

DOMINGUEZ WANTS BIG TRUST

Mexican Planter Says Harvester Combine Would Boom His Country. VISITS DEERE AND COMPANY

Returns to Omaha Enthusiastic Over Prospect of Big Implement House Locating a Branch in Mexico.

After spending several days at Ames, Ia., as the guest of the John Deere Plow company, Mr. J. Zepherino Dominguez, the Mexican planter, who contributed much to the interest of the National Corn exposition, returned to Omaha Sunday, and goes from here to Lincoln to visit with Governor Sheldon and the Nebraska school of agriculture.

On his return to Omaha, Mr. Dominguez believes the John Deere people will open a large implement house in Mexico, where the German manufacturers control the implement business, and with tools which he believes to be much inferior to those made in the United States.

Another advantage which the trust would be to Mexico would be in showing the people of that country how to use the implements after they sold them. At present it does not know of a dealer who has a demonstrator or expert machinist to go out into the fields and show the Indians how to run a binder or a steam plow.

Another result of the visit of the Mexican planter to the National Corn exposition and in Molino, Ill., where he has gotten into communication with at least three American companies which intend buying large tracts of farming and grazing lands in Mexico.

the prairie. When one of the deep cuts was in their course it was quickly filled full. Trains have been stopped frequently and as effectively as though the blockade was tightly packed with snow. When this occurred the section hands and train men have cleared the track with shovels and forks and a job was done in a few minutes. One of these blockades occurred on Christmas day. Conductor Enright was impatient to get to the end of the run where dinner was waiting him, and instead of waiting for the section men, he stepped ahead of the train and touched a match to the restless snow, which burned his linker. In three minutes the train sped on its way, and now railroad men are wondering why they did not think of it before.

SIGWART MARCHED IN PARADE

Sergeant Was Member of Police Force When Court House Was Built.

Following the appearance of the article on the Douglas county court house, published in The Sunday Bee, it developed that Sergeant A. T. Sigwart of the police force is the only man now in the service who was a member of the department in 1882, when the court house was dedicated. He was at that time a patrolman and marched in the parade incident to the laying of the cornerstone of the then great building, which is now about to be replaced by a million-dollar structure of a more modern and modern type.

Sergeant Sigwart joined the police force in September, 1882, and the court house cornerstone laying occurred during the month following. Since that time Sergeant Sigwart has served almost continuously in the police department, and was acting chief for somewhat more than a year during the '90s. His home is at 1254 Park wide avenue.

NEW SERUM FOR HOG CHOLERA

Missouri Agricultural College Announces Discovery of Effective Anti-Toxin.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27.—A special to the Republic from Columbia, Mo., says that as a result of perfecting a serum that is an antitoxin against hog cholera, the Missouri Agricultural college guarantees the state legislature that with an appropriation of $45,000 a year it will save the farmers of Missouri from $1,900,000 to $5,000,000 annually.

The agricultural college announces unequivocally that it now is prepared to vanquish hog cholera.

The serum is drawn from what is known as a hyper-immune hog, the fibrine being removed so as to prevent clotting. The serum is treated with small quantities of carbolic acid and when kept in a cool place can be kept for six to twelve months.

Entrance was obtained by a rear window, while the postoffice was out. Tracks in the snow corresponded with the boots. Mills had on and he was caught with pennies and small change on him. Other arrests may follow.

LIKE ENTERING A NEW COUNTRY

Rev. John P. Clyde Says New Year Should Be Entered Right.

MAN NEEDS A DIVINE TEACHER

Can Learn Most Useful Things from None Other.

Rev. J. Narver Gortner of McCabe Methodist church, preaching on the text, "A Prayer of Moses, the Man of God," Sunday morning, said: "Man needs a divine teacher. There are many things that men can learn in academies and colleges and universities. There is much that can be learned in that larger school, the school of experience and life. But there is much that no man, however learned, can teach us; there is much that we must remain forever ignorant of unless taught by the Great Teacher, who understands the most intricate problems and whose competency to instruct is not to be compared with the competency of any mortal man. Moses was that he and all Israel might be taught by God to consider the brevity of human life. Moses lived for more than a century. He was 120 years old when he died in the presence of Jehovah on the mountain top. But even the life of Moses was brief when compared with the ages of eternity.

"Suppose you were to live as long as Moses lived. When compared with the countless ages your life would appear like a tiny atom in the realm of limitless space, or as less than a drop of water picked up out of an ocean that has no shores and the fathomless depths of which no sounding cable ever reached. The longest lived of the lives of the antediluvian patriarchs who lived for centuries, have been brief. The years are swiftly passing. It will not be long until somebody else will be doing the work that now engages your thought and engrosses your attention. A great general will have arisen. How important it that we should learn to pray the prayer of Moses, the man of God, 'So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.'

