The traditional Lenten quiet so far has not been at all oppressive, or even noticeable. With the annual Automobile show beginning Ash Wednesday, there has been plenty of excitement, large crowds going each day, and after attending the show, many informal cafe suppers were given...

Initiation week in some of the sororities at the University of Nebraska has brought many a prank and the candidates mostly from the freshman class, have been reduced to a state of amazing meekness in anticipation of the final dread ordeal.

A little incident happened at the show on society night which furnished a lot of fun for those who happened to be near. Mrs. E. S. Westbrooke had just bought a pretty new Franklin runabout and was sitting in the car at the show. Two young women passed, and seeing Mrs. Westbrooke in her car, one said to the other: "Look at that girl sitting in that car just like she owned it."

It remained, however, for two popular girls, one of whom is from Omaha and the other from Grand Island to turn the tables on their persecutors during the few remaining days before they must submit to the discipline incidental to full membership; they would take no chances upon the future for their revenge.

Proceeding with the meal, the chapter members soon discovered the reason for the fight and the wisdom of it. Everything was strongly flavored with asafetida. At the time of the last account the two miscreants were still missing, but, according to the narrator of the incident, their return is inevitable and when they do come...

Rarely have so many social affairs been crowded into two days as there were the beginning of the week. Both young and old celebrated Washington's birthday, throughout the city. A pleasant feature of one of the large luncheon parties was the playing of an orchestra during the luncheon hour. A program by an orchestra usually adds much to the cafe luncheon parties, but few hostesses have homes large enough to accommodate them.

The army set introduced another new feature in entertaining, the late afternoon tea from 4 to 7 o'clock. These hours are used so that the men may have an opportunity to attend. Formerly 3 to 5 were the popular hours, then 4 to 6 and now 4 to 7 are a welcome innovation.

Some of the party accounts will be placed in memory books as souvenirs. Mr. Arbuckle is a nephew of General Sullivan, U. S. A., retired, and has many friends in army circles. Mr. Arbuckle has his own saddle horse with him, which he rides in the last act of the play, and this horse has been named "Blim Hoover II."
