The officers of Fort Omaha, Fort Crook and the headquarters are planning an elaborate reception and ball to be given in honor of General and Mrs. Charles Morton and General and Mrs. William H. Carter. The ball will probably be given at the Rome hotel, Wednesday evening, December 9, although definite arrangements have not been completed. It is several seasons since a military ball has been given in Omaha and it will be one of the events of the season and is being anticipated by the Omaha people as well as the officers and their wives. General Carter has recently taken a short leave of absence and expects to be in Omaha for a few days about December 7 to 10 and will later relieve General Morton, who is at present in command of the Department of the Missouri. The committee on arrangements for the ball include Lieutenant W. N. Haskell of Fort Omaha, Lieutenant Troupe Miller, aide-de-camp to General Morton, and Lieutenant Michael of Fort Crook. Later a number of other officers will be appointed to assist.

Dr. George L. Miller and Mrs. Miller will celebrate the fifty-fourth anniversary of Dr. Miller's coming to Omaha by giving an elaborate home warming at their new home at 18 North Thirty-first street, facing Curtis Turner park, Monday evening. The real anniversary was October 19, but as the new home was not completed they decided to turn back the calendar a month and then invite all their friends in to celebrate.

The first house occupied by Dr. Miller was located on Twenty-fourth street near Kellon school. It was a cottonwood shanty, rough plastered with clay and lime. The single room was parlor, library, living room, bedroom and bedroom. The furniture was made of cottonwood slabs and the chairs were three in number, home made. Dr. Miller has just completed a new attractive home of the bungalow style, with every modern convenience, which is a model of beauty and quite a contrast to his first home in Omaha. This, however, is not the first modern residence he has erected. Some years ago he built a beautiful stone mansion at Seymour park, near Seymour lake, which, with all his treasures, was destroyed by fire.

Among the out-of-town guests who have sent their acceptances for the home-warming are General Grenville M. Dodge of Council Bluffs and his daughter, Mrs. Montgomery; Miss Emma Morton of Arbor Lodge, Nebraska City, sister of the late secretary of agriculture, J. Sterling Morton, who was an intimate friend of Dr. Miller, and Hon. and Mrs. A. J. Sawyer of Lincoln.

Over 100 guests will be present Monday evening to enjoy the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Miller, including many of the oldest settlers of Omaha.

While announcing that he has no desire to prescribe what women shall wear on their heads, Bishop Williams of the Episcopal church asks that all women who attend the wedding at the Cathedral Tuesday night have their heads covered, in accordance with the immemorial rule of the church; The women can wear what they please, in accordance with the requirements of Christian courtesy and consideration for others who would like to see and hear.

For once, the bishop asks that the women bow not to dam fashion, but shall observe the rule of the church and wear modest and seemly apparel in the house of God. He also requests that all unnecessary conversation in the church be avoided and become reverent Christian people.
