AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Eight-Year-Old Boy Tramp Mistaken for Burglar.

WORK ON RALSTON TRACTION LINE

Grading is Completed with the Exception of First Few Blocks West of Fortieth Street.

After answering a call to Twentieth and Missouri avenue late Saturday night, Captain Nels Turnquist succeeded in capturing the youngest tramp in South Omaha. He was Charles Crawford, a boy of 8 years. His parents live in South Omaha, but the boy left home early in the evening and spent all the earlier hours of the night roaming the streets. About 1 a. m. Sunday morning someone discovered him in a narrow place between a shed and the wall of the Hufsky drug store at Twentieth and Missouri avenue. Thinking it was a burglar and not being able to see well in the shadow, Mrs. William Hufsky called the police. When the officer arrived and picked up the diminutive burglar the woman nearly screamed with astonishment. The boy was placed in the women's department. The parents come for him Sunday and explained that he had plenty to eat and a good place to sleep at home, but he preferred to be in the streets. They promised to keep him in. After all day spent in jail the boy was very glad to be released on his promise to stay home and obey his parents.

Work on Ralston Line.

The Interurban line to Ralston has been advancing its grades rapidly lately. This line will extend from the Ralston townsite to Fortieth and Q streets. The grading is all complete with the exception of the few blocks to connect it up to the lines of the Omaha & Council Bluffs street railway. With the completion of this line much more interest will be taken in the Ralston proposition by people who have property there. It is said that the Howard Stove Works plant is advancing rapidly.

Dr. R. L. Wheeler preached a sermon last night on the grief of King David of Israel over the death of his son Absalom. He compared the grief of David to that of Christ who later went to Jerusalem because of the people would not receive His teachings. The theme underlying all the sermon was the fatherhood of God like that of the earthly father hurt by the rebellion of His son. Following the line of thought the minister declared that fathers are of several kinds, one of which is illustrated in the best fathers, whose sacrifices are continuous for their children. Then there is the father who robs his child of the grace and dignity of fatherhood by being selfish and by seeking his own rather than his children's pleasure. Such a father should cultivate greater faith and present the God his mother believed in so well for the son's consideration. If this is not done, it will be followed by some such grief as King David had to endure.

ATTEMPT TO KILL OFFICIAL

Sensational Effort Made to Kill Lieutenant Governor of Bengal.

CALCUTTA, Nov. 9.—A daring attempt was made last evening by a Bengali to assassinate Sir Andrew Henderson Leith Fraser the lieutenant governor of Bengal. Like three other attempts since his appointment to that office in 1903, this latest attack upon him proved unsuccessful, Sir Henderson escaping without injury.

The lieutenant governor accompanied by the Maharajah of Burdwan, an important division of Bengal, and Secretary Barber of the Young Men's Christian association, attended the lecture given by Prof. H. D. Burton of Chicago university at the town hall, which was crowded with an audience that included many of the most prominent residents. Just as the lieutenant governor stepped upon the dais, a young man, who afterwards gave the name of Nhowdbury, rushed up and thrust a revolver within a few inches of Sir Andrew's body and pulled the trigger twice, but the cartridges missed fire, and Mr. Barber, who is an American, flung himself upon the Bengali.

The latter struck savagely at the secretary with his revolver and wounded him severely on the head, but was eventually overpowered. In the meantime Maharajah, a man of great stature and strength, seized Lieutenant Governor Fraser and swung him bodily through a door out of harm's way.

A group of Bengalis occupying the front chairs jumped quickly to their feet and rushed from the hall. They escaped during the commotion. It is believed that they were present to assist Nhowdbury, but took alarm at his complete failure to carry out his plan.

PATRICK RAISES NEW POINT

Convicted Murderer Demands Freedom Because His Sentence Was Commuted.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—To argue before the United States supreme court a motion to advance the appeal to that court in the case of Albert T. Patrick, convicted of the murder of William Marsh Rice, in this city eight years ago, William L. McDonald, attorney for Patrick, left tonight for Washington.

The motion is expected to come up before the supereme court tomorrow, when Patrick's counsel says he will further ask the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus for the production of Patrick in Washington in order that he may argue his case himself. The appeal in the case is from a decision of the United States district court, holding Patrick's imprisonment is constitutional.

