FIRE ON HEAD OF LOVELAND

Rev. T. C. Hinkle Second Methodist Preacher to Score Him.

RIDICULES "THAT FIRST" SERMON

Pastor of First Methodist Becomes Target of Severe Criticism by Fellow Clergymen for Views on Ministry.

Rev. Frank L. Loveland, D. D., pastor of First Methodist church, believes now that he stepped on a live wire when he preached the first of his sermons on the relation of the clergy to the world.

He drew from Rev. J. A. Spyer, Trinity Methodist, a reply in the pulpit Sunday night and now Rev. Thomas C. Hinkle, pastor of Pearl Methodist, has given to The Bee some of his views on Dr. Loveland and his course.

Rev. L. L. Loveland, perhaps, is the greatest discoverer since the days of Christopher Columbus, said Rev. Hinkle. "His new findings are as unique as they are wonderful and interesting. No doubt they will revolutionize, deodorize, ostracize, paralyze, throw-dust-in-the-eyes of the whole ministerial profession."

"After a life of close and indefatigable study this man has found that a 'Prince Albert coat will no longer enthrall humanity.' It seems strange and almost impossible that savants from time out of memory have gone over the entire purview of human knowledge and allowed this momentous truth to escape them; but fact is stranger than fiction and such is the case.

"The Prince Albert coat is still worn by many of the leading men of English speaking peoples, and a general upheaval of the elements is feared when Rev. Mr. Loveland's new and great discovery is given to the world. But it is believed that the shock can be sufficiently mitigated so as to prevent any great deviation of the earth from its orbit.

Calls the Jonah Act.
To this man also is due the credit of discovering that Jonah did not swallow the whale. That one man in a single lifetime should bring to light such tremendous facts seems almost incredible; but again the impossible has happened as you will find recorded in any standard encyclopedia.

"Another lesser, though by no means unimportant discovery by Rev. Loveland, is this: 'Interest a man if you want him to listen.'"

"Just how preachers will use this absolutely new truth is furnishing ground for interesting speculation, but it is feared by some that ministers will now become book agents as it is in this field, above all others, that it is desirable to get men to listen."

"And now the thing is easy. 'Interest your man and he will listen.' Easy now, after you have all the great inventions—simple after you know."

"Another of this man's ponderous findings is this: 'Too many sermons are all milled.' The unfortunate thing about this new truth is that we are not told whose sermons! Still another utterance is this: 'An appropriate epithet for many ministers would be: "He was a good man, but he couldn't preach.'"

"Great reading these eternal and mighty truths we feel that peculiar and peaceful souls, who are ever a natural concomitant of such sermons. As the sleep deepened we found ourselves looking 3,000 years into the future. Picking up a newspaper of that time we read the following: 'Here's a Hot One.'"

"An old milled manuscript was recently found near the site of the ancient city of Omaha! The following was entered there, but you'll beat me to it by having your own man do the work. I feel better now."

TWO PLUGGED BETS COLLIDE

Impact Jaws Loose Mutual Confession After Mutton-Headed Clerk Signals False.

A well known man about town walked into the private office of a friend Monday morning and said wearily: "I'm dodging some folks today, but I'll bet I'll get the first telephone call you get will be for me."

"I'll just go you," said the friend, without hesitation. In a moment of two he stepped outside his office door and said to a clerk, "Go upstairs and call me on the telephone."

The clerk went, not knowing just what was wanted. He had seen the visitor step in however and when his employer answered the ring he asked, "Is Mr. there?"

"Yes, he is," blurted out the employer and slammed the receiver back on the hook. "What'd he tell," said the visitor, without any surprise. "Why didn't you let me talk?"

"Because I sent that mutton head upstairs purposely to beat your bet and it's so good that I'll buy you two cigars."

"No, you won't. One will do. I had a friend to call me one minute after he entered here, but you'll beat me to it by having your own man do the work. I feel better now."

New Principle of Taxation.
By the introduction of S. F. 28, Senators Ollis and Miller hope to introduce in the state a theory of taxation new here, but one which the two senators say is in effect in some of the large states of the east. The theory is that by changing the constitution to provide for uniform taxation under license, in accordance with value, the counties may proceed independently and make valuations for their own purposes independent of each other, while for state purposes the legislature will enact a series of laws that will permit taxation of gross earnings and licenses or franchises and the like and raise the state's revenue in this manner. The adoption of this amendment, the introducers think, will revolutionize the present system of taxation in Nebraska and make it on a basis that will avoid the strife between counties and will permit one county to adopt whatever valuation it may desire, the state tax depending on a different system of revenue entirely.
