Hoer was against accusation and equivocation. We gave timely warning to the Hoers that they would be alone against England and that there was no doubt regarding the result.

The facts with reference to the question of intervention long have been public property and whether the communication of these to our Victoria constituted a violation of diplomatic rules depends on circumstances unknown to the public. Concerning the statement attributed to Emperor William that a majority of the German people are hostile to Great Britain, the expression used by the Telegraph is too strong. Serious and regrettable misunderstandings have existed between Great Britain and Germany, but the German people desire peaceful and friendly relations with that empire, joined with mutual respect.

Too great stress also is laid upon the point in the interview dealing with our interests in the Pacific ocean, which are incorrectly presented as inimical to Japan. We never thought about eastern Asia except for the purpose of obtaining a portion of the trade arising from economic development and we have no idea of undertaking a maritime adventure there. The extension of the German fleet is just as little intended for aggression in the Pacific ocean as in Europe. The task in Germany's policy is not to limit the development of Japan.

No Secret Designs.
For twenty years the emperor has striven to improve the relations with Great Britain, often under difficult circumstances. The peoples of both countries occasionally have attacked each other without real justification and the emperor considers this a misfortune for both and a danger to the civilized world. The em-

MURDER STIRS TENNESSEE

Shooting of Former Senator Carmack Creates Big Sensation.

YOUNG MAN SLIGHTLY INJURED

Robin Cooper Will Recover from His Wounds—He Says He is Sorry Shooting Occurred—Cooper Now in Jail.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 10.—Messages wire and various sections testify to the tremendous sensation caused throughout the state and the south by the killing of former United States Senator E. W. Carmack by young Robin Jones Cooper in a street duel here late yesterday afternoon.

Carmack's brilliant career as a United States senator from Tennessee had made him one of the best known national figures. Colonel Duncan B. Cooper, father of young Robin Cooper, and who was with his son when the duel occurred, has an extensive acquaintance and a legion of friends both in his own and various other states.

Carmack's nomination as senator in 1892 was a democratic senator, in which he was defeated by Senator Robert I. Taylor, and his more recent race for the governorship, in which he was defeated by Governor Patterson, have served to draw his following in the state closer to him and his tragic and abrupt death has attracted attention among them. It is feared by some that the end of the trouble is not yet, and it is sure to play a part in coming political alignments.

In each of Carmack's recent campaigns feeling ran to fever heat and on both occasions Cooper was with the opposition. In former years the men were dear friends, Carmack having declared in public print that Cooper was his benefactor. But friendship was more noticeable since Carmack became editor of the Tennesseean following the late primary. Then the editorial attacks began which culminated in yesterday's killing.

Carmack's Body Taken to Columbia.
After having been prepared for burial the body of the dead ex-senator was removed to the home of Frank Lander, business manager of his newspaper, the Tennesseean. There it remained until removed today to Columbia, where it will be interred. Mr. Carmack was married at Columbia and had made that city his home until he went to the Tennesseean. Mrs. Carmack had not yet become a resident of Nashville. Although almost prostrated she came to Nashville last night and returned with her husband's body today.

Robin Cooper, after having had his wound dressed, spent a quiet night in a hospital in charge of an officer. His injury proves to be but slight. This morning he was reported as resting easy. Colonel Cooper, his father, spent the night at police headquarters and is reported to have slept well. Two warrants were sworn out against him, one "accessory to murder" and the other "carrying a pistol." In the first instance the complaint is Mrs. E. W. Carmack, in the latter it is the mayor and city council. Cooper gave his occupation as that of a farmer. He accepted the situation calmly, although once or twice he seemed somewhat affected and observed that the shot was meant for him and not for his boy. He was reconciled to his condition of imprisonment, remarking that as a soldier in the confederate army he had spent more than one year in a prison.

Colonel Cooper turned over his revolver, none of the chambers of which had been emptied, to a police sergeant. Robin Cooper did likewise with his, and one empty shell dropped out of the magazine when the young man's weapon was unbraced. It is an automatic magazine revolver, and it is not known how many shots had been fired, but it was thought that an examination would show three. Two of the chambers of the revolver of Senator Carmack were empty.