Patricks' appeal to the United States courts, curiously enough is to declare illegal the commutation granted him by Governor Higgins whereby his sentence to the electric chair was changed to imprisonment for life. Patrick himself prepared the appeal and in it he made the point that life imprisonment was a much severer sentence than that which condemned him to die, that Governor Higgins exceeded his constitutional powers when he changed the sentence despite the protests of the defendant and that he (Patrick) should either be electrocuted or given his freedom.

ARKANSAS JUDGE THREATENED

Night Riders Leave Letter in Yard of County Official at Pocahontas.

LITTLE Rock, Ark., Nov. 9.—A special to the Gazette from Pocahontas, Ark., says: A letter found in the yard of County Judge S. M. White here, which threatens not only personal vengeance to some of the citizens, but to destroy the entire town unless certain orders contained in the missive are obeyed, has prompted the Randolph County Farmers' union in session here to adopt resolutions strongly denouncing night riding.

STRANGE MALADY AT CORNING

Six Persons Stricken with New Disease and Two Die.

CORNING, Ia., Nov. 9.—(Special.)—A strange malady is affecting Corning citizens, six being stricken during the week and two cases proving fatal, one inside of twenty-four hours.

Corning physicians are baffled by the strange disease and Dr. Macrae of Council Bluffs has been called to attend the latest patient stricken and to diagnose the trouble. Leander Lehnen, the first victim stricken, died within twenty-four hours from what Corning doctors pronounced an obstruction of the bowels. In a few days Matthias Lynch was taken with a similar complaint and died in a few days. On the evening of the day he died, Max Farley was taken ill with symptoms similar to the first victims. It was then Dr. Macrae was telephoned for, but before his arrival the patient had been relieved, though still in a critical condition and it is thought he cannot recover. Miss Nellie Runyan was the fourth victim and while her condition is not as serious as the others, she has the same symptoms, and last night two more cases were reported from there. The Council Bluffs specialist only arrived last night and his diagnosis has not been received yet. All the patients have been exceptionally strong physically, which makes the cases still more perplexing.

At the Theaters

"The Man from Home" at the Boyd.

A comedy in four acts by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Watson; presented by Liebler and company; characters and players:

Daniel Voorhees Pike	Henry Hall
The Grand Duke Vasili Vasilivitch	Charles D. Herman
The Earl of Hawcastle	Harrington Reynolds
The Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn	Ivan F. Simpson
Ivanoff	William Corbett
Horace Granger—Simpson	W. Leonard Howe
Ribiere	Eugene McGillan
Mariano	Albert Roccardi
Michele	Antonio Olivieri
1st Carabiniere	Alfredo Della Velle
2d Carabiniere	Gerraro Cibelli
3d Carabiniere	Alfredo Ferrari
Valet de Chambre	Harry Brewster
Ethel Granger—Simpson	Rosina Henley
Comtesse de Champigny	Louise Beadet
Lady Cheech	Maggie Holloway Fisher

When the luck is against you, when your opponents have made a grand slam and your fair partner at bridge is on the verge of tears, you have turned to her with the consoling remark that "those cards would play themselves." Similarly in "The Man from Home"—the lines would play themselves even had they not been allotted to so capable a company as was seen last night at the Boyd in the Tarkington-Wilson play.

Take a young girl from her Indiana home at an early age, surround her with a set of decadent Europeans of title, impress her with the effective glamour which pertains to ancient lineage, teach her that the word "American" really stands for everything that is raw and crude and vulgar and that marriage with a nobleman is the summum bonum of life and you have the situation in which Ethel Simpson is found at the opening of the play. The heroine thus enmeshed in the net of a titled lot of blackguards is about to marry the Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn, heir of the earl of Hawcastle when "the man from home" arrives on the scene.

It is an effective piece of stagecraft to contrast a virile midwestern American with the European whited sepulchres and when lines are put in his mouth which will appeal of their own substance, it is no wonder that an audience grows more and more enthusiastic over the character. Hearty applause for instance greeted the following lines:

The Grand Duke—You are proud of your country?

Daniel Vorhees Pike—Well, for architecture and sanitation, I wouldn't trade our state insane asylum for the worst ruined ruin in Europe.

