Three First Choices Win in Succession at Emeryville.

BELL WETHER TAKES FOURTH

Colonel Jack, Who Was Plunged on as Favorite, Finished Second—Results on Other Courses.

OAKLAND, Jan. 20.—Favorites fared better at Emeryville today. Three of the first choices in succession and two of the other winners were well supported. Colonel Jack was plunged on to win the fourth race, at a mile and fifty yards, but Bellwether, the second choice, led all the way, winning handily. Colonel Jack outgained Fullerton for the second place. Cuernavaca was played as a good thing in the first, and won handily. Summaries:

First race, six furlongs, selling: Cuernavaca (100, Keogh, 13 to 1) won, San Gil (100, McCarthy, 8 to 1) second, Ben Ridge (101, Gilbert, 3 to 1) third, Time: 1:18.5. Second race, five furlongs, purse: Bellwether (110, Notter, 10 to 1) won, Fullerton (110, Notter, 10 to 1) second, Colonel Jack (112, Keogh, 10 to 1) third, Time: 1:46. NEW ATTACK ON SOLID SOUTH

President-Elect Taft Addresses High School Girls at Atlanta.

TALKS IN COMPLIMENTARY VEIN

Northern Men Know a Good Thing and Many Southern Girls May Come Across the Line to Live Permanently.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 20.—What might be considered an entirely new point of attack on the "Solid South" was made today by the president-elect, when he put in a good word for the warmth and ardor of northern men "who know a good thing when they see it" in the charm and beauty of southern young women. This lighter vein of Mr. Taft's humor was given vent before what he termed "a bouquet of bright and charming faces," the students of the High School for Girls, when he was in the brief talk, he declared had carried him off in enjoyable fancy and his introduction to speak was "a rude awakening."

The charming address to the student body, he said, impressed him as an entirely new and convincing argument in favor of the separation of the sexes for education.

Mr. Taft admitted his point of view had changed somewhat on the question of the "Solid South" since he was in a good word for the warmth and ardor of northern men "who know a good thing when they see it" in the charm and beauty of southern young women. This lighter vein of Mr. Taft's humor was given vent before what he termed "a bouquet of bright and charming faces," the students of the High School for Girls, when he was in the brief talk, he declared had carried him off in enjoyable fancy and his introduction to speak was "a rude awakening."

When the train of intelligent women of the country wanted southern girls, he predicted, they would get it, on the very natural grounds that they always get what they want. But he remarked, in passing the subject for the discussion of matrimony, that he did not see the slightest interest in the faces of his hearers in what he was discussing.

Matrimony, as Mr. Taft said at Athens, last week, was not the only future to which a young woman should look, and no satisfactory acceptance should be made of marriage proposals simply to avoid being an old maid. The great success of many unmarried women of his acquaintance justified this assertion.

"But of course in the south you are not troubled as they are in Massachusetts," he continued, "where there are so many women that there is no possibility that they can all marry and it is a real serious problem as to what shall be done with the unmarried women. Here I know that the situation is different."

"But, my dear young ladies I did not come here to make a prepared address. I came here trusting to the inspiration of the moment for what your bright eyes and pretty faces and your charming presence might bring out of me. I trust I am not too old yet to yield to the charm of beauty. I know there is a theory that we are all old in the north, but I assure you it is not true. I remember while once in Nashville of making inquiry regarding a great many families there and I found that immediately after the war there were a great many northern officers who excelled admirable taste and who found young ladies of beauty and charm, formerly on the other side, who were willing, or who at least were induced, whether willing or not, to become the wives of northern men, so that it might not be the worst lot should your fate ever carry you north of Mason and Dixon's line, for we know a good thing when we see it."

Address at Haine Normal School.

Mr. Taft went to Haine Normal and Industrial school for negroes, where he delivered an extended address on the benefits of industrial education.

"This school," he said, "was founded by women, has been for twenty-three years under the supervision of Lucy C. Laney, a negro, and has 500 students. 'That a colored woman,' said Mr. Taft, 'could have constructed this great institution of learning and brought it to its present state of usefulness speaks volumes for the capacity of that woman.'

After reviewing the hardships and struggles which the work had entailed, he continued:

"Therefore I shall go out of this meeting, despite the distinguished presence here, carrying in my memory only the figure of the woman who has been able to create all this."

Expressing the most profound sympathy for the struggle upward of the negro race, Mr. Taft remarked, having in mind the recent utterances of Senator Tillman, that it was not only inappropriate to refer to some of the expressions that fell from the lips of men prominent in political life that are utterly lacking in any sympathy at that kind and that are utterly cruel and abusive in their meaning. If they are to be given the meaning that the words naturally bear, I refer to those gentlemen who deem it necessary to affirm that in the interest of this country the negro race should be kept in a state of servitude."

Mr. Taft talked of today with W. H. Dickey, who not only Mr. Taft spoke of the availability of Charles Nagel and President Sumner of the First National Bank of Kansas, but also of the fact that C. K. Kerns of St. Louis likewise was a Missouri conference at the Taft cottage.

Many in Oratorical Arena.

