fatal affray occurred about fifteen miles northeast of this place at a dance between Dave Fisher and Emery Mathews, two neighbors who were not on good terms with each other. Hot words passed and Mathews struck Fisher twice with his fist, one blow on the jaw the other over the heart, the latter blow killing him instantly. Mathews fled but a sheriff's posse captured him today and he was placed under arrest. Coroner Wade summoned a jury and inquired into the affray. The verdict that deceased came to his death by a blow from Mathew's fist. Mathews is now in jail awaiting further developments, this being Sunday no charge has not yet been filed.

FARMER COMMITTED SUICIDE

Frank L. Merryman of Miller Shoots Himself in Neck.

KEARNEY, Neb., Nov. 8.—(Special Telegram.)—Frank L. Merryman, a well-to-do farmer, killed himself at midnight Saturday by shooting himself in the neck with a shotgun at his home. The coroner's jury met today at Miller and gave a verdict of suicide. Merryman was a married man and had had family troubles. He was divorced from his wife a year ago and they remarried last month. No word was left.

AUTOMOBILE IS FATAL TO TWO

Runs into Huggy at Falls City, Causes Fatalities.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Nov. 8.—Mrs. August Mueller was killed and her husband probably fatally injured Saturday when a buggy in which they were riding was run into by an automobile. The driver of the automobile sought to stop his machine and succeeded, but the horse of Mueller's plough wildly threw up occupants under the buggy and the automobile.

RISE IN PRICES OF STOCKS

REACTION FAILS TO ARRIVE Demand is Sufficient to Absorb Realizing Sales—Improvement in the Situation is Greater Than Expected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The release of much industrial news held in reserve pending the national election was counted upon with the passing of that event. The record of the last week in that respect was an agreement with the confident expectation universally held in financial circles. In the response of the stock market to the situation, however, there was a genuine surprise. As the speculative medium of events to come rather than those already accomplished the action of the stock market indicates that the extensive advance in prices which had occurred over the level of last year's depression, which fully commensurate with the improvement there is a relative element in the advance, did not begin to measure the hopes of the ultimate improvement to occur. The outbreak of a furor of speculation last week was a result of the election, so far as the great parties are concerned, and was accepted in Wall street before the decision at the polls. It was the common expectation that the speculative element based on these conditions and the fact that prices were brought on the eve of election to the highest elevation of the year, that abundant supplies of stocks would be offered to meet every possible demand which would be attracted from the less practiced speculative public and from investment sources.

Reaction Fails to Come

There were few observers in Wall street who had not given the advice that the first after-election rise in prices would be followed, almost certainly by a sharp reaction. The inrush for stocks, on the contrary has been sufficient to sweep all selling to realize with a sustained upward movement of prices. The news of the week contained plentiful evidence of the quick movement that has occurred towards the revival of industrial and commercial activity following the election. The response in this field apparently exceeds as much the expectation as does the market movement of stocks. One apprehension dispelled by the result of the election and which was lost sight of in the consideration of the larger results was that the minor political parties would reveal a growth of revolutionary doctrines that would serve as a portent of future dangers to capital and property rights, even if no concrete results were achieved.

Effect of Taft's Speech

The important part played by the minor parties seems to have dispelled this anxiety entirely. There can be no doubt, in fact, that the financial sentiment has read in the sentiment of the elections a revolution of sentiment in the country from the spirit of hostility to capital as it is embodied in the great corporations. Judge Taft's speech to the Commercial club of Cincinnati, although protesting adherence to the Roosevelt policies and warning offending corporations of the purpose to pursue and punish them, was seized upon with avidity to indicate immunity from further irksome restraints with serious effect on the speculative sentiment. The announcement that the Northern Pacific directors to distribute $2.36 per share of "concealed assets" to its stockholders, was interpreted also as a bravado of formerly hostile public sentiment, which was directed by state legislative acts toward limiting freight charges.

Effect of Blow on the Head Overcome by a Knock on the Head

Surgery as a cure for moral degenerates had a remarkable demonstration in this case. He was unconscious for about sixty seconds and was then driven home in a cab. He returned to his position and remained there for twelve years, when he was discharged for drunkenness and misuse of the company's funds. To quote his own words: "I looked upon money and the spending of it as a thing which I was not responsible for. I spent it right and left—I might say, threw it away—and because I did not have enough of my own, I helped myself to what which belonged to the company, and yet I did not think I was doing anything wrong. I felt that everything would come out right. I felt happy and contented. My chief pleasure was in spending on lots of foolish things and in drinking whisky. "His accident had no effect on his memory. The patient himself summed up the effects of his head injury when he said he had all his faculties except his sense of normal responsibility."