It must be added, however, that the patriotism of the principal character is neither blatant nor smug, but is the expression of genuine love for the best that is American, and particularly western American; for American vigor and enterprise, for the spirit that prefers energy and honesty to the indolence and the lack of self-respect which will permit a foreigner to be maintained by his wife's dot. The grand duke says to Pike:

"But you have no nobility in America."

"No," answers the Kokomo lawyer. "Over there, if a man won't work for money he has at least got to show energy enough to steal it."

These lines are significant of the whole spirit of the play and the message of the vigorous young American authors who wrote it. The repartee which just preceded this exchange is also worth quoting. The same grand duke says to Pike, "You have no leisure class in America," and the hero answers:

"Well, we have a pretty considerable colored population."

Pike, played by Henry Hall, is, of course, rebuffed in his efforts to get Ethel Granger-Simpson, who is, by the way, his ward, to break off the match and therefore refuses to consent to the financial settlement which the fiancee and his father insist on. This produces the desired complication and clash of human wills which most critics insist is essential to a good drama.

In act III Pike produces Ivanoff confronting the guilty friend and his paramour with the man whom they betrayed and sent to Siberia. The grand duke gets a pardon by wire from St. Petersburg for Ivanoff and all would be well did not Miss Simpson still consider herself bound by her pledge to St. Aubyn.

In the last act, Pike, greatly to her surprise and pain, says he will now agree to the marriage, settlement, and all, and when her brother, who favored the marriage until the expose, protests vigorously, Pike answers:

"I am crossing my Rubicon, and when you are crossing a Rubicon you want to cross; not wade out to the middle and get — from both sides."

St. Aubyn, however, manages to turn a searchlight on the murky depths of his character and the girl announced herself released. Those who had all along a sneaking conviction that the Man from Home would ultimately capture the young woman's hand find thmselves justified in the belief.

Partly by excellence of acting and partly because the role is so what actors call "fat," Henry Hall as Pike held the center of the stage most of the evening. Charles D. Herman, suave and dignified as the grand duke, and William Corbett as Ivanoff, also seized the favor of the audience. Harrington Reynolds played the earl and played it well, but was of course too much of a villain to be thoroughly liked. Similarly, Ivan Simpson as the dull-witted, "eh what" St. Aubyn.

Of the women, Miss Henley made a sweetly girlish Ethel and if she sometimes seemed to lack vigor, it was partly because of the insipidity of the role. Miss Beadet and Miss Fisher were effective in their parts. "The Man from Home" will run through Wednesday evening, with a matinee that day.

At the Krug.

Murray and Mack, they of perennial youth and eternal jollity, opened at the Krug yesterday for a four night engagement. "The Sunny Side of Broadway" is the title of their present vehicle which may best be described in their own words: A bit of foolery, music and movement, which makes no dramatic pretensions, has very little reason and not much rhyme, and whose only mission is to add just a little more to the gayety of nations.

Of course both the principals have Irish parts, they would scarcely be recognizable in anything else, so long have they been identified with these mirthful characters.

The company is large and capable. The chorus can sing a bit, is shapely and surprisingly young. Many bits of new "business" were introduced which kept the audience in a roar. The specialties are good and as a whole the production is well worth seeing if one desires an evening of fun and laughter without anything serious to worry over.

Vaudeville at the Orpheum.

Disagree as much as theater patrons do sometimes over a given play, the amount of such difference is small compared to the debate which a vaudeville bill will sometimes engender. Admit all that, and yet it may safely be asserted that the current bill at the Orpheum will satisfy all who may venture within the theater during the six days of this week, for practically every feature of the bill will appeal to all kinds and conditions of amusement patrons. There are several numbers, however, which are more certain to do this than others, and of these the headline offering, "A Night on a Houseboat," and the comedy, "The Mayor and the Manicure," are absolutely assured of universal favor.

The second of these is a playlet from the pen of George Ade and is far and away the best sketch he has written for the vaudeville stage. In fact, it is so far ahead of the sketch called "A Kentucky Colonel" that Ade must be sorry he wrote the latter. It is noteworthy, too, in showing a distinct advance in stagecraft over "The County Chairman," popular as that comedy was. In "The Mayor and the Manicure" there is offered a satirical study of the successful politician which makes the humor of "The County Chairman" seem cheap and obvious. The sketch is given by Edwin Holt and company. The rest are excellent, but Holt—is an actor. It is his first appearance in the vaudeville field, and if he cares to continue on the vaudeville stage, he can stay there as long and as successfully as any man who can be named.

