Smith of Nelisville testified before the senatorial investigating committee today that in dispensing expenditures in behalf of Stephenion a "small amount was given to the editor of the Nellsville Times for him to spend." Outside of certain expenses, he said he spent most of the money in the saloons of Clark county. When the senatorial proposition was discussed it seemed, he said, to he the field against "Uncle Ike." Smith continued:

"When they got to discussing him, saying that he was too old, etc., and got warm under the collar, I'd ask them to have one and cool off."
