Corset News

FOR FIFTY YEARS THOMSON'S "GLOVE-FITTING" CORSETS

have been famous throughout the world for models of excellency and graceful effect. This season's latest invention in these well known corsets will be found in the NEW GRAND DUCHESSE MODELS

The patented feature (illustrated) consists of a separate transverse and horizontal section. By this device the proper support is given where most needed, carrying all excess flesh from front to back, preserving the flat line at the abdomen, and permanently creating in the figure a rounded waist and flowing lines.

They are called "Glove-Fitting" because they fit as well and feel as comfortable as a fine kid glove along the shores of the straits of Messina, where the cities of Messina and Reggio are situated. In more than one town the shocks caused the gas meters to explode and disastrous fires resulted. The flames helped greatly to swell the death list.

The configuration of the straits of Messina has been materially altered. The tidal wave that completed the destructive work of the earthquake was thirty-two feet high. Wireless telegraphy has been of the greatest assistance in getting in reports from the devastated regions and in helping the authorities to realize the extent of the disaster and to send help to the places where it was most urgently needed.

Warships Ordered to Scenic. A flying squadron of the Italian navy, composed of the three best battleships, had left for a cruise on the Atlantic before the first news of the disaster came to hand. Through the medium of wireless telegraphy it was possible to reach these vessels and order them to proceed at full speed for Messina.

A British squadron that was at Syracuse has left for Messina, taking doctors and supplies of medicines, etc., for the succor of the wounded. There are also several Russian ships at Syracuse. It is reported from Catania that the bishop of Messina is buried under the ruins of his residence. Ettore Puliti, a member of the Chamber of Deputies from Messina, together with the members of his family, also is reported dead. The Puliti family was one of the most prominent in Catania.

The dome of the cathedral at Catania collapsed and other churches as well as the city hall were ruined at any moment the tidal wave sank numerous small boats in the harbor of Catania. At Hipoteso the tidal wave was thirty-five feet high. It swept in with appalling power and lasted for forty-two seconds.

Loss of Life Confirmed. Premier Giolitti has received a telegram from Deputy Felice, at Messina, confirming previous reports of the complete destruction of Messina by fire following the earthquake. The deputy says that the dead at Messina will be counted by the tens of thousands.

MONTELEONE, Calabria, Dec. 29.—The town of Palmi has been practically destroyed as has also Baginara. The dead at Palmi number 1,000 and it is impossible to estimate the number of injured. Large numbers were killed also at Baginara and the list of wounded there also will be heavy. Details are lacking. The tidal wave inundated a villa at San Giovanni, 2,500 feet back from the shore line. Palmi has 10,000 inhabitants, while Baginara counts 7,500 people.

Nuns and Priests Not Spared. LONDON, Dec. 29.—A special dispatch received here from Rome says the pope has been notified that the entire religious communities of Messina and Reggio, including bishops, priests, monks and nuns, have been wiped out by the earthquake and fire.

NAPLES, Dec. 29.—It is reported here that the prefect of Reggio was killed in the earthquake and that an inspector general from Rome says the prefect has been sent to replace him. The prefect of Reggio is the head of the province, and the post corresponds to a governor of a state in America.

Tourists Caught in Ruins. PALERMO, Dec. 29.—Refugees from Messina say that there were 100 foreigners in the hotel Trinacari and that they all lost their lives. The hotel has been completely obliterated. It was one of the best in the city and patronized almost exclusively by tourists. It was situated in the Via Garibaldi. CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 29.—Mount Etna is this morning showing activity, and the detonations, which can be plainly heard in this city, together with the volume of smoke rolling out of the crater, have added to the panic of the people.

According to the director of the local observatory this activity is directly connected with the earthquakes of yesterday which brought such havoc in Calabria and Sicily, but a great eruption is not expected. Such phenomena seldom accompany violent seismic disturbances.

Terrible Scenes at Messina. The following graphic story is told by a woman who arrived from Messina this morning, badly injured:

"Internal" is the only word that will adequately describe the fearful and terrifying scenes," she said. "When the first shock came, most of the city was fast asleep. I was awakened by the rocking of the house. Windows awoke and rattled and crockery and glass crashed to the floor. The next moment I was violently thrown out of my bed to the floor. I was half stunned, but knew that the only thing to do was to make my way outdoors. The streets were filled. Everybody had rushed out in their night clothes, heedless of the rain falling in torrents. Terrified shrieks arose from all sides and we heard rending appeals for help from the unfortunate pinned beneath the ruins.

People in Frenzy. "Walls were tottering all around us and not one of our party expected to escape alive. My brothers and sisters were with me and in a frenzy of terror we groped our way through the streets, holding our own against the panic-stricken people clambering over piles of ruins, until we finally reached a place of comparative safety.

"But this was not done before I was struck down and badly injured by a piece of furniture that fell out of the upper story of a house.

