Grand Island College.

Under the leadership of Prof. Verner a "Good Book club" has been organized. About seventy of the students belong to this club. The object of the organization is to prepare and publish a list of the hundred or more best books for thoughtful young people to become the possessors of a library acquainted with their contents.

The Amplification Literary society had an original story contest at a late meeting. Six persons presented stories that were more or less thrilling. Mr. Garland E. Lewis won first place on "The Mystery of the Sand Hill Hermit." The second prize was captured by Fred Sutherland on a "Visit to Mars."

The prohibition oratorical contest took place last Friday evening. There were three competing orators. Miss Jessie Draper was awarded the first prize and will represent the college in the coming state oratorical contest at Crete.

President Sutherland left last Thursday for Chicago and the east. He will aid for a few weeks the eastern secretary, who is raising funds to endow the Carnegie library.

The new courses of study for the academy eliminates all eighth grade subjects. On the going of the new schedule into effect, the college preparatory course will be necessary for graduation from the academy. No other college or university in the state sets a higher standard for academic graduation or for admission to the freshman class than does Grand Island college.

Kearney Military Academy. Workmen have been preparing the track to set it in shape for the "spring running" and a number of sprints have been tried out with the weights, jumps and vaulting and as soon as the track is "floated" the running will begin in earnest.

The hunting of ducks and geese has caused a number of the cadets to visit the banks of the Platte river with varying degrees of success. The drill was most over when the band came marching on the campus playing a stirring march. Rousing cheers greeted the band when it had finished its selection. The band will be in good shape for work when dress parade begins in the later spring.

The class in woodwork under Prof. McEachern have been doing some handsome work during the last month as several well made foot stools of beautifully grained oak will bear testimony to.

A large number of cadets are trying for places on the track team and some very creditable records are being made for this time of the year.

The following appointments and advancements in rank were made during the last week: Cadet Sutherland, corporal; Cadet Marble, corporal; Cadet Negro C, corporal; Cadet Hay L, corporal; Corporal Martin, third sergeant; Corporal Blair, color sergeant; Corporal Griswold, sergeant major.

The Founders' day exercises and dance will occur on April 15, this year, and it is expected that a number of last year's graduating class will be present at that time.

Kearney Normal News. The base ball contestants are holding regular practices preparatory to assigning them places on the team.

Invitations have been sent out for the annual exhibition given by the Kindergarten under the supervision of Miss Anna Caldwell each year.

Dr. W. A. Clark and Prof. M. R. Snodgrass were in Lincoln Thursday and Friday attending a meeting of the Nebraska School Teachers' club.

Dr. A. O. Thomas was in Bridgeport Thursday, where he addressed a meeting of the teachers. He visited Central City on Saturday to speak before a teachers' association.

At a meeting of the Dramatic club last week it was decided not to stage the two plays in Elm Creek, as was intended. The work increases during the closing days of the year and the students thought they could not well undertake to make all the preparations necessary in the production of plays outside of Kearney.

Prof. H. O. Sutton spoke at chapel last Wednesday upon the pure food laws and the methods of food adulterations.

WILSON PITNEY SONS OF RICH. Princeton President Sees No Benefit for Them in Universities. Pity for the sons of rich parents who go in for a university education was expressed by Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, in a lecture in the Temple Roxbury at Sixty-third street and Lexington avenue, New York City. He spoke on "Americanism," and after saying the country has no standard of music, literature or art, he discussed the fate of the sons of the rich.

"The rich man's son is a university," Dr. Wilson said. "It is an object of pity rather than of envy, because such an individual does not have to exert himself in his studies. Thereby he misses what a poor man's son gains as a result of necessity. Recently I was at a certain school which has the reputation of having only rich men's sons for students. I told the students they had my sympathy. It is not the fashion now to be rich."

"But rich these youths undoubtedly would be, and therefore they were foredoomed to obscurity. Young men are spurred by necessity to work, and if their daily bread depended on their daily study I think there would be an improvement all around. In fact, I think it would be a good plan to follow that those men who do not work should not eat."