TIPS FOR OUTGOING HUNTERS

Pleasure, Profit and Safety Condensed into Two Words, "Don't Shoot."

The text of this brief sermon addressed to all who propose going afield after game, big or small, is this: Don't leave your common sense at home when you set out for the hunting ground. And as an opening remark, don't fail to cut this article out and take it with you.

For fear that you might not see the force of which opening, just listen to this: The writer foregathered lately with a gentleman from one of the large cities of the west, a man of thinking, himself a fair hunter and is certainly reputed a hunter of class. He delivered himself as follows apropos of the rudimentary principle of all hunting, viz.:

"Don't shoot until you know what you are shooting at."

"I was up in north Minnesota deer hunting last fall and got a lesson I won't soon forget. I learned how easily a man who is sure he knows better can do worse and not half try. On my way up I picked up a copy of the St. Paul Pioneer Press containing a reprinted article from the New York Times which interested me greatly, though I never then dreamed that it was to be the means of averting a tragedy. One rule it laid down was when in doubt of the identity of anything looking like deer, but to which as deer you could not swear, to 'holer.'"

"Now I thought that any fool ought to know that, but mark what followed. I secured quarters with a 'winchester' farmer. I knew and the morning after reaching his place set out by my lonesome. He had told me that a moose or two were loose and when I glimpsed the unmistakable coat of the big moose through some thick brush perhaps 200 yards from where I was crossing a thick piece of timber I threw my rifle to my shoulder and drew a bead on Mr. Moose."

"But I did not pull the trigger. Into my mind came the printed warning and although I was not in doubt a little bit I yelled. An answer came back instantly and a moment later my host stepped into view and came toward me. And I sat down on a log with the moose pouring out of every pore—and a lot more going to prove that an experienced hunter had left his common sense at home and but for God's mercy and through no fault of his own had escaped the guilt of blood."

"Take your common sense with you when you go to hunt. It will teach you that there is no resemblance between a man and a deer or bear and will force you when in doubt to 'holer' and keep on 'holering' until you get an answer or see the suspicious object run.

Don't leave your common sense at home. If you take it with you it will interfere and stop every time you start to drag a gun out of or through anything by the barrel with the muzzle pointing straight at your body or head. That is the method of suicide, self-mutilation, or manslaughter most favored of gentlemen users of the shotgun, although some do either as a joke or as a similar manner with the rifle.

Use a hammerless, do you? And so you can drag your gun any old way and still

SCENIC WILL BE CORN SHOW

Decorations Contemplate Elaborate Scheme at Lavish Cost.

BEST SKILL TO BE ENLISTED Auditorium Will Be Transformed into a Vast Panorama of Scenic Beauty by Ninth of December.

Scenic and decorative effects at the National Corn exposition this year will be the most luxurious and lavish that money, architectural skill, diligence and good taste can achieve. The decorations will in themselves be such a triumph in embellishment as has never been equaled in the great middle west.

So much has been decided by the directors of the exposition, although details of the work have not yet been determined. There are awaiting selection a number of complete decorative schemes of great beauty and magnitude submitted by local and foreign decorators and probably a choice will be made among these, although it is wished to emphasize the fact that decoration will be left to the artists. The possibilities in the way of decorating the Auditorium for the great exposition are fairly dazzling. The mammoth stage offers a choice to the scenic artist for the loveliest of perspective effects and the stupor of the grand and beamy sky affords another opportunity in which an enthusiast along this line could not but revel in the possibility of artistic creation.

It is probable that at the sides of the hall long-ranging peristyles will be erected and it is unnecessary to suggest that here, too, the architect of the decorative scheme has a rare chance.

Delicate shades of red, green and yellow, the royal colors of King Al-Sar-Ilen, have been vested as the official hues of the exposition and in the wealth of these there will come a pleasant flavor of the merry romances pertaining to his court and realm.

Rome Miller is chairman of the committee on decorations and suggestions in this respect should be made to him.

RECORDS IN TUNNEL BORING

"World's records in the tunneling line are being broken in Los Angeles," said Henry Martin.

The record of the great aqueduct which will bring the waters of the Owens river from the distant high Sierras to the city of Los Angeles. Several great tunnels are necessary. On the immense Elizabeth lake bore 167 feet has been excavated during the last few days, a world's record. The cost has been $3,110 a foot, while the board of expert engineers estimated that $75 a foot would be the lowest possible figure at which the work could be done. One mile of this tunnel is now completed.

"On the Guinness tunnel 320 feet a month has been bored, which is considered extraordinary."—Milwaukee Sentinel.