"All along the road we were jostled by scores of fleeing people, half clad, like ourselves. The houses seemed to be crashing to the ground in whatever direction we turned.

"Suddenly the sea began to pour into the town. It seemed to me that this must mean the end of everything. The incoming waters rolled in a huge wave, accompanied by a terrifying roar.

Gas Works Blow Up. "The sky was aglow with the reflection of burning palaces and other buildings and as if this was not enough there suddenly about us into the sky a huge burst of flame, followed by a crash that seemed to shake the whole town.

Eventually we reached the principal square of Messina. Here we found 2,000 or 3,000 utterly terrified people assembled. None of us knew that to do. We were in an agony of fear. Men and women prayed, groaned and shrieked. I saw one of the big buildings on the square collapse. It seemed to me that scores of persons were buried beneath the ruins. Then I lost consciousness and I remember no more.

Worst Disaster in Over Century. The horror and destructiveness of this visitation probably will exceed that of any earthquake in Italy since 1783, when 45,000 persons perished at Messina alone.

Reports of heavy loss of life are coming in every hour from city and town and nearly every village in the stricken territory, and the story in its detail has only begun to be told. The horror grows as further reports come in. Messina has been fire-swept. The dead alone there will run into the tens of thousands. Reggio is a supurb of the dead. Catania suffered heavily. Mount Etna, the volcano on the island of Sicily, is active. The detonations are reverberating over Catania and add to the terror. Volumes of smoke are pouring from the crater.

Efforts for Relief Inadequate. The work of rescue is being pushed forward with every possible energy. Efforts are being poured into the work, but the efforts at success are as yet utterly inadequate. France, Great Britain and Russia are hurrying warships to the scene.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena have left Rome for the south. His majesty will superintend in person the work of relief. The queen, returning to her husband's side, insisted upon sharing his dangers. The pope has made an appeal to Roman Catholics the world over for help. He has headed the relief subscription list with a donation of $200,000.

There is consternation in Rome. Telegraph and newspaper offices are besieged and by weeping crowds demanding news. Every fresh telegram tells the same story of death, destruction and desolation. Ambassador Griscom has telegraphed to Messina and Palermo inquiring as to the fate of Arthur S. Cheney of Connecticut, American consul, Messina, and H. Poivre of American vice-consul at Messina. Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon no answer had been received.

Refugees from Messina Unable to Tell of the Horrors. PALERMO, Dec. 28.—Railroad communication with Messina has been restored. A train of refugees came in here this morning, but they are all maddened with terror and no one is capable of giving a connected account of the catastrophe. All agree that Messina is a dead city and that the victims will be counted by the tens of thousands.

The Trinacria hotel, with ninety guests, was demolished. The city hall, the bourse, the telegraph office and the barracks also were destroyed. A tidal wave, thirty feet high, swept up the straits of Messina in the height of the confusion following the shock. Hundreds of half-dressed men, women and children, who had fled from their homes to the streets, were caught in the crush of waters and drowned or injured.

A trainload of doctors, nurses and hospital equipment has been sent out from here for Messina, and the steamer Marguerite, loaded to the guards with persons who had relatives in the doomed city, and others, who will join in the work of relief, also has left.

The refugees declare that the entire country around Messina has been devastated and that several villages have disappeared.

Telegraphic reports have been received here from all parts of the island of Sicily. They say the inhabitants everywhere are in terror-stricken and praying in the streets and churches.

Reggio is described as nothing but a vast sepulcher. The captain of the steamer Washington, which was in the Straits of Messina at the time of the earthquake, says his vessel trembled as if it had run aground. A thick fog prevailed at the time, and it was impossible for him to see the Messina lights and the harbor.

The Washington was soon surrounded with boats appealing for aid. The people were taken on board. The sea was littered with wreckage in every direction. Among those who lost their lives at Messina are Commandant Passino and all the members of his family. They were crushed in the ruins of their residence.

The Russian warships that were at Syracuse also have left for Messina to aid in the work of rescue.

RIGHT TO CALL OUT TROOPS

Federal Question Brought Out by Kentucky Fight.

WASHINGTON VIEW OF POINT

Government Authority Called Upon Only When State Fails to Cope with Situation—Outlaws in Tennessee.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 28.—Advices by Louisville, Ky., today state that Harry Simpson, Rube West and George Hatley, the mountaineers engaged in the difficulty at Stearns, Ky., broke camp at Paint Rock, Ky., last night and moved over the line into Scott county, Tennessee. They are encamped near West's old home, surrounded by friendly neighbors and the position is reported more formidable than ever.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The alarming conditions which have called out state troops and United States marshals at the mining town of Stearns, Whitley county, Kentucky, caused some 150 troops of the War Department to be sent to a condition arising to call for United States troops to uphold the power of the United States courts. Although conditions in the Kentucky town are only vaguely understood here, it is assumed that the local authorities will be able to suppress disorder and that by the liberal use of United States marshals in conjunction with state troops the orders of the court will be executed.