Dr. Wilson said there was no need to fear socialism in this country, as the advocates of the co-operative commonwealth had so many divergent theories as to make them hopelessly divided.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME. The Catholic Viewpoint Regarding Public Schools. In an address which President Cavanaugh of Notre Dame was invited to deliver at a convention of public school teachers of Indiana on the Catholic viewpoint regarding public schools, he said: "It is one of the great signs of modern progress that people no longer feel obliged to hate one another for the love of God. There was a day when a discussion of this subject would inevitably give out more heat than light, but among earnest and cultivated people that day has happily passed. If you cannot accept the Catholic view, it is at least incumbent upon you to respect its sincerity. I believe that if there were a case in which earnestness and sincerity were shown in dissenting from a popular opinion this is that case. There are a million children in the Catholic parish schools of this country. I believe that $25 is the general estimate of the cost of educating a child for one year, and if so, those parochial schools are doing $5,000,000 worth of work each year. But suppose, for the sake of security, that we fix the cost of the parish school system at the absurdly low figure of $10,000,000 a year, and then reflect on what these figures mean. They mean that our people, out of their poverty and their faith, have, in obedience to a conscientious scruple, expended a sum of money at a cost which staggers the imagination. If we could make use of the public schools generally and divert this money into colleges and universities instead of into primary schools we should be able to establish each year a university more richly endowed than the University of Chicago, and in half a century we should have such universities sprinkled over the whole country in every state of the union. I believe that you will agree with me that, whether the Catholic scruple is well founded or not, it is worthy of the admiration of all who respect many character and loyalty to conscience, and that in view of all the circumstances it is the most remarkable fact in the current history of our country."

The cosmopolitan character of the students of Notre Dame is plainly shown by the personnel of players who took part in the Junior club comedy. In the cast of twenty, thirteen states were represented. The university has on its roster students from Canada, South America, Japan, China, Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Germany, France, Austria, Belgium, Ireland, Italy, Russia, Mexico, Spain. When students are in any number from any foreign country they immediately form into clubs, and without endangering their knowledge of American spirit they keep alive the spirit of their own country. Almost all the states of the union are represented by clubs.

The students of the department of architecture spent almost all of the last week in Chicago at the Art Institute in studying the exhibition of the Society of American Architects. Accompanied by Edward Adelger, head of the department, they made a tour of inspection of the principal buildings with the view of getting a clearer knowledge of modern architectural engineering. By submitting reports of the trip they will be given credit marks based on the thoroughness of their report.

In the peace oratorical contest to determine the representative of Notre Dame in the state contest, Francis Wenninger of Indiana received first place from the judges. The title of his oration was "Reason versus Force." It was a strong presentation of argument favoring arbitration in any international difficulty.

TABOR COLLEGE. Activities Preceding the Close of the Winter Term. The regular March meeting of the board of trustees of Tabor college, Tabor, Ia., occurred on Tuesday, March 18. The board directed Dean Johnson to spend four days of the week in the field during the spring term. His time will be occupied in visiting high schools, churches and associations in the interest of the college.

The plans for a summer school were approved. This will be a four weeks' session, beginning on June 28. It will include instruction in the branches required for a first-class county certificate, including also the commercial department and normal school music. Piano and voice will also be offered by a part of the conservatory faculty. This is the first attempt to hold such a school. The faculty will consist of Prof. Gillill of the commercial department; Miss Jewell, professor of biology; T. H. Stone, professor of the schools at Randolph, and two other teachers yet to be selected.

Plans for strengthening the normal department were discussed and referred to a committee for action, and also plans for increasing the endowment.

It is almost certain at this writing that a new president will be selected at the June meeting, if not before.

Miss Pauline Englemann, instructor in violin and piano, gave the fourth recital of the artist course on Thursday night, March 18, playing a varied program, and assisted by Miss Louise Langland, instructor in voice culture. Miss Englemann captured her audience by the sweetness of her tone and her artistic rendering of her selections. Miss Langland's work was up to the high artistic standard of her previous solo numbers.

On the afternoon and evening of March 18 the annual high school declamatory contest was held under the auspices of Tabor college. This was participated in by eleven schools, with thirty-one contestants. The winners in the three classes were as follows: Humorous class, Miss Mona Luis of Sidney, first; Mr. Bernard Gonsally of Glenwood, second; Earl Warner of Emerson and Miss Florence Lookbill of Malvern, third. Oratorical class, Mr. Christie McCormick of Hamburg, first; Mr. Merrill Myers of Glenwood, second; Edison Moyer of Tabor, third. Dramatic class, Miss Jennie Linville of Glenwood, first; Miss Jennie Laird of Tabor, second; Miss Dagmar Honnests of Shenandoah, third.

The contest was attended by its usual large audience of nearly 1,000 people, half of whom were from out of town. The selections were of a high grade and the rendering of them of such uniform excellence as to make it a very close contest. The judges were Rev. H. R. Van Auker of Ashland, Neb.; Prof. N. J. Brindley of the Council Bluffs high school, and Miss Kate Arnold of Atlantic, Ia.

The musical numbers were supplied by the conservatory faculty and Miss Ella Honeyman and Ethel Todd. One of the solos rendered by Miss Langland had a violin and cello accompaniment, played respectively by Miss Englemann and Mr. L. C. Todd.

The rules for the contest for next year were changed so as to prevent the same selection being used by the same person two years in succession, and winning selections are barred for one year. It was also arranged to have but two representatives from each school instead of three as at present.

The Women's union of the Congregational church served dinner and supper in the parlors, serving over 400 meals.