"A Night on a Houseboat" is one of the most pretentious and elaborate offerings on the vaudeville stage today, and the stage setting is remarkably handsome, reproducing something of the opulence of the houseboat which lazily floats amid the alligators of St. John's river. There are nine men and girls in the act, headed by O'Malley Jennings, whose forte is the characterization of the musical comedy sort of Englishman, a more familiar figure on the musical comedy stage than in vaudeville. His humor is funnier than the average. Of the song numbers in the offering, "What the Searchlight Shows" is the most novel in type and the most successful. The supporting octet sings and dances with the vim and precision which have gone a long way to make popular "Little Johnny Jones" and other Cohan entertainments.

These two numbers are far from being the whole bill, however. Mabel Sinclair is one of the ablest girl ventriloquists in captivity. Her coster accent, it may be observed in passing, reminds one much of Albert Chevalier, and the flavor of the London music hall is noticeable in all the songs and jokes of her dummy accomplices.

The bill is opened by Espe, Dutton and Espe, three gymnasts whose pantomime is a feature of their act, and whose neck-imperilling activities are done with careless sangfroid. Mlle. Bertha Pertina, a toe-dancer, follows them. She is rather more graceful than most young women who pirouette with soles at right angles to the horizon, and is notable, too, among toe-dancers because her dancing has not produced disfiguring lumps of muscle where gentle curves ought to be. Thomas Carroll and Joseph M. Baker received enthusiastic applause for a dance and song turn interspersed with humor of an obvious kind, but at which there was exceedingly hearty laughter.

DIETZES DEFEAT THE SUPERIORS

Wins Fast Game at Own Park—Score 35 to 11.

The Dietz Foot Ball team defeated the Superiors at Dietz park Sunday afternoon in a fast game before a large crowd, by the score of 35 to 11.

Two touchdowns were scored in the first half and four in the second. The Dietz attack proved almost irresistible and line plunging usually netted three to seven yards at every play. The Superior's attack was surprisingly weak and both of their touchdowns were made on fumbles by the Dietz.

Warren played a good game at left half for Dietz. His line smashes were powerful and with the assistance of Goodrich tore ragged gaps in the Superior line. Quigley's end runs evading tacklers were spectacular. Thomas' work throughout the game was excellent. His punting was effective. Coady played a great game. Trowbridge, Tracy and Smith were the stars that shone brightest for Superior.

The Superiors tried the forward pass without much success. Dietz broke every attempt. Quigley won the toss and chose to kick off, the ball being recovered by Tracy, on the ten-yard line, who was downed after a fifteen-yard gain. The Superiors were forced to punt. Dietz went through the line for ten and fifteen yards at a clip, until they reached the eight-yard line. Whinnery going over for the first touchdown. Quigley kicked goal. Tracy kicked off to Quigley who advanced ten yards. Line smashes by Goodrich, Warren, Rogers and Whinnery and end runs by Quigley sent the ball up the field to the eight-yard line; then Warren shot through the line for a touchdown. Quigley kicked off to Trowbridge, who advanced five yards.

The Superiors were forced to punt. Quigley, assisted by the wind, misjudged the ball and it bounced over Albers' head; a Superior man recovered the ball and dashed down the field for a touchdown. Hachten kicked goal. Time called: Score, 12 to 6, in Dietz' favor.

Second half. Tracy kicked off to Thomas, who advanced ten yards. Thomas punted and Whinnery recovered the ball on a fumble. Quigley went sixty yards around the end for a touchdown. Thomas kicked goal. Quigley kicked off to Tracy, who advanced five yards. The Superiors tried their forward pass, but Coady recovered the ball. Line smashes by Thomas, Goodrich and Whinnery advanced the ball to the fifteen-yard line. Quigley went around the end for a touchdown. Thomas missed goal. Thomas' kicked off to Gaul, who was downed in his tracks. The Superiors punted. Line smashes and end runs advanced the leather egg to the ten-yard line. Then Thomas went through the tackle for a touchdown. Quigley kicked a difficult goal. Tracy kicked off to Goodrich, who came back ten yards. Goodrich's signal called for an end run and as he was tackled the ball was knocked from his arm and a Superior man recovered same and ran twenty-five yards for a touchdown. Hachten missed goal. Quigley kicked off to Gaul, who advanced ten yards. The Superior's forward pass again failed, being broke up by Dietz. Line plunges and end runs brought the ball to the ten-yard line; there Thomas shot through the tackle for the last touchdown of the day. Quigley kicked goal.

