The American labor movement is not all in to a political party; it is partisan a p. inciple of equal rights and human The second quotation says:

The second quotation says:

Our conventions have frequently declared that our movement has neither the right nor the desire to dictate how a member shall cast his vote. It has been my privilege and honor always so to insist. I have not departed and cannot now depart from that true trade union course. At the Missapolis convention the following declaration was adopted:

"We must have with us in our economic movement men of all parties as well as of all creeds, and the minority right of the humblest man to vote where he pleases and to worship where his conscience dictates must be sacredly guarded."

The committee, in its remarks on the quotation, says:

We hold that this does not hold in the case of an executive officer while he remains as such. If he is unable to agree with this and must oppose, for conscientious reasons, any policy the committee believes in it is his right and duty to resign his office.

Shot Almed at Keefe.

This recommendation was aimed directly at Daniel J. Keefe, who as a member of the executive council came out in a public statement in support of William H. Taft for president after the council had declared for W. J. Bryan. The third quotation is the words of Mr.

Gompers on the political campaign, in which he said:

It has been my purpose to place before you the entire matter in my participation in the political campagn, whatever consequences it may entail. I submit it to you for such judgment as you may deem best to render and such action as for such judgment as you may deem best to render and such action as you may care to take. I am deeply conscious of this one fact, that I have endeavored to give voice to the wrongs which labor has endured and to which the tollers are subject. I have pleaded far the righting of these wrongs. I have pressed home to the fullest the sufferings and the injustice done my fellows. To the very limit of whatever ability or power I may possess I have strown it into the scale of the cause of my fellow workers.

TRAFFIC IN SLAVE WOMEN

Discoveries in Seattle Will Result in Shakeup in Immigration Offices.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19 .- With the arrest today at the instance of Secret Service Agent Miller of Captain T. R. Gawley, former master of sound steamships Edna and Advance, and K. Katayams, Japanese interpreter, charged with the importation of Japanese women into the United States, a general shakeup in the affairs of the local as well as the British Columbia immigration offices is expected.

A few months ago the department at Washington sent a woman decoy to Seattle, who upon her arrival here began her negotiations with the dealers in women. According to her statement she learned that Captain Gawley could furnish her with women and completed negotiations for as many Japanese women as he could get at $300 a head. A retainer of $200 was given him and a few days ago, upon request or demand, he was given $25 more. After furnishing the decoy with five women, Gawley became suspicious and was preparing to leave town last night when Secret Service Agent G. A. Miller, who had been shadow-

The principal event of the closing ses sion was the visit of a delegation from the American Association of Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations. Among the number was Prof. J. L. Competition with Cheap Products of Southern Countries Renders Protection a Necessity-Committee Hears Growers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 .- In the prepa ration of a new tariff bill to be presented at a special session of congress, March next, numerous changes in the schedute covering agricultural products and provisions will have to be considered by the ways and means committee of the house. The principle article about which there is a contention for a change in the duty appears to be citrus fruits, oranges, lemons and grape fruit. After hearing arguments from the Florida and California citrus friut growers, all urging high protective duty on those fruits Champ Clark, the most active questioner on the democratic or "duty for revenue" side of the committee, asked one of the witnesses "when are you fellows going to stand on your feet and have your trade self-supporting without the perpetual protection of the tariff?"

Mr. Rockefeller said his attention was first directed to lubricating oil about 1878. About 1878 the Standard Oil company purchased the American Lubricating Oil company of Cleveland and the Mica Axle Grease sompany. "What relations would be affected on the New York Central, Erie, Atlantic & Great Western and Baltimore & Ohio by the Pennsylvania having a refining business? Empire Transportation Company. Resuming his testimony after the recess Mr. Rockefeller said that when the Empire Transportation company was organized "our interests presented the matter to the railroads and protested to the Pennsylvania. We stopped our shipments over the Pennued. "We objected to the Pennsylvania ticket, railroad engaging in the refining business. We did not know where we stood. They were shipping their own oll over their own lines and discriminating against us. Other railroads agreed to stand by us, but there was much bitterness between the railroads. We made our shipments over the Lak-Shore, New York Central and we purchased the Empire Transportation company and pipe lines to which I have referred. The Pennsylvania railroad acquired the cars of the Empire company and issued car trust certificates, which we purchased." Mr. Rockefeller said that when this trans action was completed and the Pennsylvania railroad stopped rofining the railroad war stopped and an agreement was entered into between the roads whereby they obtained a percentage of the oil carrying trade. The Standard Oil interests were called upon to make those arrangements effective. The witness said that the war between the railroads to obtain the oil trade had been demoralizing to the oil business.

Mr. Rockefeller said that the company guaranteed the Pennsylvania ratiroad a ertain number of barrels of oil a year and consideration the railroad company guaranteed to pay back 10 per cent of the rate paid on the oil shipped.

Buying of Pipe Lines. Mr. Rockefeller said that the Standard began acquiring pipe line interests in 1873 and increased its ownership from time to time until 1877, when they were assembled into the United Pipe line. The Standard also had the American Transfer Pipe line. The pipe lines were regarded as an imporlant adjunct.

Mr. Rockefeller then described the gath ering of pipe lines into a system to carry he oil from the wells to the railroads be fore the trunk line system was established. There were many small systems which could not reach the oil wells because of financial inability to construct new lines.

It was brought home to him, Mr. Rockefeller said, that the improvements were necessary and as the oil supply increased new pipe lines were built. "It was a big undertaking and very interesting," said Mr. Rockefeller. "It was necessary to see that there should be no waste of oil and no delays. Wherever there was oil we had men to take care of it. Our conservative men felt that we should not go into such expenditures, but our men in the field came in and made pressing demands for 500,000 barrels of tankage. We gave it to them. Millions of barrels of tankage were built and through it we saved much of that would otherwise have been lost under the old system. It was a Godsend to the country that we moved boldly in the mat-

Mr. Rockefeller said that all the purchases to which he referred were made by the Standard Oil company of Ohio and that the money was taken from its treasury instead of being collected from the stockholders. The stocks of other companies which were members of the Standard Oil company of Ohio were held for its stockholders. He said that in 1879 this plan of ownership was put in written form and when he was shown the paper on the witness stand today he identified it. It was shown by this paper that Vilas, Keith and Chester were also trustees for other stock held for the benefit of the Standard's stockholders. The capital stock of the Standard Oil company of Ohlo at that time was shown to be $3,500,000.

Drawbacks and Pooling. Mr. Rockefeller was shown a pooling contract for the distribution of oil carrying between different railroads, fixing rates on The ways and means committee's private refined and crude oil and containing a provision for "drawbacks" to refiners for certain shipments to the seaboard. The wit-Several crates of oranges, grape fruit and ness said the contract was drawn to put a crate of lemons, the latter being entirely the different refining points on a parallel. It also assured refiners that the same rates for shipment would be alike on all lines," said Mr. Rockefeller.

He added that the contract further showed that shippers of crude oil to seaboard received 22 cents a barrel drawback, if the pipage rates were maintained as agreed upon by the piping company. Mr. Rockefeller said he had not been closely familiar with the freight business for
