The National Corn Show opens at Omaha, Wednesday, December 9th. It will be worth coming many miles to see.

how to pronounce "denatured," that no one may return to his home and call it "denatural" or "denuded" and fail to elicit the sympathy of his neighbors.

Regardless of the low temperature outside, the buildings of the National Corn exposition were well heated by the scores of furnaces which have been installed to defy nature and the fury of an unexpected visit from winter. These furnaces are the large hot-air variety used to heat large residences and buildings. No less than thirty of them are kept heated by a trained team of firemen and the atmosphere was comfortable in every part of the buildings from the basement of the Omaha auditorium to the moving picture show rooms. The firemen demonstrated that the visitors to the show will be comfortable if the ritual mercury should climb down six or eight ranges of the ladder below the zero mark.

Press Bureau Installed. During the day a press bureau was installed with desks, Smith Premier typewriters, telephones and a number of stenographers and newspaper men in charge. These in charge are experienced in handling "news" of exhibitions and will have the lists of prize winners, addresses of speakers and the other "features" of the program ready for all the newspapers. The publicity department has been in charge of C. G. Rosewater, general manager of The Bee Publishing company, but Mr. Rosewater's department has not ceased work with the exposition nearing completion.

An evidence of the thoughtfulness of this department under Mr. Rosewater is shown in the arrangement which has been made to send news to the thousands of country papers and the metropolitan press, which have contributed so largely to the success of the exposition. In charge of two clerks who took up the system early in the summer, the press bureau of the exposition has a number of sets of addressed and stamped envelopes, ready to go to the mails the moment the names of the prize winners are released for publication.

How Nicely it is Done. If John Jones of Cherokee county, Iowa, wins the first prize on ten ears of white corn, the clerks in the press bureau take out a set of envelopes for Cherokee county, Iowa, and in five minutes the letters go into the mail carrying the news to every newspaper published in Cherokee county. No difference what the town in the county is in any of the states from which exhibits have been made, every newspaper in the county in which the town is located will get advice at once of who has won out in the great agricultural contest at Omaha.

This is one of the many plans which the publicity department has made to help its friends—the editors. They will be given news when it is news and many an exhibitor who wins will get his first notice from his home paper many days before the clerks in the department of news can possibly notify him. The only way the exhibitor can get earlier advice will be to come to Omaha and watch for his corn or grains and grasses.

Carolus of Fancy Corn. The exposition management has also provided a carload of fancy corn for decorative purposes. It is of all colors and some in remarkably good shape and will be ready for the people.

Secretary Sturgess of the Corn exposition association said Monday: "I have been over the entire group of buildings. These are in remarkably good shape and we will be ready for the people."

Railroad representatives who came in all reported that they had learned from station agents that a large number were planning to come to Omaha. Jacob Gable of the Northwestern line of cars has not heard in years so much inquiry about any exposition and so much favorable comment, which would indicate that thousands are coming to the corn show."

ATTRACTIVE CORN SHOW PAPER Trade Exhibit Gets Out an Edition that is Creditable.

The Omaha Trade Exhibit has published the most attractive National Corn exposition edition. The front cover shows a golden ear of corn mounted on an altar which bears the inscription "Corn is King." Back of the altar stands a young woman in a Greekian peplos and a chiton who holds a crown in her hands just above the ear of corn, which she is about to crown. The body of the magazine is full of illustrations and advertisements of the exposition and of merchandise, and the advertisements are bordered with red and gold ears of corn. The printing of these and the whole publication is thoroughly artistic.

AMES MEN COME TO CORN EXPO Prof. M. L. Bowman Heads Delegation from Agricultural School.

Prof. M. L. Bowman of Ames heads a party of faculty members of the Iowa State College of Agriculture who arrived last Sunday night for the corn exposition. Prof. Bowman ranks only second to Prof. P. G. Holden for knowledge of corn. He will be a speaker on the program of Grain Dealers' day among other activities in connection with the exposition. The other Ames men who have come are A. H. Snyder, William McArthur, E. B. Heaton, A. A. Burger, M. S. Jepson, J. B. Lamson, H. N. Wood, J. B. Thompson and J. F. Summins.