Final score, 35 to 11.

Neligh and Madison Tie.

NELIGH, Neb., Nov. 9.—(Special.)—A closely contested game of foot ball was played yesterday between the high school teams of Neligh and Madison on the grounds of the latter. Neither side scored. This game places Neligh in line for the championship of northeast Nebraska.

IOWA NOW TO PLAY DRAKE

Illinois Quarterback Wins Game for Team at Champaign.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 9.—(Special.)—With the team in as good condition as any time this season the Iowa squad today begins preparations for the Drake game here next Saturday on Iowa Field, in the first and only big state game played by the University of Iowa foot ball team this fall.

Drake has a good foot ball machine, carefully coached by "Silent John" Griffith and the student body fears the Drake team more than at the first of the season. The undergraduates are anxious for the Old Gold to defeat Drake by a decisive score, however, so as to better the team's standing in state circles.

The Hawkeye eleven arrived from Champaign yesterday afternoon. Sinnock is the one word which explains the defeat, according to the members of the team. Without the wonderful little 130-pound quarterback the Illini would have been "pickin's" for Iowa so the rooters say.

Iowa students who went to the game state that the score does not represent the relative merits of the teams. Iowa made a harder fight than the score indicates, so it is claimed. Particular praise is given Seidel and Gross for their star work in the Iowa line. Captain Van Hook left the game in the middle of the second half while "Si" stuck through to the very end and despite the hard battle with the Illinois captain. Gross dug around on the off tackle bucks with great force and he played an able game on the defense. However, Iowa could not stop the deadly passes of the midget Sinnock. Iowa's line sifted through the Illinois forwards easily and would pounce down on the Illinois quarter. He could run backwards almost as fast as they could forward. When a man was loose he would hurl the ball for good gains, even though he ran back twelve or fifteen yards.

The score of the Nebraska-Ames game was welcome news here, as the ratio was practically the same as the Iowa S score against the Old Gold. Alumni of both Ames and Iowa are keenly regretting the fact that the teams cannot meet this season as the interest in no other state contest approaches the enthusiasm manifest when these two rivals meet. The action was taken despite the earnest opposition of the Des Moines S. U. I. alumni, who have always been prominent backers of university athletic teams and now the wisdom of their stand is seen.

FOOT BALL OUTLOOK IN THE EAST

Indications that Harvard Will Finish in First Place.

BOTON, Mass., Nov. 9.—Although the finishing touches are yet to be put to the majority of the important eastern college foot ball teams to prepare them for the championship games, various remarkable events on the gridiron yesterday seem to make it practicable to pick the present leader in the foot ball world.

On the basis of Harvard's victory over Carlisle Saturday, Brown's tie game with Yale and Dartmouth's win over Princeton, Harvard would seem to have first place.

Carlisle, which held the University of Pennsylvania to a score of 6 to 0, was trounced by Harvard yesterday, 17 to 0. Brown, which Harvard had little difficulty in beating, 6 to 2, a week ago, outplayed Yale yesterday, the Blue sympathizers feeling lucky to escape with a 10 to 10 tie. With Dartmouth, which showed decidedly superiority over Princeton in its 10 to 6 victory in New York, Harvard had only Williams' scores for comparison. Harvard disposed of Williams, 19 to 0, and the Berkshire boys in their next game outplayed Dartmouth in a scoreless contest.

Score comparisons, however, are unreliable in the present development of the teams. Harvard has probably shown the greatest development of any of the big eastern elevens for the past week.

Dartmouth, with the exception of Pishon, the little quarterback, has practically the same team that last year overwhelmed Harvard.

These two elevens meet next Saturday and should Dartmouth win she would realize its ambition to rank among the very first.

Iowa Falls Again Beaten.

IOWA FALLS, Ia., Nov. 9.—(Special.)—Once again the Iowa State Normal school of Cedar Falls through its foot ball team trailed the colors of the local college in the dust, when by the score of 15 to 0, the team from the banks of the Cedar defeated the college team here, Saturday. This was the second
