The present schedule is $0 per ton on the manufactured product and 15 per cent. which is an ad valotem duty, on the crude product, which only amounted to $1.52 per ton in 1907. Mr. Garlow in his argument asked for a duty of 16-cent per pound on both the manufactured and crude product, which would equalize the New York market. In the half hour that remained before court adjourned the defense had examined seven witnesses. It still has seventeen to ome, and it is beleived these will occupy practically all of the session today. Judge Scars said he would hold court all day today in order to hurry the case as much as possible. It is not probable the argument period of the case will be reached until Monday.

The most interesting piece of evidence introduced at the afternoon session was the story of Charles E. Davis, the defendant, which he told at the coroner's inquest. This was introduced, not by the defense, but by the state, from a transcript of the evidence read by Frank J. Sutcliff, the stenographer who took the testimony. ## Mrs. Beeker Hears Noises.

Interesting evidence was given by Mrs. J. A. Becker, who lives at Forty-first and Dodge streets. She said about five minutes before 2 o'clock on the night of September 1 she was awakened by the barking of dogs in the neighborhood of her home. She looked out of the window and heard some one apparently vomiting. She also heard voices of men. The theory of the state is that it was Charles Davis, sick from the medicine he had taken, who was vomiting, and the voices were those of Dr. Rustin and Davis. Detectives Maloney, Van Dusen and Mitchell were placed on the stand and all three swore they had made a scarch of the Rustin house the morning of the murder, to find the gun, but none was to be found.

County Attorney English had an unwilling witness in Addie Bennett, who lives at 150 Dougias street now, but who was at 103 Capitol avenue September 1. She said also had known Charles Davis about a year and he was in the nabit of visiting her.

The Friday following the murder she said Davis came to her in a nervous condition and told her he was going away. Mr. English sought to get her to describe his nervous movements, with little success.

"What did he do in regard to walking A. D. Beemer, wardon of the state penni. the floor in a nervous way?" asked the county attorney.

"Oh, he walked the floor, but not more than he has before," said the wiincas.