RATES EAST BUT NOT WEST

Corn Exposition Fails to Secure Rates West of Missouri River. In spite of strong pressure by the directors of the National Corn exposition and by a committee of the most prominent business men of Omaha, the railroads still refuse to grant any requests for rates west of the Missouri river to the corn show.

Over a month ago the directors secured a promise of 1 1/2 cents a mile east of the Missouri river from all the roads, but for some reason or another the railroads refuse to give to the corn exposition the same rates which were granted to the state fairs and the fall festivities and all the state fairs of the west. The Burlington and the Union Pacific seem to be the roads which are holding out in this matter, as the others say they are willing to come across if these two roads will get into line. Local representatives of these two roads have done what they could for these rates, but the officials at Chicago are the final authority in such matters, and they say nay.

Railroads centering in Omaha are prepared for whatever rush comes along for the National Corn exposition. Large numbers of extra cars have been sent out along the lines and will be used as the occasion demands. The Union Pacific has arranged for no special trains, because of the large number of regular trains which that road has in and out of Omaha every day, but extra coaches will be added to the trains as needed. Press indications are that more people will come from the east and the west than from the west. The eastern farmers realize more the value of intensive farming and of a better grade of seed corn. They have been forced to study these conditions by the higher price which they pay for their lands and indications are that thousands will come from Iowa and Illinois and Indiana and other middle west states. The Burlington has arranged for four special trains to the corn exposition.

EKSTROMER SWALLOWS ACID

Swedish Consul at St. Louis Dies Brooding Over Troubles.

ROOSEVELT DENIED AUDIENCE

Went to Washington to Champion Cause of E. G. Lewis and Re-name Persona Non Grata.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7.—Charles A. Ekstromer, Swedish vice-consul in St. Louis, committed suicide by drinking prussic acid at his home, 124 Goodfellow avenue, today. Mrs. Ekstromer came into public notice some time ago through a controversy with federal officials which resulted in the revocation of his exequatur by President Roosevelt. Later he was reinstated in the good graces of the administration and resumed his official duties here. Apparent Ekstromer resented his act when too late, as a card was found on which he had scrawled: "I have taken prussic acid for the purpose of suicide. Call Dr. Langan."

The physician, a neighbor, could not aid him. Ekstromer is survived by a widow, Mrs. Ekstromer, who has no reason for the suicide. The other members of his family, two step-daughters, are also at a loss to account for his action. Mr. Ekstromer was 51 years old and seemingly in perfect health. As Swedish vice-consul and manager of the West Dist. of St. Louis, he had considerable social and business connections here. So far as can be learned he had no financial troubles.

It was his championing of the cause of E. G. Lewis, publisher and organizer of the People's United States bank, that brought down the wrath of the president on Ekstromer.

In a arch, 1907, Ekstromer went to Washington at the head of a committee of Lewis' adherents and asked for an audience with the president. They wanted to tell Roosevelt that in their opinion the second class citizens being wrongfully withheld from Lewis' publications. The president refused to see them.

On his return to St. Louis Ekstromer wrote a letter to the president in which he denounced Postmaster General Corbett, on accusing him of unfairness. He also called the president's refusal to see the St. Louis citizens an "impertinent, uncalculated and unchristian act" and that the statements contained in it were untrue.

President Roosevelt notified the minister from Sweden that Ekstromer was "persona non grata" and forthwith Ekstromer's exequatur as vice-consul was revoked.

At the earnest solicitation of the Swedish minister Ekstromer later wrote a policy to the president and in July, 1907, Ekstromer was reinstated as vice-consul. He has held the position ever since.

Pollard to Run Again.

