Be My Valentine. the face divine, for the furbelows, you be my Valentine?

What a pen that would incline To describe you, dear, in prose! Lady of the face divine!

You who all the charms combine Of the lify and the rose, Won't you be my Valentine?

May I call you "Lady Mine" As to love my friendship grows, Lady of the face divine?

Read my love in every line That I haitingly compose; Won't you be my Valentine?

Rhmyss like these look simply fine With a picture. Well-who knows? Lady of the face divine Won't you be my Valentine? -Ex.

Ten days more and the flags and the maing, the valentines and all the other favors with which society has amused treif must be put away until after Easter. The calendar is a bit disappointing to those to had anticipated large things, for in main, to date at least, things are small and informal with the exception of the Visiting Nurses' birthday party Friday aftthe Street-Wakefield wedding Saturday evening and the cotillion at Fort Crook Monday evening.

Although Omaha society is keen about otilions it is more modest regarding the favors than the easterners. The winter asson has been crowded with bridge parfies and luncheons, but these affairs do not interest the men. and this is probably one reason for the great popularity of the german. One of the largest affairs of the week was the german Thursday evening of given by the Cotillion club. Monday evening dinner dance and cotillion will be given at Fort Crook by the officers and ladies Omikron club will give a cotilion April 16. Mrs. A. M. Longwell, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. The up-to-date cotllion is at its prettiest and, Mrs. Robert Rosenweig, Mrs. Henry and most extravagant stage in New York Hart, Mr. Al Mortensen of Council Bluffs some of the leaders have made visiting foreigners wonder. Vast sums of money expended for some of the favors and nie Brenner Wednesday evening at her the scenic effects. In fact some of the home, 4316 Burdette street, in celebration of latter have been copied from popular comic operas, as for instance the effect of a field spent with games and music. Those present of waving poppies produced in one ball foom was not done without the services of an expert who could turn out large artificial poppies. Provide 150 or 330 women such with a cluster of popples costing only say, and offset these with as many itenuieres of the same flower at half the cost, and it is easily seen that the price in the aggregate of an apparently inexpensive set of favors mounts up. The poppy scene in one of the successful comic operas

Violets touched the high mark Saturday and the young woman who receives such a valentine today may count horself favored indeed. Two dollars, $5.50, $3 and $3.50 a hundred, and the supply limited, was the situation that confronted the purchaser Saturday afternoon. Some of the florists ran short and had to arrange their suppir in limited bunches to avoid disappointing their regular customers, while others were unable to fill all their orders.

Oh, Ottola, how could I guess What future years would bring? How could I know that you would have The grace of which they sing Who only sing of angels bright? Give me that chance again. You see, in those days you were six-And I was only ten.

Although the State university is a few hours distant, many of the college pranks are extended to Omaha. During one of the recent vacations a fraternity man met the Japanese cook from the "frat house," who was also spending the vacation in Omaha. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. The cook was decorated with two fraternity pins, and the college man immediately con fiscated the pin of his own fraternity, but allowed the Jap to continue wearing the other.
