laid aside without prejudice. Kinkaid will make another effort to get it up and pass it if possible before the close of this session. Representative Mann in his objection which did not sem to be altogether serious or definite, stated that if these holdings of homesteaders are to be taken over by large cattle interests, congress ought to know of it. He thought that any man who ook a homestead under the Kinkald act could easily put $250 worth of improvements on it in seven years, as required by the law, and that if he did not improve the property to that extent, it was a fair presumption that he would not do it and that he would sell out as soon us he could Mr. Mann said tonight that there were ibisdly to be found grasses to grow in that country, which he appreciated was susceptible at present only for stock rais-He believed, however, that in matters of legislation there should be a look ahead instead of to the imediate present, and thought the bill should go over. He did not indicate whether he would continue as the "objector of the house" in antagonism of the bill, but the chances are that Mann will be found on Monday, which is suspension day under the ries, opposing

Judge Kinkaid explained the bill at considerable length today, and was suported by Mondell of Wyoming, Cooke of Colorado, and Gronna of North Dakota.

President-Elect Completes Tour and Starts for Cincinnati.

FEAST CAUSES NO BAD EFFECT

Despite Late Hours and Many Engagements in New Orleans Judge Tatt is in Prime Condition.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 13.-President-elect Taft today concluded his stay in New Orleans and at the same time completed the schedule of his visits to southern ities previous to his inauguration March 4. After spending nearly two days here he Queen & Crescent route for Cincinnati. where he will arrive at 10:40 Sunday morning. He will remain there until Tuesday norning, when he will go to Washington. Although she had planned to go direct to Washington, Mrs. Taft decided this morning to accompany the president-elect to incinnati and caused somewhat of a surprise when she rode to the terminal station with Judge Taft and boarded the Queen & Crescent train for Cincinnati.

It spite of the fact that it was almost 2 clock this morning before Mr. Taft made his exit from the banquet hall of the Grunewald hotel and the comparatively early hour at which it was necessary for him to arise today, incident to his departure, there were no signs of fatigue in his manner as he welcomed the party who escorted him to the station. His characterlatic good humor was in ample evidence as he chatted with those gathered to see him off, and as he smilingly waved goodbye as the train pulled out.

Orleans.

While Mr. Taft's time in New Orleans was largely occupied with formal affairs, he found the opportunity to put in nearly three hours yesterday in the pursuit of his favorite diversion-golf. As the brilliant reception in honor of Mrs. Taft was being held at the Country club, he was out on the club's links. He had not become sufficiently out of practice to play a losing game. Instead he scored a creditable victory over his opponent. Phillip Werlein, president of the New Orleans Progressive union, under whose auspices he was entertained while in New Orleans.