Congressman Pollard arrived in Washington yesterday from Hot Springs, Va., where he had a conference with Judge Taft on Saturday. Mr. Pollard went over to the president-elect the political situation in Nebraska and the causes leading to his defeat. Judge Taft expressed an earnest desire, according to Mr. Pollard, to have him continue his fight for congress at the next election, and this Mr. Pollard has decided to do.

He said Mr. Pollard stated that he was in receipt of upwards of 500 letters, from almost every precinct in his district, urging him to make another fight.

"I feel under obligations to let my friends know my position in regard to the next congressional election and in view of the encouraging letters from all over the First district I have decided to be a candidate for the Sixty-second congress," said Mr. Pollard.

BOTH SESSIONS ARE BRIEF

House and Senate Adjourn Out of Respect to Deceased Members.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Both houses of congress held brief sessions today, adjournment being taken out of respect to the memory of those members who had died during the recess. The only business transacted by the senate was the swearing in of Senator Page of Vermont. The first half hour that the house was in session was devoted to a roll call to ascertain the presence of a quorum. The formal opening of the body witnessed a remarkable demonstration by Speaker Cannon, the republicans and many democrats loudly clapped their hands and cheered for several minutes. Soon after Mr. Sherman of New York, vice president-elect, came into the chamber and he was accorded an ovation from his republican colleagues. In like manner the democrats roundly applauded the new leader, Champ Clark, when he arose in his place and forced an explanation regarding the absence of credentials of a new member from the third New York district.

Great Demand for Seats.

For many days past the demand for cards which entitled the bearers to seats in the respective galleries has been so great that the doors of each gallery crowd relying for an opportunity to get even a peep into the senate or house, on some of the more fortunate ones vacating their seats.

The unfavorable weather conditions did not seem to have the effect of reducing the size of the crowds as gauged by those which gathered on similar occasions.

In both bodies among the most interested spectators were the members of the diplomatic corps who were present in goodly numbers. Numerous high officials of the government likewise occupied seats and they, too, displayed the keenest interest in the proceedings.

The rule of the senate and house prohibiting the placing of floral pieces on the desks was rigidly enforced. The contributions in this regard were many and handsome, but their donors were obliged to content themselves with having them placed in the private lobbies.

Session Called to Order.

Immediately after the senate had been called to order at 12 o'clock today by Vice President Fairbanks and Rev. Edward Everett Hale, the chaplain, had opened the session with prayer, Senator Dillingham of Vermont presented the credentials of his colleague, Senator-Elect Carroll S. Page, who was at once sworn in.

After the usual committees had been appointed by the senate to inform the president and the house of representatives of the meeting of that body, and a resolution of regret upon the death of Senator Allison was adopted, the senate at 12:25 o'clock adjourned to meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

The house was called to order at noon. When Vice President-Elect Sherman entered the chamber he was accorded an ovation by his republican colleagues.

When Speaker Cannon mounted the platform and called the house of representatives to order he received an ovation at the hands of his republican colleagues. Not a few democrats joined in the demonstration which continued for several minutes.

The two floor leaders, Seno E. Payne of New York, republican, and Champ Clark of Missouri, democrat, were early in their seats and each was accorded a hearty greeting by the members irrespective of party affiliation.

The roll call disclosed the presence of 311 members. Seven new members then were sworn in to fill vacancies that occurred by death or resignation since the last session. Among them was Eben M. Masters, republican, successor to Mr. Parker, republican, from South Dakota at large.

Message Comes Tomorrow.

Tuesday will be given up to the reading of the president's message. As this is President Roosevelt's last annual message, there is unusual interest in it. The general report is that it will prove to be a conservative and carefully prepared document and that few recommendations for legislation will be ventured upon.

program Representative Ratney of Illinois today introduced a resolution directing the speaker to appoint a committee of five to "ascertain how much of the $40,000,000 which appears on record to have been paid to the French company was really paid to that company." It is said that the national democratic committee requested Mr. Ratney to present the resolution.

