Laurie Wallace a Winner

Comes Out on Top in the Lincoln Whiskers Contest.

President Did Wear 'Em in 1861

Much Discussed Point Concerning the High School Statue is Finally Settled in Favor of the Painter.

A. Laurie Wallace, artist, has been vindicated. President Lincoln did wear whiskers when he was nominated. And the much discussed question is settled. Prior to the erection a year ago of the statue on the high school grounds representing Lincoln at his inauguration the question arose as to the excellence of the statue. Mr. Wallace taking the critic's end of the controversy, He made many criticisms, one of which was the hairless face. This criticism was at once disclaimed by several people who saw Mr. Lincoln when he was inaugurated, March 4, 1861, and who declared positively that the president was smooth shaven at that time.