Should be found impossible to do this, either from the inability of the court to secure the service of enough marshals or for any other reason so that the power of the court would become nullified, there is ample authority for the sending of troops into Kentucky.

A United States statute provides that in a case of this kind where the attitude of the people towards the mandates of the court assumes proportions of a rebellion, the military force of federal troops may be used to bring about a condition in which the orders of the court will be executed. In the case of any ordinary disorder, interfering with the movement of the mails or with interstate commerce, the power of the state for the enforcement of law and order being shown to be powerless to control the disorder, troops might be sent into the state. The War Department had received no request for troops for Kentucky and the general opinion prevails in official circles within the department, that conditions will not be such as to warrant federal interference.

CHICKENS HATCHED AT THE SHOW

White Leghorns from Last Year Occupying Front-end Place. One set the finest cocks to greet the eyes of the visitors is that of some beautiful White Leghorns and over the top of the coop is the statement that these birds were hatched at the show a year ago and that they began laying in June. They were raised at the Mandy Lee farm of George H. Lee, near Florence.

The toy dogs catch the eyes of the children and are always surrounded by a group of spectators. Mr. and Mrs. Moore have an exhibition a large number of the best Ak-Sar-Ben kennels and are also showing Miss Elenor McGilton's prize winner, Hebe, near Florence.

The annual election of the association will be held Thursday evening in the Auditorium. The association is growing in membership and the show which are now on exhibition at the show bear witness to the interest which is being taken by the members.

It took some of the younger toy dogs quite a time to become accustomed to the barking of the big St. Bernards and the Great Danes, but the continuity of the bark soon had its effect and the little fellows can now take in the sights and feel safe from harm.

The arrangement of the coops in the arena this year is much more satisfactory to both the exhibitors and to the public. With nearly double the number of coops as were shown at the exhibition last year still the big building is not crowded, the extra space being had from moving the dogs to the stage and by the removal of the boxes along the edge of the arena.

MERRY WIDOW HATS ALL THE GO Worn by Women and Fowls at the Show. Merry Widow hats are the style at the poultry show. They may not be so popular with the men who have to walk up and down the aisle with women who wear them, but the proud cocks and hens who are thus adorned think they are about the finest on display. The Houdons with the fluffy merry widows attract the women and their muffled tops are shaken back and forth with an abandon which shows no fear of their falling off. The big African goose across the way does not take to the Merry Widow style, but he has rather adopted the inverted fur toque or drum major effect which he wears with all the pride of the Houdons.

into law. Some of the democrats who ran for office on that platform have taken the punch that they are up against a hard proposition. For instance, the State Board of Assessment this year divided the physical value from the franchise value, and the latter, in many cases, is worth much more than the physical value. So if the railroads are to be assessed and taxed on their physical value, then their taxes will be reduced, and to pay the expenses of the state taxes on other property will have to be increased. And the democrats have promised to reduce the taxes on farm lands and increase railroad taxes.

Some of the members are talking bravely about forcing Mr. Bryan and Mr. Shallenberger to keep hands off of the legislature, and to keep the presidential candidate out they are going to ask him to make good on the things he talked about during the campaign. It is the opinion of some of the democratic leaders that to ask Mr. Bryan to get down into details about his plans of legislation will cause him some embarrassment.

Governor-elect Shallenberger has sent out several letters to members of the legislature telling them they must be economical in the matter of expenditures. This has caused several to get their backs up, and one member said if the new governor would watch the executive department, through which most of the money is spent, that will be enough for him to do.

No Recount for Price. W. B. Price will not ask the legislature to recount the votes cast in the last election. On the contrary he will continue looking after his law business, as he has done since the election.

"I do not want the office of auditor and will not contest the election," said Mr. Price. "I was forced into the race for the nomination and of course I made a fight for election. I had two reasons for running, when I found I couldn't get out of it. First, I wanted to see if a poor man could run for office in Nebraska. Second, I wanted to see if a person could secure a nomination and be his party's candidate without making a promise to anyone. I proved the latter to be false."

Mr. Price said he had an idea where the report started that he intended to contest the election and he believed it came from a defeated candidate who was anxious for someone else to start the trouble.

Wants Odd Fellows' Home. CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Dec. 29.—(Special.)—Central City is preparing to make a strong bid for the proposed Odd Fellows' home, which is to be located somewhere in the state soon after February 1. The officers of the order having the location of the home in charge, insist upon a site which is all in one tract, and which is located in a part of the state adapted to the raising of tree fruit, small fruit and vegetables, and where general farming will be profitable. It is their intention to secure a tract of at least 100 acres, and it is believed that by the proper cultivation of such a tract that the income would be sufficient to almost support the home.

With the wants of those who will locate the home in mind, Central City Odd Fellows are setting about in a business-like manner to secure it. They have several tracts in view, one of them being especially suited for the purpose, and which they have already secured an option on there. Already there is money enough in sight