"Many people think that wisdom and knowledge are synonymous terms. They are not. Many who have letters are without wisdom, and vice versa. It is well that the mind should be applied to knowledge; it is better that the heart should be applied unto wisdom. That man who is not wise unto salvation is not wise at all. He may have what the world calls wisdom. He may be a great philosopher, or a great scientist, or a great legislator, or great as a financier. He may hand down to succeeding generations a name that will live and be honored while the foundations of the earth remain intact. But if he lays up no treasures in heaven he is guilty of the same criminality as the rich man to whom God said, 'Thou fool, this night shall thy soul be required of thee.'

"The old year will soon die. Already we have begun to look back and count its successes and its failures. What numerous mistakes we have made, what opportunities we have neglected! What defeats we have sustained! What sins we have committed! The past can never be recalled. The book will soon be closed and sealed. But the future is before us. The new year, pregnant with possibilities and blossoming with the promise of a new and better life, is before us. Let us begin the new year with the prayer of Moses, the man of God, 'So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.'

JOY OVER BIRTH OF RULER

Rev. W. E. Todd Tells Again Story of Birth of the Savior.

"Joy to the world, the Lord has come." "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given." This beautiful passage from Isaiah was the text of the Christmas sermon preached by Rev. William E. Todd at the First Baptist church Sunday morning. A beautiful service of song and prayer was rendered Sunday morning and the special musical program prepared by the musical director, E. H. Packard, was well rendered by the choir.

"The birth of the future ruler of the world was not kept a secret, but was heralded broadcast throughout the world. The three wise men from the east were led to the place of the Savior's birth that they might carry the glad tidings to Egypt, India and Persia. The news was even known to the people living on the continent before the coming of Columbus and to the Egyptian sages who on the shores of America the natives thought the white men were saviors of the world come to visit them. He came, not only to rule the kingdom of the Jews, but to rule the world.

"When all the nations of the world come to this birth fact, it is being worked out more and more each year and some day the peace of the nations will be realized in pursuance to His wishes and there will no longer be need of large standing armies. The text is in Hebrew literature, but Christ was a gift to the whole human race and one of God's good gifts to the world. "Christ is a personality, sweet beyond all accounts, loving, tender, scattering a feeling that we all are His tender ones. His lesson to us is to love and care for the young, with our hearts and tears and with a feeling of solicitude and tenderness to protect the defenseless to spare the faint hearted and to heal the wounded spirits."

MINISTER TELLS OF SUPREME GIFT

Rev. J. W. Conley, at First Baptist Church, Speaks on Giving.

"The Supreme Gift" was the subject of the sermon of Rev. J. W. Conley at the First Baptist church Sunday morning. His text was from Galatians 2:20, "Who Loved Me and Gave Himself for Me."

Dr. Conley said in part: "What is the supreme significance of Christ's coming into the world? The essential theme of the gospel is giving. Yet we are to exercise care in giving lest we lose the significance of giving. A gift amounts to very little in value unless there is something of spirit in it as emanating from the heart. Principle is the essential spirit of giving. The great object lesson of giving is in the giving of Christ by God. The mighty principle of the gospel is not to give time and money, but ourselves. The supreme act of God is giving Himself to God.

"Two words, control and experience, are the actuating motives of the spirit of giving. God gave Himself for man, for man's redemption and salvation. We sometimes make a mistake in the idea of the atonement. Jesus on Mount Calvary is the divine object lesson of God giving Himself for man's redemption. The divine giving of man's redemption is not to be limited through all eternity and is continuously the outpouring of God's self for man's redemption and salvation. The experience of God in the gift of Himself is the essential spirit of the gift of Himself to God.

"What kind of a God is that which looks with indifference upon your sufferings? But God's great heart went out to you with supreme sympathy and this was the atoning sacrifice. Christ said: 'He that hath seen the Father, the Father.' What is the use of our saying 'Our Father' if He does not sympathize with us? God has an infinite reach down into the darkness as He has an infinite light. He is the Father of the Fatherless, the giver of man's self to God is the consummation of salvation. God gave Himself for our redemption, and hence the redemption and salvation of man is accomplished. You cannot give yourself without coming under the control of God. A man is not the law a business man because he has given himself to God. We separate our business and social lives too much from the church and from God. If we give ourselves to God we will have a sympathy and interest in the things of God and His church."