The winter term closed on Wednesday, March 24. The spring term will open on Tuesday, March 30.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN. Variety and Number of Studies Offered at Summer School. A total of 235 courses of study is offered by a faculty of ninety-two professors and instructors, including eleven from other institutions, in the eleventh annual summer session of the University of Wisconsin, according to the program just completed and now in press. The college of letters and science and the graduate school offer 149 courses; the college of engineering, forty professional courses and thirty-four for artisans and apprentices; the college of law, seven courses, increasing the number of hours of class work a week from twenty-four to thirty-two; and the college of agriculture, offers a regular summer daily course of ten weeks. In addition, the summer school of ethics of the American Ethical union will again hold its session at Madison, June 28 to July 24, giving five courses of study.

The university's summer session extends over six weeks, from June 28 to August 6, with the exception of the college of law and dairy school courses, which cover ten weeks.

Dr. Felix Adler, professor of social and political ethics at Columbia university, and Roosevelt exchange professor at Berlin university for 1908-09, is dean of the faculty of the American Ethical union's summer school of ethics, which will again hold its summer session at Madison this year, from June 28 to July 24. Dr. Adler will be assisted in the five courses of lectures offered by Jane Adams, head of Hull House, Chicago; Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, New York; Alfred W. Martin, New York; William McIntyre Salter, department of philosophy, University of Chicago; Dr. Henry Norman, college of the City of New York; Prof. Nathaniel Schmidt, Scientific Language, Cornell; Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer, New York School of Philanthropy, and Leslie W. Sprague, New York.

A conference of the deans of the colleges of liberal arts in state universities of the middle west was held at the university on Thursday, March 18. Dr. Olin Turner, dean of the college of liberal arts and sciences at the University of Kansas was chairman of the meeting.

Educational Notes. Dr. James C. Hepburn of East Orange, N. J., Princeton graduate, is now in his 94th year. Graduated in 1832, he was for many years a medical missionary in Japan. Prof. Deinger of the department of American history has arranged a series of lectures on Lincoln and his times which will give in several towns in the state during the Easter vacation.

Woman Prays Over Suicide. James A. McDonald, a union carpenter, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid in the Washington hall saloon, near Eighteenth and Harney streets, early Saturday afternoon.

He was discovered to be in a serious condition about 2 o'clock, but was not pronounced dead until 3:15 o'clock. Police Surgeon Harbort attended the case and Medical Students Shramek, Harris and Sugarman assisted.

Besides whisky and hypodermic injections, three or four methods of inducing artificial respiration, including the use of a ferric battery, were used in an effort to save the man's life. The doctors worked over the case for almost three hours before it was given up. The breathing center stopped an hour before the heart action ceased.

A feature of the case was that before McDonald died a woman missionary went to the rear room of the saloon, where he was and offered a prayer. She was Mrs. Burke, who lives at 431 South Nineteenth street and she said afterward that as soon as she heard of the case she felt prompted to go and pray, but did not do so, as she did not want to enter the saloon.

Later, she related, she was overcome by a desire to pray beside the man. Entering the room, which was filled with men, she prayed fervently for the forgiveness of the man's sins and the acceptance of his soul. McDonald is survived by a wife and two children who do not live in Omaha, and by his brother, Charles McDonald, who is a prominent member of the Carpenters' union. The dead man made his home with his brother on Nineteenth street between Harney and Howard streets. Coroner Healey took charge of the body and will hold an inquest.

Woman Prays Over Suicide. James A. McDonald, a union carpenter, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid in the Washington hall saloon, near Eighteenth and Harney streets, early Saturday afternoon.

He was discovered to be in a serious condition about 2 o'clock, but was not pronounced dead until 3:15 o'clock. Police Surgeon Harbort attended the case and Medical Students Shramek, Harris and Sugarman assisted.

Besides whisky and hypodermic injections, three or four methods of inducing artificial respiration, including the use of a ferric battery, were used in an effort to save the man's life. The doctors worked over the case for almost three hours before it was given up. The breathing center stopped an hour before the heart action ceased.

A feature of the case was that before McDonald died a woman missionary went to the rear room of the saloon, where he was and offered a prayer. She was Mrs. Burke, who lives at 431 South Nineteenth street and she said afterward that as soon as she heard of the case she felt prompted to go and pray, but did not do so, as she did not want to enter the saloon.

Later, she related, she was overcome by a desire to pray beside the man. Entering the room, which was filled with men, she prayed fervently for the forgiveness of the man's sins and the acceptance of his soul. McDonald is survived by a wife and two children who do not live in Omaha, and by his brother, Charles McDonald, who is a prominent member of the Carpenters' union. The dead man made his home with his brother on Nineteenth street between Harney and Howard streets. Coroner Healey took charge of the body and will hold an inquest.
