MAENNERCHOR IS AT WORK
Preparations Already Under Way for Great Song Festival of 1910.
ARMIES OF SINGERS WILL COME
General Committee to Plan and Perfect Arrangements Comprises Some of Most Influential Germans of Omaha.
The twenty-fourth biennial saengerfest of the Western Saengerbund, embracing the states of Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and North Dakota, will be held in Omaha July 21-24, inclusive, 1910. It is expected that large delegations will be present from other western and southern states and that not less than 100 singing societies from the various parts of the union will be here to take part in the great song festival.
The Western Saengerbund was organized in 1861, in Davenport, Ia., in a humble way. It then had but two or three socities and few members, but since that time has grown into an association of more than eighty-five societies, with over 2,000 of the best singers in the west.

The purpose of these combined societies is the culture of German popular songs, the maintaining of the German language and the old and venerable German customs, which evince sociability and fraternity among their members, and to instill reverence for the Fatherland. The concerts will be held during the Omaha saengerfest in the Auditorium and will embrace the compositions of the best German artists.
Festival a Great Drawing Card.
The saengerfests held in the last six years in Milwaukee, St. Paul and La Crosse were among the most largely attended gatherings ever held in those cities and were not alone great artistic successes but the cities reaped a revenue from them that far more than returned the outlay in securing the festivals. Some of the local members of the Saengerbund predict that the saengerfest of 1910 will bring to Omaha approximately 25,000 people from the neighboring cities and states who will spend the week here, and that the Omaha meeting will far surpass any of its predecessors. When the proposition was made last year at La Crosse, Wis., to hold the festival in Omaha in 1910 it was carried with great enthusiasm, there being no opposing vote. Many of the visitors expressed a special desire to visit the Gate City of the west. One of the features of the festival will be the old German celebration, "Gemuetlichkeit," which is wholly dissimilar to any other national festival and cannot be expressed in the English or any other language, being particularly a German institution.
This committee will incorporate under the name "Omaha Saengerfest association," and in a meeting to be held shortly about fifteen committees will be appointed, of which each one has a certain branch to look after. The officers of the association are: C. J. Ernst, president; Hy. Haubens, first vice president; Jacob Kopp, second vice president; W. H. Buchholz, treasurer; A. J. Eggers, financial secretary; Chr. Kuhl, general manager of the Westliche Presse Publishing company, corresponding secretary.

MAENNERCHOR Already at Work.
To the Omaha Maennerchor belongs the credit of securing the festival for Omaha in 1910. Preparations are already being made for the coming song festival in view of its great importance and national character. The Omaha Maennerchor will naturally take the initiative in the affair, and President Peter Laux of that society has selected a general committee of fifteen to have executive charge of the festival. This committee consists of W. H. Buchholz, cashier of the Omaha National bank; A. J. Eggers of the Eggers-O'Flynn company; Charles Eppien of Metz Bros.; C. J. Ernst, assistant treasurer of the Burlington route; Fritz Freytag, manager of Edward Hixshaw & Co., South Omaha; Paul Getzschmann of the Festner Printing company; Hy. Haubens, president of the Lion Bonding and Surety company; John J. Hess of Hess & Swoboda; Jacob Kopp of the Dreibus Candy company; C. B. Laver, wholesale merchant; A. L. Meyer, general manager of Her & Co.; Prof. Charles Peterson, Theodore Ringhold, hardware dealer; Father Sinne, pastor of St. Mary Magdalene's church, Nineteenth and Dodge streets; R. C. Strechlow, exhibition contractor.

A Colonel by Marriage.
A traveler in Texas says that he was riding along a cattle trail near the New Mexico line, when he met a rather pompous looking native of the region, who introduced himself as Colonel Higgins of Devil's River. "Were you a colonel in the confederate army," the traveler asked. "No, sah. 'On the union side, then?"

"No, sah; nevah was in no war." "Belong to the Texas Rangers?" "No, sah; I do not. 'Ah, I see; you command one of the state militia regiments.'" "No, sah; I don't. Don't know nothing about soldiering."
"Where, then, did you get the rank of colonel?" "I see a kumel by marriage, sah." "By marriage? How's that?" "I married the widow of a kumel, sah.—Kumel Thompson of Waco."
TOGGED FOR A TAFT DINNER
Sartorial Wizard of the South Dispenses Information for the Feast.
Answering the inquiries of several "old subscribers" of the Charleston News and Courier regarding suitable wear for local participants in the reception and dinner tendered Hon. William Howard Taft, president-elect, the sartorial wizard of the paper discourses in this wise style:
"The proper thing in dress for the gentleman attending the dinner to be given to the president-elect is the swallow-tail coat, the white 'evening' and black trousers. The white shirt, of course, is a sine qua non. The necktie must be of fine cambric or linen or other white cloth with round ends and must be tied by hand and no one of the 'made-up' sort. It is proper to wear only pearl colored buttons in the shirt, or buttons of white enamel or white pearl or some other white material. Gold studs ought to be eschewed. No Tuxedo coats should be permitted. No attempt should be made to wear diamond scarf pins or horseshoe ornaments in the necktie. It is reprehensible in the highest degree to display a watch chain or gold or other sort across the waist; the watch, if one is so fortunate as to own such a thing, ought to be carried in one of the pockets of the trousers. It is very bad form, indeed, ever to wear a watch chain with evening dress, albeit the chain be of purest gold or was at some remote period possessed by a distinguished ancestor. The proper thing, of course, is to have the feet dressed in button shoes, or, better still, we are informed, in shoes that tie with a single black silk ribbon. It is not meant by this hat slippers will be proper, nor does it mean that gaiters with very light tops will sort against the inspection of the secret service men who will be present, or meet the demands of the occasion. It is expected, naturally, that all persons present at the dinner will wear socks, or half hose as they are more politely designated in the fashion catalogue, and these socks should be, as we are informed, pearl gray in color, with stripes of yellow, not yellow of a vivid hue, but yellow of a somewhat subdued orange shading, such shading, we should say, as a venture and without the approval of our mentors, as the orange sometimes assumed after a more or less spirited engagement with the green.
We risk the statement that so much attention will not be given to the shoes and socks on this occasion as their importance really demands; but in all the other 'features' we have noted gentlemen will be expected to govern themselves by the best usages, of which we have spoken. It is possible, of course, that some gentlemen do not have more than one set of shirt studs, and in such cases we suppose that gold, or other buttons that look like gold, will be pardoned, and it may be that some of the more old-fashioned fellows do not own white waistcoats, and they should not be kept out if they should come in black; but the main point, after all, relates to the coat and the trousers. These, as we have said, must be of some black material, and the coat, particularly, must be of the swallow-tail variety. No gentleman who knows anything at all about what is expected and what is permissible should be at the dinner in a Tuxedo coat.
