GRIEVANCES OF CRAZY SNAKE. (Continued from First Page.) made these requests, I went through death for this cause (referring to his service as a union soldier during the war); I served the father faithfully, and as a reward I regained my country, and I and my children will remain in it and live here as we did in the old time. I believe it. I know it is right. I know it is justice."

Crazy Snake spoke of the disposition of some of the Creek lands to negroes, and declared that this was contrary to the treaty and to justice. "The negroes," he said, "have no right to this land. It never was given to them. It was given to me and my people and we paid for it with our land back in Alabama. It was given to me what right has the United States to take it from me without first asking my consent?"

Sly Shot at White Men. After referring again to the obligation of the white man to protect the Indian in his rights, he naively said: "I believe that they are more concerned in their own welfare than in the welfare or rights of the Indian. I believe some of them are honest men, but not many."

"All that I am begging of you, honorable senators, is that these ancient agreements and treaties, wherein you promised to take care of me and my people be fulfilled and that you will remove all the difficulties that have been raised in reference to my people and their country and I ask you to see that these promises are faithfully kept."

Senator Teller, a member of the committee, asked the interpreter, an Indian named Hode, if he believed the old man to be honest in his statements. "The interpreter replied: 'I believe in my heart and soul that he is just as sincere and honest in his statements as a living man can be.'"

"That is the way he impresses me," responded Senator Teller. Another full-blooded Creek, whose name was given as Robert Johnson, declared that of the 6,922 Creeks 6,847 were ignorant of the fact that in the treaty of 1801 they had consented to the cutting up of their lands and the sale of the surplus to whites and negroes.

TROUBLE STARTED BY OUTLAWS. Crazy Snake and Band Not Involved in Original Riot. MUSKOGEE, Okl., March 30.—No Indians were involved in the original trouble that resulted in the militia being called out and Crazy Snake had a right to defend his home from the attack of irresponsible persons, and even officers not authorized to arrest him, according to the finding of Special Attorney Woodruff and Indian Agent Kelley, after several hours' investigation at Muskogee today. This report reached the Indian agency here this afternoon. It states, in addition, that the negro outlaws congregated at Hickory Grounds were the only persons who started the trouble, and that the intervention of the federal government will be invoked for the protection of the Indians, including Crazy Snake, if necessary.