Work on Campaign Statement.
The republican state committee is busy preparing its report of the receipts and expenditures of the campaign, to be filed with the county clerk of Pawnee county and for publication. The report will show that the national republican committee contributed $22,500 to the Nebraska campaign. The bulk of this sum was received just before the election, when Harry Lindsay went to Chicago and got it. No other money was received by anyone in Nebraska from the national committee.

Contest for Lodge Office.
Mrs. Letkey, former grand chief of honor of the Degree of Honor, has filed suit in the district court to have set aside the election of Mrs. Clever, selected grand chief of honor at the recent state meeting of the order. Mrs. Clever was also named as defendant. She was elected by a majority of one vote. Mrs. Letkey contends that two more votes were cast on the second ballot than on the first and that fully twenty people were out in the hall when the votes were cast; that the ballots were collected in a hat instead of requiring the voters to walk to the front of the hall and deposit their ballots. The papers were served on Mrs. Clever today.

Shallenberger Sees Applicants.
Governor-elect Shallenberger was here today and then went to Seward. He held a meeting with prospective appointees at Lincoln during his visit. Leo Herdman of Omaha was in town, but not for the purpose of interfering in the matter of appointments, he said.

In Seventeen counties the electors cast a total of 1,936 votes and the prohibitionists 2,353 votes on elector.

Attorney General Thompson in order to prevent the judgment of $112 obtained by the state December 1st, 1907, from being set aside by the secretary of State William F. Porter, from becoming dormant, today made a request in the district court of Lancaster county for an execution for the purpose of levying upon property belonging to Mr. Porter, who is now a resident of Lincoln. The judgment is for fees collected for mail and brands, which Mr. Porter retained under a statute which provided he should. Attorney General Porter filed suit for the state in May 1907 to recover, alleging that portion of a state permitting a state officer to retain fees was unconstitutional. The district court dismissed the suit, the supreme court reversed this judgment as to Porter and affirmed it as to his bondsmen who were parties to the suit. Judgment for $112 was then levied against Porter by the district court and affirmed by the supreme court.

LACK OF CONCERTED ACTION

Belief Protective Tariff is Quarantine Against Flood of Low Priced Products from Countries in Depression.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—A number of manufacturers of chemicals appeared today at the first meeting of the house on ways and means to consider proposed changes in the tariff law, which are to be made at a special session of congress to be called after March 4, next. John F. Queney of St. Louis, Dr. Springer of Cincinnati and George A. Brown of Philadelphia were among those heard. They represented a number of commercial establishments and advocated the retention of the present tariff on chemicals and chemical products, but contended that if this policy could not be pursued certain raw materials entering into the production of these articles and which are not produced in this country should be placed upon the free list. Chairman Payne, of the committee, announced that morning and afternoon sessions would be held and if necessary the committee would sit evenings in order to complete the hearings within the time allotted. The chemical, drug, and liquor interests are well represented here today, but aside from the color and paint manufacturers there seems to be a lack of concerted action among the representatives of any of these industries. Many of these people will be heard with regard to changes in the construction of phrasingology of certain paragraphs in the tariff affecting their interests. Some are in favor of a reduction in the tariff on raw materials, but the majority are advocating a protective tariff. They do not desire any change in the rates of duty for fear that it would disturb the business conditions of the country. A peculiar situation with regard to "Schedule A" of the tariff is that articles that are regarded as raw materials for one industry are finished products for another and consequently arguments are due to arise on some of these articles.

Quarantine Against Depression.
Eugene Mote, a representative of the paint and color industries, who is to appear before the committee today, will advocate a continuation of the present tariff rates on the ground that "a protective tariff is a quarantine against infection of the business depression of other nations." He claims that the exporters of other nations endeavor to unload their products on this country at cost when business conditions are bad in their own.

The majority of the ways and means committee claim that it is necessary for this country to adopt a tariff with a maximum and minimum rate of duty in order to conform with the tariffs adopted by France, Germany and Russia. In this way the United States could get the benefit of the "favored nation" clause of those countries in return for the minimum rate of duty of our tariff. In foreign countries which have adopted such a tariff there is a reduction of about 20 per cent in the minimum rate. The manufacturers who are advocating a protective tariff want the present rates of duty the minimum rate in the new tariff bill, which would result in a considerable increase in the rates of duty for countries which have no "favored nation" clause to offer the United States.

Taft Praises Nebraskans

Appreciates Their Services to National Committee and Party.

