KAISER'S FAMOUS INTERVIEW

Synopsis Published, in Which He Takes Fall Out of England.
GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE
Two Nations Must Act Together or United States Will Have to Fight Japan in Less Than Year.
NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—What purports to be an "absolutely accurate and authentic synopsis" of the interview obtained from Emperor William of Germany by Dr. William Bayard Hale and subsequently withdrawn just as it was about to appear in the Century magazine, is printed in the World today. The World declares that the article as originally written was submitted to Dr. Hale and that it appears today "as changed by Dr. Hale."
The interview is said to have taken place on the imperial yacht Hohenzollern off Bergen, Norway, while Dr. Hale was the emperor's guest. The World summarizes the main points of the emperor's interview as follows:
"That King Edward of Great Britain had been humiliating him for more than two years and that he was exasperated, that Germany was the paramount power in all Europe and that England was trying to neutralize that power."
"That he held France in the hollow of his hand, and that Russia was of no account since the disastrous war it had waged with Japan.

"That if the pan-European war which had been so much talked about was inevitable, the sooner it came the better it would be for him, because he was ready and was tired of the suspense."
Great Britain Decadent.
"That Great Britain had been a decadent nation ever since its victory over the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, because it was an unrighteous, ungodly cause, and Divine judgment was bound eventually to overtake the powerful nation that waged such a war."
"That the Anglo-Japanese alliance was an iniquitous alliance against all the white races, England proving absolutely its faithlessness as a Christian nation; that Japan was honeycombing India with sedition and flooding it with spies while professing openly to be England's friend and ally."
"That the only way to counteract this alliance was for Germany and America to act together at an early date, or America would have to fight the Japanese in ten months."
"That in the event of a great war England would lose many of her large colonies, especially those in the Pacific, and that all he would urge for Germany would be Egypt, though he would liberate the Holy Land from the yoke of the infidel, presumably meaning the sultan."
"That the perfecting of the Zeppelin dirigible balloon would give Germany a powerful advantage in war, and it was ready to make use of it to the fullest extent."
No Secrecy Imposed.
The World declares that Emperor William knew when he made these statements that

Dr. Hale was an American newspaper man and magazine writer, but that nevertheless the statements were made without reservation and that no secrecy was imposed. The interview had been formally arranged through the German foreign office, it is said, and that at the conclusion of the interview, Dr. Hale returned to Berlin and told high officials of the foreign office the success he had had.
"They forbade him to publish it," the World story continues. "Then they explained to him at some length that even a hint at possibilities so serious, coming from one who had been the emperor's guest, might throw the whole world into the most disastrous war of all time. The attitude of these officials is said to have been that the emperor was irresponsible when he gave way to such fits of temper."
Foreign Office Blue Pencils.
It is said that Dr. Hale obeyed the instructions of the foreign office in the preparation of his interview, but later, when the manuscript was submitted to the high German officials, "they are said to have so butchered it that little which was worth while was left."
It was in this final form, according to the World, that the article was accepted by the Century. It was practically ready for publication when the request came from Berlin that even the interview in its revised form be suppressed. The electotypes and all copies of the interview were destroyed before the public announcement that the interview had been withdrawn was made.

EMPEROR READS HIS SPEECH

Follows Printed Form Handed Him by Chancellor.
BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Emperor William made a public speech in this city this morning on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the formation of the city council of Berlin. Instead of speaking extemporaneously, as is his usual custom, he read his address from a printed form that was handed to him by Chancellor von Buelow. His majesty said:
"The municipality of Berlin was created in the midst of the fire of the wars of liberation, but since that time it has been developed by the devotion of the citizens of the capital. This gives me hope that the municipality of the future also will retain the spirit of true citizenship and that nothing will force itself between the prince and the people."

LEONARD DID NOT PLAN DEED

Porter Who Stole $40,000 Trunk Victim of Evil Impulse.

"NEVER THOUGHT OF IT BEFORE"

Young Man is Released from St. Joseph and Lodged in Jail to Await the Law's Demand.

On the impulse of a moment, Charles Leonard, porter at the Henshaw hotel, tripped and fell from honor to obloquy; with no evil premeditation, he did a deed in an instant of temptation that may send him from the sphere of simple respectability to prison.
"I never thought of taking the trunk until an hour before I did."
This was the statement made last night by Leonard, who admits he stole a jewelry trunk containing $40,000 worth of samples and stock from Charles F. Hartshorn, a traveling salesman.
Leonard arrived in Omaha at 6:10 last evening in the custody of Detective Van Dusen, who went to St. Joseph Friday night to get him. After the arrival of the train and while waiting for the patrol wagon to convey them to the police station, Van Dusen and Leonard sat in the waiting room of the Burlington depot. Leonard was very uncommunicative, but in answer to direct questions admitted taking the trunk, saying he knew of its valuable contents and that on the spur of the moment and under a sudden impulse he tried to get away with it.
"Any hotel reported can tell by looking at a trunk what is in it," he said. "Shoe trunks, hat trunks, clothing trunks, all are different."
It is thought that the trunk was not even opened by Leonard. He checked it to St. Joseph, but it was intercepted at Hamburg, Ia., and Leonard was arrested when his train reached St. Joseph.
When asked what his plans were in the event he had not been arrested, Leonard said he had made none and had not even thought of how he would dispose of the jewelry. He says he has no relatives.
He is well dressed, wearing a dark suit and ermine lined, but wore no overcoat. On his arrival at the police station he was searched and locked up to await trial, as he has already been indicted by the grand jury.

SHIP'S MEN NOT GIVEN LEAVE

Rear Admiral Sperry Writes Letter in Which He Speaks of Cholera.

MANILA, Nov. 21.—Rear Admiral Sperry addressed a letter to Governor General Smith today saying that it had been decided not to grant the crews of the Atlantic battleship fleet leave of absence during the stay of the ships in Manila bay. This decision, the rear admiral says, is based on the advice of the medical officers of the fleet as well as his own convictions. The letter states that the daily reports of the health department shows the presence of cholera in Manila and that during the progress of the epidemic a large percentage of the cases reported were dead or moribund, showing that they had been concealed.
