VAUDEVILLE BY HOME TALENT

Pleasing Entertainment Presented by St. Paul's Church.

Criticism would be invidious, and the only fault that could be found with the entertainment given at the Star theater last night by members of the congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal church was that it was entirely too short. The program, which lasted but little over an hour, was replete with good things from the moment the curtain was rung up until it dropped on the ensemble "Yankee Doodle."

There were no tiresome waits, and it was accounted in a measure for the dispatch with which the program was given. Beveridge informed the "frat" students The entertainment opened with the grand ourt entry, and by the way the title of the entertainment was "Vaudeville at the Queen's Court," with Miss Helen Bixby as the queen and N. the fun began. The vaudeville artists were all amateurs with one exception, and that lone exception was Harry Kerney, who was billed as the "only professional on the program." There were fancy drills by a number of little girls and they did them well and received their due share of applause. Miss Ida Pippin, in a buck and wing dance, was as good, if not better, than many a professional, and Mrs. Claude- Mathal, a dainty and winsome little soubrette; Mrs. land meeting: Olmstead and Miss Hayden, with their song and dance turns, brought down the house, figuratively speaking, as the theater was atill standing when the show was over.

A petite and pretty little piece of femi ninity from South Omaha, Miss Mullen, did a dancing turn that was considered by many the feature of the program. Miss Fanny Dietrich, as usual, scored heavily with a dramatic recital, which displayed her talents as an elocutionist. > MATTERS IN DISTRICT COURT Trial of Wilding on Extortion Charge

> Draws a Crowd. Members of his wife's family gave damag ing testimony in the district court against C. A. Wilding, whose trial on the charge of attempting to extort money from Charles McKeown, a wealthy farmer of Crescent township, by means of "black hand" letters, was begun yesterday morning.

Wilding's mother-in-law, his sister-in-law and his brother-in-law all testified that the defendant, at his home, on November 24. told them about McKeown receiving the blackmailing letters, although Wilding stated to Postoffice Inspector J. E. Swen son, as was testified to by the latter, that he did not know anything about the letters being sent to McKeown until December 1, when he read of it in the newspa-

McKeown was the first witness introduced by the state. He testified to finding ontinuous vaudeville sure enough, and this a threatening letter tied to a post near his house on November 23. This was the letter on which the indictment was founded. Another letter of similar character was received through the mail by the witness a few days later. In these letters threats were made that unless McKeown gave up $350 some of his children might be kidnaped, his barn burned and his well poisoned. Mr McKeown said that he had not given up any money and none of the acts threat ened in the letters had been committed. Shortly after being committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. Wilding, from the dictation of Postoffice Inspector Swenson, wrote a letter. Mr. Swenson testified that, in his opinion, the threatening letter received by McKeown was in the handwriting of the defendant. C. E. Walters, a former banker countant, and William Arnd, former county treasurer, were introduced by the state as experts on handwriting. They each testified that, in their opinion, the handwriting in the letter written by Wilding in jail and in that received by McKeown were the

His remarks created no little comment owing to the antagonistic attitude maintained by the retailers through the country against the parcels post. It is uncertain what action the convention will take on his recommendation, but the attitude seems favorable at the present time. If the recommendation passes it is be-lieved it will be the first time a retail jewelers' association has been put on record as advocating such a system. RECOUNT IDA COUNTY BALLOTS Not: Many Measures Have Finally Passed, but for All that

Legislation is Fully as Far

Advanced as Usual. (From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Feb. 5,-(Special.)-The companies. legislature today chose a Lincoln day erator in the person of Lafe Young. Efforts had been made to secure some noted personage from outside the state, but this could not be done. A program will be arranged in the hall of the house and a joint session be held. The contest committee of the house having in charge the contest from Ida ounty today decided upon asking for the ballot boxes and ordered a recount of the vote. This is in the case wherein S. M. Corrie, republican, is contesting the seat of J. H. Baxter, democrat. The claim is made that the ballots were not properly counted. The two houses each passed a number of minor bills today. The senate passed two house bills, which thus become laws, one a legalizing act and the other a bill to require that bonds of executors be examined once each year.

The senate passed a bill revising the law as to distribution of codes, taking the matter out of the hands of the state auditor and also giving for use in each court room in the state one code and sup-The house passed a bill to fine rail-

The committee in charge of the contest has asked for a recount of ballots in Page, Appanoose and Union counties.

Many Bills Are in Hand. There is apparent great slowness in the legislature this session, and the calendars do not show a great amount of real legialation, but in some respects the work is advanced. President Clarke made a little informal investigation and found that the number of bills introduced is larger at this time than before. Two years ago, according to the record, on January 20, the number of house bills was 101; this year on the same date, ISI. Senate bills two years ago on February 2 numbered 26; this year, Music by high school chorus.
