

FIRST EXHIBIT BY INDIANA

Honor Belongs to L. B. Clore and His Fellow Hoosiers.

HE WAS LAST YEAR'S WINNER

Great Demonstration is Made by the Exhibitors When They Bring In the Exposition Goods.

Indiana brings the honor of actually leading the first exhibit at the National Corn exposition.

On a single file, following the lead of L. B. Clore, winner of the grand prize in last year's corn exposition, a dozen Hoosiers marched.

After that with his elaborate ceremony and staid, but with the same care, dozens of other Hoosier corn were installed in the racks.

CORN SHOW A GREAT EDUCATOR Iowa Man Thinks It Should Be Permanently in Omaha.

M. McFarland, a prominent Des Moines grain dealer and a member of the Iowa Corn Show commission, was in the city last night, conferring with various officials connected with the approaching exposition.

While it will be large and fine, in my judgment, it is only a starter; it will be a permanent and growing institution. Omaha is doing so fine and is so well situated that the exposition should remain here, and I have no doubt but that it will.

Mr. McFarland is also of the opinion that oats is a crop which has been neglected and which will repay more attention. He said: "In Iowa we are raising about 4,500,000 acres of oats, which has been neglected by farmers as much as corn formerly was in selecting, cleaning and care of the seed, in planting and in the preparation of the seed bed."

Recognizing this, the Western Grain Dealers' association, through the secretary, George A. Wells, is raising money and with the aid of Prof. Bowman of Ames, is having made in New York a beautiful silver trophy, representing a sheaf of oats.

A Viper in the Stomach is dyspepsia complicated with liver and kidney troubles. Electric Bitters help all such cases or no pay. Wm. Weston Drug Co.

GIRLS OUTNUMBER THE BOYS. Stark Favours the Fair Sex for November, Bringing One Hundred and Six.

Vital statistics on file in the office of the commissioner of health show a net gain in population for Omaha of seventy-one during November, 1908, as against a gain of but fifty-three during the same month last year.

Mrs. McRaney's Experience. Mrs. M. McRaney, Fremont, Wis., writes: "I was confined to my bed for three months with kidney and bladder trouble and was treated by two physicians but failed to get relief. No human tongue can tell how I suffered and I had given up hope of ever getting well until I began taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. After taking two bottles I felt like a new person and feel it my duty to tell suffering women what Foley's Kidney Remedy did for me. Sold by all druggists."

Imported models in this material, as well as some charming velvet costumes designed and made in New York work rooms. Of course velvet is impractical stuff, showing spots and wear readily, prone to wrinkle, irreconcilable with bad weather. No woman of few frocks should dream of ordering velvet, but a more beautiful material was never made, nor one more becoming, nor one giving a more emphatic impression of richness; and with these virtues to its credit, why should a material be barred merely because it is not altogether serviceable? When did fashion makers or fashionable women consider the wearing qualities of a material? As a matter of fact, no such phenomenon militated against velvet this fall. The one fault that could be urged against the material was that, despite the supple, which it has taken on in recent years, it does not drape so daintily, so softly as do the soft satins and crepes and nets and cloths; and since all the world had gone made over clinging effects one heard less of velvet than of other stuffs. On second thought, the designers have realized that for straight, clinging effects without drapery, velvet is all that could be desired, richer than cloth or the Ottoman, which has been pushed forward for dressy costumes and imitatively beautiful in colorings. Some of the new velvet models in three-piece or directoire frock designs are altogether lovely, the straight clinging sack front so dear to the Parisian being particularly successful in this material. The mulberry velvet frock of the sketch will illustrate this point, and while extreme and possible only for a slender figure, is of a type very well thought of along the Rue de la Paix.