INDIAN SCHOOLS ARE NEEDED

Commissioner Recommends Transfer of Six Reservations to States.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The report of the commissioner of Indian affairs, F. E. Leupp, to the house of representatives, naming the non-reservation Indian schools to investigate upon what terms it may be possible to dispose of any of the non-reservation Indian schools which he deemed unnecessary to the general scheme for Indian education.

The commissioner states the result of his investigation regarding the transfer to the several state governments of the Grand Junction and Fort Lewis schools, Colorado; the school at Genoa, Neb.; at Chillicothe, Okl.; at Chamberlain, S. D.; at Morris, Minn., and at Carson, Nev.

These are the schools which he has deemed are not necessary for the Indian service and which are available to the state for educational purposes, or for reformatories, insane asylums, hospitals or other public uses. The governors of the various states in which these schools are located have been communicated with by the commissioner.

TAFT TO TALK TO SOUTH

supporting a platform and (and) whose political and economic ties were in the last campaign and there is today through out the south, among many of its most intelligent citizens, a real sense of indignation and a real interest in the success of abolition.

I believe that the movement away from political solidarity has started and ought to be encouraged and I think that we should encourage it to have the south understand that the attitude of the north and the attitude of the south is not one of hostility or criticism or opposition, political or otherwise; that they believe in the maintenance of the union, in the amendment, but that, as already explained, they do not deem that amendment to be consistent with the south's old feeling and maintaining what it regards as a political right of its own.

In looking toward a change of party affiliation many southerners who have been Democrats are brought face to face with the possibility of the change which we only meet with frankness and justice.

We believe the solution of the race question in the south is largely a matter of education and through education.

Primary and just, as well as for the masses of the colored people for their professional men, their clergymen, their physicians, their lawyers and their other professional men, a system under which their improvement, which statistics show to have been most noteworthy in the last few years, will continue at the same rate.

On the whole the best public opinion of the north and the best public opinion of the south seems to be coming together in respect to the economic and political questions growing out of present race conditions.

The recent election has made it probable that I shall become more or less responsible for the policy of the next presidential administration and I improve this opportunity to say that nothing would give me greater pride, because nothing would give me more claim to the respect of my fellow citizens, than if I could so direct that policy in respect to the southern people as to convince the intelligent citizens of the desire of the administration to aid them in working out satisfactorily the serious problems before them and of bringing them and their northern fellow citizens closer in sympathy and point of view.

It may be given to me to strengthen the movement to obliterate all sectional lines and leave nothing of difference between the north and the south save a friendly emulation for the benefit of our common country.

MONEY FOR MRS. INGERSOLL

Widow of Famous Speaker Wins Long-Contested Suit in Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The supreme court of the United States today decided in favor of Mrs. Ingersoll, the widow of Mrs. Eva A. Ingersoll, widow of the late Robert G. Ingersoll, against Joseph Coram and the estate of Robert G. Ingersoll. Mrs. Ingersoll on account of services rendered to the late Andrew J. Davis, a Montana mill owner.

Davis left property both in Montana and Massachusetts. Ingersoll was employed by one of the disinterested relatives of Davis on a written contract to pay him $100,000 on the condition that the will should be defeated. A case involving the validity of the will was announced in Montana and the jury disagreed. A compromise then was arranged whereby the relatives who brought the suit were given a portion of the estate. They paid Ingersoll $5,000, but after his death the widow instituted proceedings to recover the entire fee, claiming that the compromise was the result of her husband's efforts.

The case has been much in the courts. It was first decided by the district court of the Second judicial district of Montana against Mrs. Ingersoll on the grounds that she had no cause of action and the Montana supreme court affirmed that verdict.

On the other hand, the United States circuit court for Massachusetts held for Mrs. Ingersoll, but the finding of that tribunal was reversed by the circuit court of appeals for the Montana adjudication was final and the decision rendered today was on a review of the decision of the court of appeals.

The decision was reversed, but the decree of the circuit court was modified so as to reduce somewhat the amount allowed.
