sipp, the market elumbed toward noon, owner to heavy sales by northwestern interests and by a local elevator concern, prices declining nearly 1 cent for all deliverles. For a time the market was nervous, but in the right four nearly all the loss was resulted, shorts being the principal buyers. The close was firm, although July and september were below yesterday's clossing. May closed at $1.07% and July at 18% C. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 18.600 bu.

The corn market was firm; the market slumped about midday because of the break in wheat, but quickly rallied again. The close was firm, with prices up ket to 46% c. with May at 61% cand July at 61% cipslike. Outs displayed more firmness than either wheat or corn. The close was firm, with prices a shade to 4c higher, with May at 61% cand July at 61% cipslike. The cold wave curusiled receipts of live hugs at all western packing centers and this caused moderate strength in provisions here. A leading western packer was a good buyer of land. At the close prices were unchanged to 75c higher.

Opening cables on corn came 'ad lower and no demand reported.

Local receipts are moderate and the cash semand was showing some inprovement, but stocks are heavy and buying is of a retail majure.

There is little hope or few signs of any advance in values or pressure.

Wheat was firm, but sagged shortly after the opening on selling by commission houses who had resting orders. Later cables steaded the market and tears of the cold weather freezing the growing plant induced weather freezing the growing plant induced weather freezing the growing plant induced toward the close. May wheat opened at $1.01% and closed at $1.01%.

Corn proved firmer, with offerings light and some better shipping demand. Values were nervous and the changes were rapid, but the upward tendency proved stronger and values were well sustained. May corn opened at $80 and closed at $60.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Zero weather in the west and southwest where the fall sown arow is to a large extent unprotected by a snow, had a bullish effect on the wheat market here today. Early gains, however, were lost and at the close prices were 3cc higher to 3c lower. Corn, outs and provisions closed firm.

The cold wave which carried zero temperature as far south as Oklahoma was a chief topic of discussion among traders in the wheat pit and the uncertainty regarding the possible damage to winter whost ornight out active demand at times. Fallare of the Liverpool market to respond to the slump here, and a small movement in the northwest, were additional factors that tended to strengthen the inarket. After displaying considerable strength during the early part of the session, the market elumped toward noon, owner, and by a local elevator concern, prices and and continued cold and Rising Mercury Thursday.