CHAIRMAN HITCHCOCK IS WINNER

Crawford Kennedy Travels 18,000 Miles and Distributes Millions of Tracts of Literature.

Having traveled over 18,000 miles in twenty-four states and distributed 5,500,000 pieces of campaign literature since September 18, in the interest of Judge Taft's election, Crawford Kennedy has returned to Nebraska and is tarrying in Omaha for a few days before going to his home at Albion, where he will soon "plant his corn."

Mr. Kennedy was sent out on the Taft train by the national republican committee. He had charge of the distribution of campaign literature and souvenirs and in this capacity served the committee vast sums of money which would have been spent in mailing and expressing had not this plan of distribution been adopted by Chairman Hitchcock.

Here are the states through which Mr. Kennedy traveled with Judge Taft, starting at Cincinnati, September 18, and going first to George Ade's farm at Brook, Ind.; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Connecticut and New York. He made the trip to the celebration of the Lincoln-Douglas debate at Galesburg.

Under Mr. Crawford's direction these tracts were distributed: One million and a half Taft photographs, 2,000,000 buttons, 500,000 Taft labor decisions, 250,000 Raymond Patterson life of Taft, 25,000 Dr. Lyman Abbott eulogy on Taft, 200,000 Roosevelt on Taft and 1,000,000 other documents.

Taft Praises Two Nebraskans.
"Judge Taft is a great, big man," says Mr. Kennedy. "We on the train with him throughout his strenuous campaign were impressed by the bigness and unselfishness of the man's character. He is a model of what a man always wants to give the other fellow cue credit. He is not afraid to express himself, as so many public men are. He had many words of praise and appreciation of the work that the committee, the newspapers and the people generally were all these things admirers of fact, but Judge Taft seemed to feel a personal debt of gratitude to every man who was aiding in his election. He was especially frank in his expressions of appreciation of Chairman Hitchcock and our own Bill Hayward, secretary of the national committee, and Victor Rosewater, director of the western bureau of publicity. 'Those boys are doing a magnificent work,' Judge Taft remarked one day toward the latter end of the campaign. 'If anybody thought the judge didn't know what was going on in minutest detail he was dead wrong. He kept a close tab on everything.'

The people of Nebraska have cause for feeling proud of the services rendered the party by Mr. Hayward and Mr. Rosewater. People of other states are proud of them, Chairman Hitchcock, a dynamo of energy and an executive of rare ability, praised them both very highly. He said that on more than one occasion that he thought it extremely unselfish in Mr. Rosewater to leave his personal work in Omaha and go to the front for the party when he was not looking for anything himself except the success of the ticket.

"I am certain that the republicans of this country, beginning with President Roosevelt and President Hoover, have long ago determined that the right man is selected for chairman. Mr. Hitchcock proved the wisdom of his selection in a very little while."

HOW UNCLE SAM MAKES MONEY

The Old Philadelphia Mint, The Largest in the World.

Five Hundred Million Coined Each Year.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 10, 1908. During the celebration of Founders' week, which took place recently, being the 125th anniversary of the founding of Philadelphia, the registers at the new mint showed during the week, days of the celebration a total registration of over 30,000 visitors to this building. These are the figures of the superintendent. This structure is the most magnificent of its kind in the world, occupies four acres and was erected at a cost of $4,500,000. Only gold and silver is coined in this building. The printing of the currency is done at Washington. The bullion is taken in and out of this building every day. It is shipped out in small kegs and resembles very much a small paint barrel, and excites no more curiosity to the average pedestrian than if its contents were nothing more than paint. The superintendent discovered that the United States government loses $1,000,000 a year in the making of gold coins, as there is considerable waste of the precious metal. Since it was discovered that a good deal of the metal goes up in smoke, a recent investigation led the commissioners to clean the smoke stacks and in the black soot taken from the chimney over 20,000 in gold was found. There are lots of people that are burning money in Omaha, and you may as well let it go up in smoke as to buy goods at the regular prices at other stores. Since the Omaha Clothing Company, at 1315 and 1316 Farnam street, has taken the lease on this building and selling out their establishment, goods are sold at a good deal less than the coat price. To give you an idea what merchandise is being sold for, we mention just a few prices. Bring this sheet with you and get the goods advertised.