Councilman Brucker then entered the arena and made a fight to have all the ordinances referred to the committees. The councilman, chairman of the railway committee, to which the street car ordinance would go "for decision as to its final disposition," as he put it, Councilman Davis, another objector, is chairman of the water committee. This motion met with instant opposition on the part of Councilman Zimmerman, Brucker, Funkhouser, and Sheldon, as against oratorical efforts on the part of Councilmen Davis and Jackson. A roll call was asked for and all the ordinances were referred to the committee of the whole for discussion on the votes of the street car ordinance, the water ordinance, the telephone ordinance, and the street car ordinance.

The Story of Nebraska

The Omaha Bee has planned to publish "The Story of Nebraska," not the story of the prairie schooner, the sod house, the trapper or the fur trader, but of prosperous, progressive, busy, up-to-the-minute Nebraska. Many of the new and some of the older settled counties have been making progress so quietly that the world at large is not aware of their achievements.

Our object is to bring all loyal and progressive citizens into closer touch in the commercial and social relations, and to work for the development of the natural resources of the state, to foster and build up manufacturing industries, and by every consistent effort encourage the employment of skilled labor and improve the conditions of the laboring classes. The story will give only a glimpse, a mere outline. The reader will be shown among the print just enough to give him a general idea of the state. Its opportunities to the dairyman, and its openings to the home maker. The free rural mail box and the telephone pole are crowding the frontier. The wolf and the wilderness have retreated. If during her early history Nebraska has surprised her own people, surely a brighter future awaits them.

There will be a little about the towns and cities, just now somewhat misunderstood and misjudged, and something about the rural districts, the farm and the stock ranch. Here and there will be found a few figures, not many, just a few, as measurements and for the information of those who enjoy such things.

It will tell the achievements of a people, who in less than half a century have wrought out of a boundless prairie a progressive, productive state. It will give in brief the new life in the new country, the swift passing of events, the possibilities of advancement and pleasure. These articles will be fully illustrated and will appear in the Sunday Bee from week to week.

Next Sunday--Adams County.

TAX FOR USE OF STREETS

"Occupation" Ordinances Affect Public Service Companies.

GROSS EARNINGS TO BE ASSESSED

Six Measures, Involving Eight Corporations, Introduced at Council Meeting and Oratory Tapped in Unlimited Quantities.

Intermixed with much oratory and the use of considerable villification, the shaking of fists by some councilmen and the rising in questions of privilege by others, the quotation from old ordinances and the showing of the record of votes in the years gone by, "aye and nay" or the calling of the roll, ordinances providing for the collection of occupation taxes from the several public service corporations in Omaha were introduced at Tuesday night's meeting of the city council, read twice and referred to the committee of the whole.

There are six ordinances altogether and they affect eight public service corporations. The principle in all of them is identical, the same, this being the charging of a certain salary for a month.

The eight companies affected are the Omaha Water company, the Omaha Gas company, the Omaha Electric Light and Power company, the Omaha Telephone company, the Omaha Street Railway company, the Western Union Telegraph company and the Postal Telegraph company.

Get Off Easily Now.

The two light companies are now paying small royalties, the gas company at the rate of 5 cents on 1,000 cubic feet of gas sold and the electric light company 3 per cent on its gross earnings. To this royalty will be added 2 per cent of the gross receipts, should the ordinance pass and be approved. The independent Telephone company is paying a small royalty, but the other telephone company, the two telegraph companies, the water company and the street car company pay nothing for the use of the streets.

Councilman Funkhouser introduced the ordinance aimed at the two lighting companies and Councilmen Bridges and Zimmerman introduced the ordinance aimed at the two telegraph companies, the water company and the street car company.

The first fight on the ordinance came when the clerk had finished reading the title of the first ordinance introduced, that providing for an occupation tax to be paid by the street car company. Councilman Elsas moved to lay the ordinance on the table and Councilman Davis seconded the motion. Councilman Zimmerman called attention to the rule which prohibited this procedure before being read the second time, but the clerk refused to entertain the Elsas motion.

Councilman Brucker then entered the arena and made a fight to have all the ordinances referred to the committees. AGAINST POSTAL BANK BILL

Chicago Clearing House Adopts Resolutions Condemning Bill Pending in Congress.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The Chicago Clearing House association today adopted resolutions condemning the postoffice savings bank bill pending in congress, on the ground that the proposed means of conducting it were impracticable. The association also declared the currency and banking laws as now existing form an inconsistent "patchwork of legislation" and urged congress to expedite the creation of new laws.

Four Relatives Get Cash.

LANDER, Wyo., Jan. 20.—(Special)—John W. Cook, the administrator of the estate of John Kinney, who died at Shoshoni two years ago, has closed up the estate by sending a check for $2,000 to the mother and four sisters of the deceased in New York City. Kinney left an estate of about $5,000 in money deposited in Denver banks, but claims amounting to $1,500 were presented after his death. The heirs are not in comfortable circumstances and the money left them falls to needy hands.

Seniors' Captain Is Chosen.

Claude Neaves Elected by Last Year's High School Students.

San Carlos, Phil Lehmer, Harold McKinney and Claude Neaves were nominated for senior class indoor athletic captain at a meeting yesterday. Neaves was elected by a large majority.

With regard to the senior class, the class decided to turn the matter over to a committee to be chosen by the president, which will meet at a meeting of the class teachers and make definite arrangements for the coming year.
