KINKAID AS AN INSURGENT

Congressman from Big Sixth Tells of His Opposition to Cannon.

DEFENDS COURSE IN THE FIGHT

Declares He Has Missed Only One Meeting of the Insurgents and Has Been as Active as the Average Member.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., Jan. 29 .- (Special) Owing to the fact that numerous people n this part of the state have been expressing much concern as to Congressman Kinkaid's actual position in the "insurgents" ranks, H. G. Myers of this place wrote im a letter on the subject and received he personal reply which follows. The leters referred to are from Congressmen E. A. Hayes and A. P. Gardner, the latter gentleman deploring the fact that on the day of the dinner Mr. Kinkaid had undergone a painful operation and was unable dergone a painful operation and was unable to attend:

January 23, 1909 — Herbert G. Myers, Broken Bow. Neb.—My Dear Mr. Myers; I am in receipt of your esteemed favor of the 18th inst. by which you write me further as to what I may have been doing in the way of opposition to the official influence of Mr. Cannon. In my reply to your first letter I stated that nothing had been done or could be done by the present congress, which is the Sixtieth congress, in the way of the election of a speaker for the Sixty-first congress to commence March 4, and while your last letter virtually grants this to be true, you further state in effect that my constituents regard the "insurgent" element as the most progressive of the congress and that newspaper reports have falled to identify me with this element. You state that "the main proposition under consideration is, In what way have you been using your influence against the influence of Speaker Cannon?" Replying, will say the only way worthy of mention in which opposition to Speaker Cannon has been manifested by the "insurgent" element during the session has been by agitating a change of the rules, to the end that less power be conferred upon the speaker and more be reserved to the membership fundamentally.

What have I done in this respect? Practically I have done the same as other "insurgents," not so much as Colonel Hepburn of Iowa, Mr. Gardner of Massachusetts or Mr. Hayes of California, who have been this most active and conspicuous; but more them to severage. I have attended all the meetings save one, when it was impracticable, and I am pretty confiden that every other members identified with the movement, not excepting the chairman immedif, has missed one or more of the meetings. More than a year ago I became identified with the demand for the very reformation of rules now being sought, as a letter which Congressman Hayes has volunteered to give me sought, as a letter which Congressman Hayes has volunteered to give me sought, as a setter when home to me, and which I shal being sought, at any rate by a majority of the "insurgents."

However, this idea was not new to me by any means when I became identified with the movement during the last session, for I was an active factor in the legislative session of 1883 of Nebraska in establishing the first precedent that members of the state senate themselves name the members of the standing committees, with the chair-man of each. Hitherto the lieutenant gov-ernor had named the standing committees of the standing committees, with the chairman of each. Hitherto the lieutenant governor had named the standing committees of that body. A few republican state senstors, of whom I was one, joined with so-called independent republicans and democrats and carried the proposition against the opposition of other republicans and possibly a few democrats. Ever since the session of 1883 this precedent has been followed and I have ever since been an advocate of the rule and principle and for at least a year have been working for the adoption of the rule in our national house of representatives.

If it be a fault to not in each instance have called the attention of the reporters to so common a place matter as my having attended a meeting of the "insurgents." I must plead guilty thereto.

Assuring you, and, through your valuable paper, my constituents, that I hold myself in readiness to fully meet any specific charges of ommission or commission at any time alleged as to the speakership proposiime alleged as to the speakership proposi-ion, and thanking you for your solicitude, he pains you have taken and for the space, remain, very truly yours.

Smallpox on Rampage.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Jan. 29.4 (Special).-Aspecial session of the county board was held today to take action with reference to a number of smallpox cases is the extreme northwestern limits of the county, about twenty miles from this city. In what is known as the Bluff Center settlement, there have been a number of case of varioloid. It appears that the afflicted ones insist that it is chickenpox while the physicians of Cairo, who were called into the cases, pronounced it smallpox and urged strict quarantine, There was no organized county board of health and the village of Cairo had no jurisdiction. The afflicted ones therefore went about their way as usual until others complained, and upon the request of Superintendent Miller of Catro, a special meeting of the board was held at which strict regulations were adopted and County Physician Phelan was instructed to proceed to Cairo and Bluff Center tomorrow and
